—By Arthur Brisbane—

THE NEW YORK TIMES, commenting on the nomination of Roosevelt and Garner, has, on its front page, undertaken to explain the part played by W. R. Hearst. Because his group of 25 million Hearst newspaper readers can carry any election, if they choose, you are interested in the following telegram received by the writer from W. R. Hearst, yesterday.

Los Angeles, July 3.
Arthur Brisbane,
New York American:

I personally will not reply to the articles in the Times or to any such insinuations. The reason the California delegation went for Roosevelt was because he was obviously the choice of a majority of the Democrats in the convention hall and throughout the country.

A Democratic party which is not governed by the wishes of a majority is simply and plainly not Democratic. It has usurped a name to which it has no right.

The fundamental principle of democracy is the rule of the majority, and it is a disgrace to the democracy of this nation that the Republican party should be, in this essential respect of majority rule, more democratic than the Democratic party.

I said in my articles during the convention that I favored Garner for President and I worked for him earnestly, ardently and unremittingly. However, when a man submits a candidate for the consideration of a convention, he must in honor and ordinary decency abide by the result of the convention; so I promised to support any genuine Democrat nominated by the convention.

Therefore, I am going to support Roosevelt.

He complies with the required conditions. He is a genuine Democrat in spirit and in record and he was duly and properly and overwhelmingly nominated by the convention.

He is not the hired man of high finance and that is the reason why high finance and its hired men will not support him. But it also is a good reason why genuine Democrats will support him.

Therefore, I look to see all loyal Democrats everywhere support Governor Roosevelt because he is a rightful and regular Democrat, rightfully and regularly nominated by a rightful and regular Democratic convention.

I do not know whether Smith will support him or not. I do not know how loyal and regular Smith is.

However, Smith and Roosevelt have loyally supported each other in times past and political exigencies do not create permanent enmities in liberal-minded men.

Smith cannot always be nominated for President. Some of the time he will be called upon to support those who have loyally supported him. It is only by loyalty that one gains loyalty.

Smith has always prided himself on being regular. It is not regular to be a renegade.

Smith will support Roosevelt all right, unless the brown derby has gone yellow; and of course it has not.

Smith is a pretty able citizen and he knows that he would not amount to anything, now or hereafter, if he read himself out of the Democratic party.

However, that is something for Smith to consider. Roosevelt is going to be elected in any case.

W. R. Hearst

This will be a radio campaign. The county fair, the "patriotic" outpouring of voters will see little of the candidates, and they will see nothing of torchlight parades. President Hoover and Governor Roosevelt will talk through the air, and campaign speeches will change, and improve.

You must choose your words and arguments carefully when you can no longer make faces, pound with your fists, wave your arms, or toss back your leonine mane, to impress.

Both Hoover and Roosevelt have made a careful study of the radio and its possibilities.

Both use the radio with excellent effect. President Hoover, apart from politics, made a careful study of the radio, as part of his job, when he was secretary of commerce.

On the radio, abuse, or even too severe criticism of your opponent often helps the opponent. And humorous anecdotes that begin "It seems there were two Scotchmen" are not acceptable.

Radio campaigns make substantial campaign contributions necessary, since each party will need at least a million dollars for radio expense alone. That is more costly than the ancient "blocks of five" bribery system.

The radio promotes thought, eliminates the mob spirit of old political meetings.

In New York's Bronx Zoo, the snake manager has a good idea. Snakes in cages discover that life is simple. Some one brings live mice, or whatever they eat, at regular intervals, no one disturbs them.

So the life down, make no effort, and do not amuse the visitors.

Also they get no exercise. A small zoo island has been arranged and 42 snakes let loose on it. If they swim in the water, they cannot escape because of a rim around the outside of the water. They are expected to crawl around and entertain students of snake nature.

How like ourselves, in our unnatural city life. The baker,

Bingham Opens Drive for Beer

DRYS COUNT ON HOOVER TO VETO IT

Bingham's 3.2 Per Cent Alcohol Plan Tied on to Home Loan Bank Measure

Washington, July 5 (INS)—A new and formidable drive to legalize 3.2 per cent beer was launched today in the Senate under leadership of Senator Bingham (R.) Connecticut.

Backers of the Bingham proposal offered as a rider to the Home Loan Bank bill declared a majority of the Senate would agree to it, but in other quarters belief prevailed Congress would adjourn before action on the rider could be reached.

Wet members of Congress were elated by the decisive Democratic victory in the North Carolina Democratic runoff primary over Morrison believing it would strongly influence Southern Senators.

Senator Sheppard (D.) of Texas said however, he would vote against modification of the Volstead act.

The organized dry forces will oppose the Democratic Presidential nominee, Gov. Roosevelt of New York, but may support President Hoover, according to their chieftains.

They assert Hoover would veto the Bingham beer plan if it reached him.

Firemen Rescue Two Companions

After they had collapsed in a smoke-filled dwelling, two firemen were saved by the rescue squad of Ladder 29 in Dorchester last night. The firemen overcome were Lieut. John Barry and Private Albert F. Mitchell, both of Engine 19. They were revived with an inhalator.

George Walker led the rescue crew into the house, a three-story wooden dwelling at 68 Wildwood st., where fire had started on the first floor and spread to the second floor.

Two Injured When Truck Overturns

Ellsworth, Me., July 5—Two persons were seriously injured and 12 others cut and bruised when the automobile truck in which they were riding from Bangor to the Ellsworth Fourth of July celebration left the highway and overturned.

Mrs. James E. Parks received a broken rib and James Hodgdon a fractured collarbone. They were taken to Eastern Maine General Hospital in Bangor.

Stalin Illness Denied

Moscow, July 5 (INS)—Reports current in Paris that Josef Stalin is gravely ill were ridiculed in official circles today.

CLEARED IN INDUSTRIAL BANK CASE

Hull and McKnight Freed on One Count, Held on Another in Trust Company Probe

Ten defendants were freed today by order of Judge Hanify in Superior court as the first of the Industrial Bank & Trust Co. cases was called.

He quashed an indictment charging John C. Hull, Edwin T. McKnight and ten others with conspiracy to defeat the ends of justice.

While the two were released, Hull and McKnight were, however, held for trial on another indictment charging them with attempting to coerce Silas Walte, Department of Public Utilities investigator, from making a bribe.

Hull is director of the securities division of the Public Utilities Department and former speaker of the House. McKnight is former president of the closed Medford Trust Company.

They demanded a bill of particulars which Asst. Dist. Atty. John J. Murphy promised to have ready within two hours. The trial starts late today before Judge Hanify. The defendants waived trial by jury.

The indictments in this phase of the investigation of the affairs of the closed Industrial Bank & Trust Co. relate to sale of Medford Trust Co. stock.

The defendants ordered released are Silas Walte, George A. Foster, also a department of public utilities investigator; Frank F. Jenks, a department auditor; Francis C. Norton, Herbert S. Mabey, Harry L. Cushman, Samuel Cushman, Alfred L. West, William H. Wardwell and Julian M. Elsner.

Judge Hanify made his decision after hearing arguments by J. Weston Allen, former attorney general, representing Hull, and by Daniel J. Gallagher, for McKnight.

Revere Stabbing Hearing July 12

Cases of 11 men, charged with participating in an affray in a cottage on Putnam rd., in the Oak Island district of Revere, Sunday night, were continued today in Chelsea court to July 12.

Ten were in court and pleaded not guilty. The other, Ulvin ("Ug") Gibson, 20, of Atlantic ave., Revere, is at Massachusetts General Hospital in a serious condition from knife wounds.

Three Roxbury men were seriously injured in an auto accident near Bristol Ct., according to a telegram received at Boston police headquarters today from Bristol authorities, asking that their families be notified.

They are Paul Kaplan, 32 Waumbeck st., Benjamin Dunay, 1 Waumbeck st., and Saul Abrams, Homestead st., ill are at a hospital in Bristol.

Lewis Predicts 'Pillbox' Indictments

Prohibition Administrator Lewis said today that he expects to see indictments and convictions in the Woburn "pillbox" distillery case.

He also announced that the Mr. ford Trust Co., which holds a $30,000 mortgage on the property, will co-operate with the Government in efforts to get bids and sell the seized materials, which include steel tanks and boilers, electric pumps and condensers.

Is Roosevelt Safe?

IS ROOSEVELT a safe candidate? This question echoes a similar inquiry which used to reverberate through Wall Street concerning the Democratic nominee's illustrious cousin.

If Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt's conduct as President, if elected, squares with his past acts and expressions, he will not be altogether safe for heartless, heedless speculators and pyramiders and blue sky operators or for the greedy gangsters in the power industry who seek to appropriate to themselves public facilities.

Governor Roosevelt's "forgotten man" radio speech indicates that he will not be complacently safe for and in smug harmony with those who, like President Hoover, preach the doctrine of "rugged individualism" to needy persons who are without employment, while practicing tender paternalism in the direction of financing the financiers.

But everything in Governor Roosevelt's record and program indicates clearly that he will be constructively and comfortingly safe for honest, conscientious business men and financiers.

AS A MATTER of fact, at this crucial time when intelligent innovation is essential, there is a safety valve in Governor Roosevelt's economic liberalism.

A survey of Governor Roosevelt's utterances on economic questions since the depression indicates that he had a much better insight into the course of events than the present incumbent in the White House.

While President Hoover was predicting wrongly and refusing to acknowledge the gravity of the situation, Franklin D. Roosevelt was in a fact facing mood, and was doing his share to awaken the public to the need of more intelligent industrial planning and economic co-ordination.

To speak frankly, the intelligent business community, in considering who is safe and who is unsafe, should recognize that a President who can see

Mayor Declines to Run and Pledges Aid to Governor; Sees Roosevelt Sweep

Mayor Curley today urged Governor Ely to run for re-election and pledged him his support.

The Mayor declared it to be the duty of the Governor to again be a candidate in the interests of party harmony.

On the eve of organizing a Roosevelt drive in New England, Mayor Curley predicted "Al" Smith will soon be in line for the Democratic presidential candidate, and that Roosevelt will sweep the country.

He said he intended to get in touch with Gov. Roosevelt and his campaign manager, James A. Farley, early next week in connection with plans for the New England campaign.

The mayor also expects to go to New York to confer with the presidential nominee and his advisers, he said.

DECLINES TO RUN

His statement was made on arrival at City Hall on the heels of the greatest home-coming reception ever accorded a citizen in this state. At that time he announced flatly he was not a candidate for governor.

"I am interested solely in the success of Franklin D. Roosevelt," he said, "and propose to do everything in my power to insure his success.

"Under the circumstances I am not a candidate for the nomination for Governor. I intend to do everything in my power to further the success of whoever may be the candidate for Governor.

"It is clearly the duty of Gov. Ely to be a candidate for re-election and in the event he is the candidate, in the interests of party harmony and of the Democratic party and of democracy."

SURE OF SMITH

Regarding the support of former Governor Smith, who was reported to be planning to bolt the ticket, Mayor Curley said:

"I am quite certain that at the right time Smith will be working as earnestly for Roosevelt as anybody will."

The mayor received a flood of telegrams and letters congratulating him on the part he took in bringing about the nomination of Roosevelt.

In one Mayor C. M. Richardson of Rockland, Me., wrote:

"You are to be congratulated on your unflinching loyalty to Gov. Roosevelt and the cause of democracy."

Another was from F. Vall Spinosa of Baltimore, Md., chairman of the Puerto Rican delegation, asking Mayor Curley for his activities

Woman on Phone Hears Love Death Being Manufactured

Despondent because of a threatened break in their friendship, John C. Clow, 30, of 15 Linden st., Brookline, telephoned an East Pepperell woman early today, according to police, asked her if she could hear his auto engine running and then committed suicide by carbon monoxide poisoning.

Three hours later the woman, Mrs. Margaret Meisner, 45, with her daughter and a man companion, found Clow's unconscious form in his auto repair shop at 695 Brookline ave., Brookline, to which they had raced in an attempt to save him.

HAD THREATENED ACT

Mrs. Meisner told police Clow had declared over the telephone he intended to take his life, and previously had promised to do "something she would remember big by."

Sergt. James Toma, summoned by the Pepperell party, with a pulmotor squad from the fire department, worked for nearly an hour in an attempt to revive Clow.

He was pronounced dead by Dr Francis J. McMahon, and a suicide by Medical Examiner Dr. Benjamin Rudman.

According to police, Clow's automobile engine had stopped running from lack of gas when they arrived, but the ignition was turned on and the radiator was hot.

According to police Clow, who was married and the father of a child, had been friendly with Mrs. Meisner for some time.

They quoted her as saying that recently she had been attempting to break up the friendship, against Clow's protests.

Yesterday he was a visitor at the Meisner home in East Pepperell, and Mrs. Meisner told police they had words over the separation. When she insisted that they must see no more of each other, Clow, she told police, threatened he would "do something that she would remember him by."

Police quoted Mrs. Meisner as saying the Brookline man left her home at 11 p. m. last night in a despondent mood. At 1:30 this morning she said he called her on the telephone from his automobile shop.

According to the police Mrs. Meisner said Clow asked her if she could hear his motor running, and then told her he was committing suicide by carbon monoxide poisoning.

WIFE DIDN'T KNOW

Accompanied by her daughter, Miss Doris Doucette, and Willis F. Gray of Oliver st., East Pepperell, Mrs. Meisner motored to Brookline.

Police said they found the door of Clow's shop braced on the inside with a broom but forced it open. Clow, unconscious, was seated inside in a chair.

He was a well known resident of Brookline and bore a good reputation, according to police. Mrs. Clow, police said, was unaware of her husband's friendship with Mrs. Meisner, who is said to have been married twice.

FR. YOUNG, CITY HOSPITAL, DIES

Rev. Louis J. Young, S. J., chaplain of Boston City Hospital for the past 12 years, died at St. Margaret's Hospital, Dorchester, today, after an illness of seven months. He was 55 years of age.

Burial services will be held Thursday at 10 a. m., from Immaculate Conception Church. Interment will be in Holy Cross College cemetery.

Summer Due for Return Wednesday

The temperature will rise gradually, bringing summer warmth again tomorrow, according to the weatherman's prediction today. With the mercury in the 60s, he recalled July 5, 1919, when a record mark of 101 was established. Sunny skies are on the card for the next few days.

The Problem

REMOVAL of the mentality of depression must be a prelude to the revival of business confidence.

The Remedy

A $5,000,000,000 bond issue by the United States to build great public works, employ several million men and start the nation back to prosperity.

CONVICT SEIZED, 3 STILL DODGE

Ronald Ferguson of Haverhill, one of four convicts who escaped from the Rutland State prison camp, was arrested at gunpoint today in a New Haven, Ct., telegraph office.

He denied knowledge of the whereabouts of the other three two of whom are lifers.

Ferguson had wired a Boston man for money and was going to claim it when detectives captured him. He offered no resistance but refused to talk about the escape.

Convinced the other three escaped the cordon thrown about Rutland woods, State police today asked police of other states to aid in the manhunt.

BROOKLINE GIRL AND PRINCE QUIT

Princess Claire Rospigliosi, who was Claire Weil of Brookline before her Paris wedding four years ago, has come to a parting of the ways with Prince Clemente Rospigliosi of Italy, Paris dispatches said today.

Prince Rospigliosi, member of an old Italian family, announcing the separation in a legal notice in American language newspapers, said that he would accept no responsibility for debts contracted by the former Boston girl.

The couple were married in St. Madeleine Church, Paris, May 4, 1928. The bride was traveling in Europe with her mother when she met the prince.

After the wedding trip to Morocco and Tripoli, the couple settled in Paris, and Mrs. Weil returned to America to live with another daughter, Mrs. Otto Meyer of New York.

Haverhill Child Is Scalding Victim

Haverhill, July 5—Joan Carambatsas, 15 months' old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carambatsas of 21 Broadway, was badly scalded today when she overturned a tea kettle of hot water in the kitchen of her home.

The child was taken to the Gale Hospital where her condition was reported to be serious.

PARTY WOUNDS SHOW SIGNS OF HEALING

Democratic Nominee Will Ask No Quarter and Will Give None in Campaign

Today's developments in the Democratic presidential campaign were:

2—While he had not heard from Al Smith, Roosevelt is convinced all wounds will have been healed before November election and that the party will be solidly behind him on his drive for the White House.

3—The campaign will begin at once, carrying the fight to Hoover, asking no quarter and giving none.

4—Radio will be the chief medium in the drive and Roosevelt plans only a few short trips from Albany. He is looking forward to an early conference with Speaker Garner, vice-presidential nominee.

Pictures on Pages 3 and 6; Other Stories on Page 6

Albany, N. Y., July 5 (INS)—Refreshed after his first good night's sleep in nearly a week, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democracy's candidate for the Presidency, today settled down to the task of answering the thousands of congratulatory messages that have deluged the executive mansion since his nomination in Chicago.

While he has not heard from former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Mr. Roosevelt is firmly convinced all of the wounds of the convention will be healed long before the November election and that all elements in the Democratic party will be solidly behind him in his drive for the White House.

"NEW DEAL FOR U. S. PEOPLE."

Having taken the offensive in his battle against what he has characterized as "Republican leadership," Governor Roosevelt intends to carry the fight right to President Hoover's door from now until election day.

He is determined to wage a campaign that will long be remembered by the American people. He will ask for no quarter and he will give none. It is a fight to the finish and he intends to drive home the fact that he is fighting for a "new deal for American people."

While the governor intends to wage a vigorous campaign he has made it plain that the state's business will not be neglected.

Reports that he might resign the governorship and turn the reins over to Lieut.-Gov. Herbert H. Lehman so as to devote all of his time to the presidential campaign were characterized by Mr. Roosevelt as "ridiculous."

SHORT TRIPS PLANNED

A number of short campaign trips to various parts of the country are planned for the next two months but there will be nothing definite on these "hunts" until after the campaign machinery has been completely organized.

Incidentally, the Governor plans to make extensive use of the radio during his campaign. Radio officials have described his voice as "one of the finest on the air."

Just as soon as it can be arranged the Governor intends to have a conference with his running mate, Speaker John N. Garner, on campaign plans. He has stated repeatedly that he is immensely pleased to have the sturdy Texan as his right hand man in the forthcoming battle.

SOME WOUNDS HEALING.

As an indication that the Democratic leaders of Albany County, Edward J. and Daniel P. O'Connell, who stood with Tammany at Chicago for former Governor Smith, are planning to stage a rousing "welcome home" celebration tomorrow for Governor Roosevelt.

Despite a drizzling rain, the Governor received enthusiastic receptions at various stops in New York State on his way home from Chicago.

One thing that particularly pleased the Governor was a statement by former Congressman Meyer Jacobstein at the Rochester station.

"The Smith boys here feel fine and are going to support you," Jacobstein said.

"That's great," said Roosevelt.

The Governor also was pleased over the messages he received from Col. Edward M. House, personal advisor to the late President Wilson. The first message came after the Governor's nomination and the second after his "fighting" speech of acceptance before the convention.

Three Fliers Killed

Edmonton, Alta, July 5 (AP)—Pilot Andy Cruickshanks and Mechanics L. King and J. Tory, of Canadian Airways, were killed at Mazemot Lake, north of Fort Rae, a radiogram to Royal Canadian mounted police headquarters today said.

butcher, milkman bring bread, meat, milk. The employer brings his payroll, the public school brings knowledge, takes charge of the children, the movies bring excitement. The average American, in prosperous times, lives much like the zoo snake, making little mental or physical effort. Someone runs his government. Why should he exert his precious gray matter.

We need a "snake island" for humans to compel useful activity. This depression may supply that island.

In Russia, five well-carved statues have been found, made from bones of the mammoth by men of the Cro-Magnon race, 25,000 years ago.

The mammoth has vanished, and the Cro-Magnon, with his well developed head and brain, has gone with him. Many things have happened since they disappeared from earth, and of those happenings thousands have been far worse than the troubles of which we now complain.

Human beings have survived conditions in which war was constant. They have lived through the seven-year war, thirty-year war, hundred-year war, the "black death" and all the plagues from Asia. They will survive this little trouble, based on the fact that WE HAVE TOO MUCH OF EVERYTHING AND DO NOT KNOW HOW TO DISTRIBUTE OUR EXCESS, OR KEEP OUR WORKERS PRODUCING.

London bank rate is lowest in its history, short term loans are made at 1 per cent. That interests Americans that pay 6 per cent, and find it hard to borrow, even on good security. In Paris, short loans are made at three-quarters of one per cent.

With us it is a case of temporary remorse. Our high finance dumped American billions into more or less worthless foreign bond issues, dumped other billions into dubious foreign private loans.

There is, temporarily, no inclination to make loans of any kind, abroad or at home. But that will change, as prosperity creeps back, like the melodrama heroine coming home in the snow storm.

By the way, England is doing much better since leaving the gold basis, and our experts think England may drag us along toward prosperity, in her wake. Queer things happen.

High interest rates, plus high income tax rates, do not help Miss Prosperity's "come back."

If a business man borrows to start business and employ men, he finds money hard to get, even at high rates. If he loses, all the loss is his. If he wins, the government says, "Please hand me a little more than half of what you made."

Between interest rates and income tax rates the thoughtful man often decides to let someone else start hiring men. He buys tax exempt securities.

We celebrate Independence Day, Canada celebrates Dominion Day, commemorating her partial independence, COMPLETE except for a valuable connection with the British Empire.

It is a good thing to have so competent a neighbor on our northern line. Much may be learned from such a neighbor. For instance, banks do not fail in Canada, wrecking thousands financially. Canada has had one or two bank "difficulties," while we have had 12,000 bank failures, and no depositor in Canada lost a dollar. We might learn something there.

The Canadians are not as good customers of ours as they once were. They have reduced purchases from us by 58 per cent within two years, buying, instead, of Britain and her other dominions. Of this we have no complaint to make. Brothers should buy of brothers.

Our exports have never equalled more than 10 per cent of our total production, and if everybody in America had what he needs, we should have nothing to export.

It is the business of government to enable Americans to buy all that Americans can produce, and see to it that Americans buy of Americans, as Canadians buy of Britons.

Any American praising a foreign product as superior to anything produced here does not set a good example, or deserves American success.

BEES NOW TURN ON HUTTON

Los Angeles, July 5 (AP)—Victim of attack by bees when he spent the week-end at a mountain resort, David Hutton returned here today to take the stand for cross-examination in the $200,000 breach-of-promise suit brought against him by Myrtle Joan St. Pierre, attractive Pasadena nurse.

The bees stung Hutton three times, but he announced his injuries would in no way affect the continuation of his story that he had never made love to the nurse.

Hutton spent his week-end and holiday at the mountain retreat where his wife, Evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, is recovering from an illness. The suit against him was brought by Miss St. Pierre shortly after he married the evangelist.

"No Progress" Is Report After German-British Conference; Italy's Plea Is Rejected

Lausanne, Switzerland, July 5—An hour's conference between Prime Minister MacDonald and Chancellor Von Papen of Germany brought the two no closer together today on any settlement of war debts and reparations.

The chancellor shook his head as he left Mr. MacDonald's headquarters.

"We're still far apart," he said.

"We have made no progress."

Dino Grandi of Italy had asked Premier MacDonald to agree never to demand renewal of war debt payments by Italy.

MacDONALD FIRM.

MacDonald replied politely but firmly that Britain is bound by the Balfour declaration, that Britain shall ask from her debtors only as much as she needs to pay her own war debts.

While she has to continue payment of her own debts, he said, Britain cannot agree to wiping the international slate clean.

Mussolini, it is understood, feels that if Europe scraps all her I. O. U.'s, America, in the natural course of events, will be obliged to reconsider the war debts owed her by the European countries.

HERRIOT DUE TODAY

Premier Herriot of France arrived today with a counter-proposal to that of German Chancellor von Papen to the allied plan for a $1,000,000,000 bond issue to cover reparations payments in a lump sum.

Kellogg Condemns All Balance of Power Pacts

Paris, July 5 (AP)—Europe had before it today a denunciation of armed alliances to maintain the balance of power from Frank B. Kellogg, survivor of the authors of the Briand-Kellogg pact to outlaw war.

"War has never been prevented by armed alliances," the former American Secretary of State told the American Chamber of Commerce in an Independence Day address. "If you cannot trust nations in their dealings with one another to settle their difficulties by pacific means, you cannot trust them banded together in alliances to maintain peace by arming to the teeth.

"The way to security and peace is through disarmament. And the way to disarm is to disarm."

Britain Rejects Hoover Navy Cut Clauses

Geneva, July 5 (INS)—Great Britain finds the naval clauses in President Hoover's disarmament plan "unacceptable" without important reservations, but accepts "in principle" the land and air clauses provided allowances are made for the special conditions of each country, it was learned on reliable authority here today.

In the first statement regarding Britain's attitude, Sir John Simon British foreign secretary, informed United States Ambassador Hugh Gibson to this effect during a half hour's conversation.

SYLVIA WED TO FILM ACTOR

New York, July 5 (AP)—The marriage of Mme. Sylvia Ulvect, former Hollywood masseuse and beauty advisor to motion picture stars, to Edward Leiter, film actor, was announced today.

Sylvia, as she is known in Hollywood and on the radio, left Hollywood several months ago, coming to New York to devote her time to radio and writing.

The bridegroom is a son of Mrs. Ella Leiter of Los Angeles and a nephew of the late Joseph Leiter, Chicago financier.

G.O.P. OPENS ITS HEADQUARTERS TOMORROW

National Campaign Is to Be Waged From Chicago and the Eastern Office in New York

Chicago, July 5 (INS)—The national convention campaign headquarters of the Republican party will be opened tomorrow in Chicago.

This was announced today by Everett Sanders, chairman of the Republican national committee, on his arrival today from Washington.

The former secretary to President Coolidge was silent on the outlook for Hoover's reelection. He was likewise silent on the speaking program President Hoover will follow.

Ray Benjamin, California attorney and personal advisor to the President, will also make his headquarters in Chicago during the campaign.

Others in the Chicago office will be:

Former Gov. Henry Allen of Kansas, national publicity director; Mrs. Ella Yost, chairman of women's activities; and Robert Lucas, vice chairman of the national committee.

Sanders indicated the active speaking tour for the major campaigners will not begin until early September, and that the rest of the summer will be spent mainly in perfecting local organization.

The Eastern office of the campaign, the one time Indiana Congressman said, will be opened soon in New York City, while a smaller bureau will be maintained in the Capital.

To newspapermen, Sanders said he did not care to discuss President Hoover's reaction to the Democratic platform, to Roosevelt's visit to Chicago, or to the favorable comment for the New York Governor from progressive Seniors.

Cambridge Officer Arrests 17 in Day

Patrolman John L. Gaudet of Central sq. police station in Cambridge is believed to have established some sort of a record when he arrested 17 drunken men during the early hours yesterday.

Is Roosevelt Safe?

economic events clearly and plan ahead intelligently is infinitely safer than one who acts on false assumptions and miscalculations.

SCARCELY a fortnight before President Hoover blundered in issuing his statement indicating his belief that the worst of the unemployment crisis would be over in sixty days, Governor Roosevelt, in a speech at Ithaca, N. Y., on February 14, 1930, realistically pointed out:

"Many economists are seriously questioning whether we have not for the time being reached the saturation point of industrial production calling for a period of digestion for a number of years to come. No matter how anxious we may be to prevent any panic of thought over the unemployment situation at this time, we must nevertheless recognize the fact that there are more people in the cities of the United States who are walking the streets looking for jobs than at any time within many years."

As the presidential election looms, economic and labor problems are the dominant issues of the campaign. If the voters want to use intelligent discrimination, they will examine the record to test how Messrs. Roosevelt and Hoover reacted to the economic catastrophe.

IN SHORT, President Hoover took the position that the business car had temporarily jumped the track, and would soon get back. On the other hand, Governor Roosevelt diagnosed the defects in our economic organization, and developed a constructive program for correcting them.

Now that time gives an opportunity to check up on the prognostications of the two men, the record plainly shows that Mr. Roosevelt has been far nearer right than Mr. Hoover.

In time of crisis, it is prudent to rely on men of proven worth, not on bunglers.

Divorced Husband Wins Decree From Lady Heath

New York, July 5—Lady Mary Heath, famed British aviatrix, has learned that the last obstacle to her marital freedom has been swept away.

The English peeress secured a Reno divorce from Sir James Heath, millionaire English industrialist, some time ago, and afterwards married Reginald Williams.

The divorce decree, however, was not recognized as legal in England and Lady Mary contemplated steps to render it so. Yesterday she found that Sir James had obtained a divorce in London.

Warsaw Unveils Statue in Honor of Col. E. M. House

Warsaw, July 5—Colonel Edward M. House, friend and advisor of the late Woodrow Wilson, was paid homage here when a statue to him was unveiled as a feature of Poland's celebration of the American Independence Day.

Colonel House

The event was attended by city officials and a throng of spectators in the Ignace Paderewski Park, named after the great pianist. Paderewski himself donated the statue of Colonel House.

Colonel House dispatched a cablegram to the city of Warsaw and Paderewski, thanking them for the great honor bestowed upon him.

Juanita Walker Charges Attempt to Smirch Character

New York, July 5—Juanita Walker, who is suing Thompson W. Decker, New York millionaire for $100,000 heart balm, charged a framed-up and an attempt to besmirch her character in challenging evidence offered by the defense.

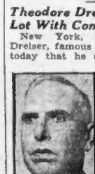
Juanita Walker

Incidents brought into the case, she charged, were purely fictitious and of such a nature as to create unfair opinion of her. Other incidents mentioned, she alleged, were grossly exaggerated.

The late stepfather, J. B. Meyers, headed the country's largest legal stationery company. Miss Walker met Decker while both were in Florida.

Theodore Dreiser Casts Lot With Communist Party

New York, July 5—Theodore Dreiser, famous author, announced today that he openly adhered to the Communist party and its political platform.



Theodore Dreiser

Comrade Dreiser, who has for the past several years been affiliated closely with Communistic doctrines, said he would vote for William Z. Foster next November in the presidential election.

His vote will be cast in that direction, he said, as a protest against the capitalism he regards as the sore spot of American social construction.

Boy Hit by Auto as He Jumps Off Truck

When he jumped from the rear of a truck in Broadway, Saugus, yesterday, as it made a turn, Murray E. Weddall, 16, of Great Woods rd., Saugus, fell on the front of a sedan following police say, and was seriously injured. The sedan was operated by Miss Laura Perrier, 28, of Central Falls, R. I.

HAPPY DAYS WILL SOON BE HERE, READ AND SEE!

By PAUL WHELTON

How do you feel about the happenings in Chicago?

Haven't you got the reaction already—that prosperity isn't going to stay around that corner much longer, but is going to hop right into our midst.

That was a great idea, putting the plank into the Republican platform calling for resubmission of the eighteenth amendment.

It is a better plan by the Democrats, however, not only to repeal the 18th Amendment altogether, but in the meantime to modify the Volstead Act and permit light wines and beer.

The moment the election is over, Americans can begin to act like human beings again, with the hypocrites and the Paul Prys and the pussyfooters out of our picture at last.

Good times will be here again, right in the middle of Washington st. and in all corners of the town.

Just to Call the Roll!

Can you visualize all the old time spots, all the cafes and restaurants whose closing we mourned, opened up again, humming with conversation, savory with appetizing odors—busy as bees?

Frank Locke's, in Winter pl.—where all was warmth and laughter and good fellowship on winter afternoons and evenings in the old days as the snow sifted down and mantled the out-of-doors!

How about dropping into the Lombardi Inn in Boylston pl. for a thick chop, and wash it down with a mug of ten-guinea ale—like cream?

A thick tenderloin steak at Louis' Cafe, in Fayette ct., with Emile ushering you in graciously and Joe, in his eager Alsatian, recommending a light, honest sauterne—or a glass of Golden Chasselas from California's vineyards?

Oysters, Tripe, Jake Wirth's

Baked oysters at the Georgian in Park sq. Can't you recall Vernon Castle sitting in and playing the drums and traps—sending over a bottle of wine, laughingly, to the table applauding the loudest?

Luscious tripe at Young's, in City Hall ave., for which they used to come to Young's Hotel from all over New England. You'll have a nice stout with that, of course.

Scores of places may reopen—alas the old Adams House, in Washington st., is gone, the hostelry of the Hall brothers, where the well-knowns of the nation gathered in the late afternoon whenever they were in town—and where Frank Daniels, the old stage comic, conceived the first highball.

Jake Wirth's, in Stuart st., will come back to its own—and Charlie Wirth's, in Essex st., the Dreyfus, in Beech st., Jacot's, in Boylston st.—you got filet of sole, French fried potatoes and a glass of your choice in Jacot's, all for 25 cents.

Bad News for the Rummies!

There will be scores of places to go, with countless delicious dishes to be served, and every one to be washed down with good, honest wine or with creamy, sturdy ale or amber-hued beer.

The wineries will start up again, the breweries will be open, the speakeasies will close, and the racketeers and hijackers and gangsters will be stripped of their money and their power.

The junk man will be puzzled over what to do with all the pocket flasks. They won't be fashionable any more.

No longer will it be "smart" for boys and girls to become "tight" at their pathetic parties. Their feet will go back on the ground and they will live wholesome, happy lives.

It will go all up and down the line—a regular chain of industries started up again, from the farmer with his grain and the vineyard proprietor with his grapes up to the feverish bus boys who clean up in the late hours under the dimmed lights.

Return to Old Sanity

All along the line there will be money to spend, and it will be spent—without the low-browed bootleggers and gangsters getting their "cut."

Honesty will return, for the benefit of the plain, honest, hard-working people who have suffered so courageously and so long.

Americans will return to living and laughing and loving, and making money—and spending it—with Americans.

FIGHTING TO AVOID NOOSE AS KILLER OF FRIEND

MRS. BARNEY SOBS HOW DYING MAN CLEARED HER

Mrs. Elvira D. Barney, London society woman, accused of slaying her young sweetheart, Michael Scott Stephen, fainted in court yesterday when doctor testified she threatened suicide when he pronounced Stephen dead.

London, July 5 (INS)—With his dying breath, Michael Scott Stephen told her she was not to blame for the shot which killed him, Mrs. Elvira Dolores Barney, daughter of a multi-millionaire and wife of an American singer, testified today at her trial for his murder.

While the crowded courtroom listened in rapt attention, the beautiful prisoner told the story of the fatal shooting after a cocktail party between sobs.

"Did he say anything before he died?" her attorney, Sir Patrick Hastings, asked.

SOBS AS SHE ANSWERS

Tears coursed down Mrs. aBrney's cheeks as she replied:

"He said: 'I wish a doctor would be here. I want to tell him it was an accident and wasn't your fault.'

"He repeated this over and over again."

As these words echoed through historic Old Bailey Court, the defense abruptly closed its case and turned the prisoner over to the prosecution.

LOVE LIFE BARED

Mrs. Barney told dramatic details of her love for Stephen, a young Irish sportsman, telling how she had put up with his philandering and had supported him and given him money which he gambled away with another woman.

Sir Percival Clarke, the crown prosecutor, began his cross-examination with questions regarding the "other woman" with whom Stephen was alleged to have gambled away Mrs. Barney's money.

Under cross-examination, Mrs. Barney said that the woman who encouraged Stephen to gamble was not at the cocktail party. Sir Percival referred to her as "Miss C.," keeping her identity a secret.

The prosecutor closely questioned

RAGGED BONUS ARMY STAGES A SECOND PARADE

Food Scarce, Veterans March to Capitol for a New Demand Upon Congress

Washington, July 5 (INS)—The bonus army packed its troubles on empty stomachs today and marched down Pennsylvania ave. to stage a second great demonstration in front of the Capitol.

The tattered veterans assembled in orderly fashion, forming a great letter "B" in the Washington Monument grounds. At 10 sharp the head of the column filed around the new Commerce building and into the avenue for a silent military parade down its length to the Capitol.

QUEST FOR FOOD.

Capt. Doak Carter of Cleveland, as chief of staff, marched at the head, with Harold B. Foulkrod of Philadelphia, legislative representative. National Commander Walter W. Waters was away in New York in quest of food for his men.

The men of the ragged army were more than when they marched, only 5000 strong, on June 6. There were no bands this time. Only the notes of bugles pealed any sort of paen for the men tramping to the Capitol to protest against adjournment of Congress without cash payment of their adjusted compensation certificates.

WOMEN IN MARCH

There was a scattering of women throughout the parade. Many wives have joined their bonus marcher husbands since June 6. At intervals, too, were seen children marching with their daddies "to get the bonus."

Food has been scant for a week, and for the last three days the men have lived on weak soup or mush, and weak, black sugarless coffee. They started their mile and a half military march to the Capitol today after trudging five miles or more

MOTHER OF REP. CONNERY DEAD

Mrs. Mary T. Connery, mother of Congressman William P. Connery, died this afternoon at her home, 15 Bellevue st., Lynn.

Congressman Connery, who rushed home from the Democratic convention Friday, was with her at the end.

Others who were at the bedside included another son, Lawrence; four daughters; a brother, Michael P. Haven of Lynn, and Rev. Joseph T. McGlinchey, curate of St. Mary's Church.

Mrs. Connery was the widow of the late William P. Connery, ex-mayor of Lynn. She was born 75 years ago at Thurlef, County Tipperary, and came to this country when 15. She was a member of St. Mary's Sodality and an honorary member of the War Mothers of America.

Mayor Manning, upon learning of her death issued a statement, in which he called her one of the city's outstanding citizens.

GLOBE-GIRDLING FLIERS BEHIND

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., July 5 (AP)—James Mattern and Bennett Griffin, American aviators, were believed to have been forced down by fog near Wesleyville early this afternoon.

New York, July 5 (AP)—James Mattern and Bennett Griffin took off today in an attempt to beat the world girdling flight record of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, but they lagged well behind on the first stretch of their long flight.

Post and Gatty made the first leg of the world flight, New York to Harbor Grace, N. F., a distance of 1132 miles, in six hours and 52 minutes.

FAST RECORD FLIGHT

Mattern and Griffin left New York at 4:01 A. M. Eastern Standard Time, and to equal the Post-Gatty time would have had to reach Harbor Grace at 10:53 A. M.

They had not arrived at that time, however, and at 9:55 a plane believed to be theirs passed over Seaterl Island in Nova Scotia, still approximately 300 miles from Harbor Grace.

BEHIND OLD MARK

If this plane was theirs it seemed probable the new record seekers would be about two hours behind the record they are trying to break when they reached their first stop.

Post and Gatty stayed three hours and 40 minutes in Harbar Grace before starting the flight across the ocean, however, so Mattern and Griffin might pick up some of their lost time, if not all of it, by speed in refueling.

$119,261 CITY WORK O. K.'D

Contracts totalling $119,261.60 were approved today by Mayor Curley as one of the first acts following his return from the Chicago convention.

The largest was for $54,388.50 awarded to M. F. Gaddis Co. for asphalt surfacing of Dorchester ave., Dorchester, from Savin Hill ave. to Charles st.

Asphalt surfacing at a cost of $43,428.50 on Walnut ave., Roxbury, from Humboldt ave. to Columbus ave., was provided in another contract awarded to A. Singarella.

The others awarded were for sewerage in Dorchester ave. from Hoyt st., 250 feet northeast, to A. Piatelli & Co., for $9893.50; sewerage in Arlington st., to Coleman Bros., Inc., $8820.10, and sewerage in Chisholm rd., West Roxbury, to Tenaglia Construction Co., $2721.

All except the Singarella firm were lowest bidders. It was second lowest.

Pajama-Clad Girl Held on Gun Charge

Worcester, July 5—Clad in modish beach pajamas, Miss Jessie Ecksicle, 24, of Lamartine st., Worcester, was arrested on her front doorsteps today charged with carrying a revolver without a permit. Patrolman Frank Powers, who took her into custody, charged that she was shooting a 32-caliber pistol and that when he examined it he found it was loaded with real bullets. She was charged with drunkenness also.

RUTH'S PAJAMAS ROUT LOVE

Because Ruth Chatterton, the film star, insisted on wearing pajamas to dinner while Ralph Forbes, her English husband, was a stickler for form and insisted on full dinner dress, their love went awry. That's the secret back of their parting and pending divorce, it was learned in Paris, where she has gone. And here are some of the gay pajamas that brought about the love tragedy. Report is that after Reno she will wed George Brent, also an actor. She has bought a home in fashionable Toluca Lake, a suburb of Hollywood. (International News Photos.)

Chicopee Mill to Put 750 to Work

Chicopee, July 5 (AP)—Asinof & Sons, Inc., woolen clothing manufacturers, whose plant has been closed since May 1, announced today that work would be resumed on nearly full schedule this week, giving employment to about 750 persons. It is believed that the raw material market has stabilized to a point warranting operations on normal basis.

Roxbury Man Held for False Alarm

Edgar W. Sabine, 37, of Allard ct., Roxbury, weighing 260 pounds, was arrested by Patrolman Thomas W. Barry of Roxbury Crossing station last night, after a chase along Eustis st. Barry, who was in plain clothes, charged that he saw Sabine ring a false alarm in Eustis st.

LAST DAY FOR 2-CENT STAMP

Washington, July 5 (AP)—Citizens tomorrow will start using the new three-cent stamp and help get the government out of the red.

The three-center is printed in purple and bears the Stuart portrait of Washington. It is identical in size and design with the two-cent stamp of the Washington Bicentennial Series except for the change of denomination and omission of dates.

Two other varieties of three-cent stamps will be used—the current Lincoln stamp of the regular issue and the three-center of the bicentennial series.

Four billion new stamps are being manufactured. Despite the publicity given the change in postal rates, officials say that thousands of letters probably will be mailed tomorrow and in the next few days after that bearing the old two-cent variety.

MOTHER SAVES EIGHT IN FIRE

Awakened by smoke and flames, Mrs. Nicholas Lisk of Church st., Lynn, led her eight children to the street today when fire damaged their home. The family occupied the first floor of a three-story house. Firemen and police plunged into the burning building in the belief that two other families were trapped, but the families were away over the holiday.

The blaze started on the second floor. It had gained considerable headway when apparatus arrived. Damage was estimated at $900.

Miners Quit Strike

St. John's, N. F., July 5 (AP)—A thousand iron ore miners at Bell Island returned to work today under the agreement reached with the Dominion Steel & Coal Corp. that there would be no action on the proposed wage reduction until August 1.

Democracy's Man of the Hour — Whom You'll Meet This Summer — In His Vigorous Battle for the Presidency

Here is Franklin D. Roosevelt, the man named by the Democrats to sweep into the Presidency in the November election, caught by the candid camera in characteristic poses as he addressed the Chicago convention. The moment was one of the most dramatic in the history of politics. Gov. Roosevelt had just flown a thousand miles from Albany, accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt and two of their sons. The convention had just given him one of the wildest ovations of all time as he arrived to accept the nomination. Then came his address—and candid camera snapped him. First telling you how prohibition has failed to do little save create crime and how he stands 100 per cent for the repeal platform. Next driving home to you the fact that the issue of economic recovery eclipses all other issues in this campaign—a job and food and contentment. Then his challenge to the Republicans to stand on the record Hoover has made; then his slashing blows at the failures laid to the Washington government, his invitation to Republicans to join with him for the salvation of the country and last as he finished his address in a burst of eloquence that brought the delegates up stampeding again. MRS. BARNEY SOBS STORY ON STAND

Mrs. Barney regarding her feelings toward Stephen when she thought he was going to leave her.

"You didn't want him to go to some other woman?" he asked.

"No, not to another woman," she said.

Mrs. Barney said she could not remember whether her hand was on the pistol when it was discharged.

"After the shooting," asked Sir Percival, "did Stephen say: 'My God, what have you done?'"

CALLED FOR DOCTOR.

"No," she replied. "His first words were 'Fetch a doctor.'"

"I suggest," thundered the prosecutor, "that, in anger with him for saying he would leave you, you said, 'Get out or I'll shoot,' and you shot."

"No I didn't," said the defendant amid tears.

Fashionable men and women in the crowded gallery leaned forward to catch every word as the attractive prisoner, her eyes red from tears, unfolded her love life.

"I first met Michael in Paris," Mrs. Barney said. "Last year he came to my apartment and re-introduced himself. We became extremely friendly."

"Was he always kind to you?" Sir Patrick asked.

"No," replied the defendant. "He was not always kind to me. On one occasion I was so frightened by his threats that I communicated with police."

Pressed by Sir Patrick, Mrs. Barney admitted she once threatened suicide in Stephen's presence "because he made me unhappy."

"What was the cause of your unhappiness?" the attorney asked.

"OTHER WOMAN" IN CASE

"He used to go out gambling with a woman," Mrs. Barney said. "I didn't like it. It caused scenes between us and we parted on numerous occasions."

"In spite of that," asked Sir Patrick slowly, "did you remain to the end absolutely devoted to him?"

There was a hushed silence, broken only by a deep-throated sob from the prisoner.

"Yes," she finally answered in a whisper.

STRUGGLE RE-ENACTED

Placing the revolver in the hands of his assistant, Walter Frampton, Sir Patrick then re-enacted the struggle which Mrs. Barney claims ensued before the shooting. The noted attorney seized Frampton's hands and demonstrated how the revolver might have gone off in the struggle, as the courtroom watched breathlessly.

"Michael lunched at the apartment on the day of his death, Mrs. Barney said. "In the afternoon we went out together to purchase things for a cocktail party.

LOVER UNKIND, SHE SAYS

"Michael hadn't been kind to me. He wanted money to go out and gamble. I begged him not to. I became more and more unhappy and the subject was finally dropped."

When the cocktail party was over, she said, she and Stephen went out to dinner, after which they returned to the flat.

"We were on friendly terms," she said. "We went into the bedroom, and at first Michael was kind to me.

"He made love to me, but after a time he became most angry, because I didn't respond the way he wanted me to. He said that perhaps my feelings had changed. I told him it was only because I was unhappy."

"That made him angrier. He told me he would leave next day and not see me at all."

"Did he get out of bed?" asked Sir Patrick.

"He got up after some time," Mrs. Barney replied. "I asked him not to leave me.

"Then I threatened to kill myself. Michael dashed for the armchair when he knew I kept my revolver, saying:

"'Anyway, you won't do it with this.'"

STRUGGLE FOR GUN

"He picked up the revolver and ran out of the room. I ran after him. The revolver was in Michael's hand. I went up to him and we struggled for the revolver.

"I wanted it back. I kept saying 'give it to me,' but he tried to get away. I was crying—"

"Suddenly I heard a shot.

"Michael looked at me with an expression of astonishment. He went upstairs to the bathroom and remained a moment in the half-opened door.

"'Better send for a doctor,' he said.

"It was the first time I had any idea he was hurt.

"How long did he live?" the attorney asked.

"It seemed hours to me," she answered with a choking sob. "He said: 'I wish the doctor would hurry.'"

Court was then adjourned until tomorrow.

Atty. Blood to Hear $1,000,000 Suit

Atty. Charles Blood of Carter & Blood, today was appointed by the Supreme Court as auditor to hear evidence in the $1,000,000 civil suit brought by Bank Commissioner Arthur S. Guy against directors of the closed Medford Trust Co.

Blood announced that hearings would start in Pemberton sq. courthouse next Tuesday. Fifteen attorneys have filed appearances for the directors.

Atty. Blood estimated the hearing of evidence would take about 90 days, after which his report will be made to the court.

IN all your life you've never had anything like it! The more malts you've tried the more you're going to like Buckeye's strength and flavor. Buckeye is the quality malt! It's made only from purest barley malt, by a special process of DUO-MALTING under vacuum. That makes its marvelous flavor. Then it's VACUUM PACKED in the can. That keeps all the flavor there for you to enjoy. For a real malt thrill, give Buckeye a whirl.

You can get Buckeye everywhere—plain or hop flavor—light or dark. If you have to pay a few pennies more—do it—it's worth it!

DRYS PLAN TO RUN BORAH FOR PRESIDENT

Indianapolis July 5—Its hopes centered on a move to unite the great national temperance organizations in support of Senator Borah for the presidency, the prohibition party gathered for its quadrennial national convention here today.

D. Leigh Colvin, national chairman of the party, has engaged in conferences with representatives of the temperance groups who are here, designed to gain advance pledges of support to the Idaho Senator if he will accept the party's nomination.

BORAH IN CONFERENCE

Borah, who has refused to support the Republican presidential ticket because of the platform's declaration on prohibition, conferred with Colvin Sunday.

Colvin said last night he believes Borah would poll 10,000,000 votes as a dry candidate for President.

The major parties were scored at a mass meeting last night for their prohibition stands.

Colvin said:

"The Republican wet plank means that Mr. Hoover has approved it, and whose close associates and appointees drafted it, and whose adviser's promoted it in the convention, is the most conspicuous turn-coat since Benedict Arnold."

"The women's group adopted a "platform" calling upon Congress "to support and defend the Constitution against a noisy minority who, for appetite and greed, would break down the Union."

DRY CONGRESS SOUGHT

Dr. Daniel A. Poling, chairman of the prohibition organization, announced his opposition to both party planks and declared the allied forces were raising funds for a campaign to support dry members of Congress.

Poling criticised the Republican plank since it "affirms that no public official or member of the party should be pledged or forced to choose between party affiliation and his honest conviction on this issue." He withheld further comment as Mr. Hoover has not made his speech of acceptance.

Concerning the Democratic plank Poling said:

"Governor Roosevelt stands squarely on his platform. He is 100 per cent for the return of the liquor plank. More, he is squarely on record to veto a state enforcement bill should it pass the New York Legislature. In our opinion that for which Governor Roosevelt stands, that which he aggressive advocates is at once repeal and 'limited nullification.'"

IRELAND MAY PAY LAND RENT

London, July 5 (INS)—Hopes of averting the impending tariff war between Great Britain and the Irish Free State were enhanced today by the unexpected revelation that President De Valera has not completely ruled out the possibility of arbitrating the land annuities dispute.

The disclosure came on the heels of the drastic action by the House of Commons in voting 223 to 31 for a financial resolution empowering the British government to impose a tariff of 100 per cent on Free State goods in retaliation for De Valera's refusal to pay the annuities.

De Valera, it was revealed, is not confiscating the funds due Britain, but is placing them in a separate fund pending the outcome of arbitration. This announcement was made by Sir Stafford Cripps, former Laborite solicitor-general and confirmed by W. J. Dulanty, Irish Free State high commissioner.

Sweeping Out Convention

—By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER—

Al Smith's entrance into the Stadium. Al, they cheered for Schmeling and voted for Sharkey.

Gov. Roosevelt flying to Chicago to accept the nomination in person. He knew all the postmasters are Republican and he wanted to make sure of getting it.

McAdoo's appearance on the rostrum. In five minutes he dug the biggest tunnel of his career. He waited eight years for that one moment. But revenge on strawberries certainly sweetens the dish.

The stampede in the aisler as McAdoo pulled that political one-two punch. He jabbed 'em with Texas and slapped 'em in the face with California.

The Democrats operating until dawn just to prove they are going to give the public night-and-day service.

Nobody understanding whether the son of William Jennings Bryan wanted bimetallism or himbolism or something.

The lovely lady delegates who cheered everybody while their husbands stayed home and swept the dishes and ironed the children.

G. K. CHESTERTON
Who Criticizes American Fads.

London, July 5 (INS)—"America is the most up-to-date lunatic asylum of fads."

That's the opinion of G. K. Chesterton, world-famous author. In an interview, in which he declared at the start he did not care to say anything unpleasant about America, Chesterton unburdened himself of the caustic "crack."

He added, however, that whatever he said against America he wanted digested in good spirit, as he speaks as a friend rather than an enemy. Chesterton declared:

"I have too long been an admirer of the greatness of America to have my sense of proportion distorted by what seemed to me some anomalies and anachronisms in a few of the American institutions.

"During my recent visit I came across all sorts and condition of people and I found Americans generally to be good sixers. But, on the other hand, they are easily moved by strange fads and fu ny notions. In fact, I can positively say America is the most up-to-date lunatic asylum of fads.

"For instance, there is the sect of the Holy Rollers, and another sect where all the members abstain from wearing buttons. Some are making rapid progress toward becoming hygienic lunatics."

American beer and spirits evidently were not appreciated by Chesterton in his visit to America, where admittedly he received delightful hospitality. His comment was:

"I tasted some of the whiskey or 'hooch,' and I should say it is positively dangerous—rank poison. As for the American beer—the best American beer is Canadian beer. I sampled some of that and I enjoyed it very much."

Thieves broke into the home of Leonard Martin, unemployed, at Flagg st., Cambridge, yesterday, and stole the family's holiday dinner.

7 Reported Killed in Kansas Tornado

Omaha, Neb., July 5 — Unofficial reports reaching Omaha railroad offices here early today were that seven persons had been killed in the tornado that struck Washington, Kan., last night.

Empty House Used for 4th Bonfire

Boys seeking a Fourth of July bonfire were believed to have caused the $200 fire which damaged a two-and-a-half story unoccupied house on Tudor st., Cambridge.

GIRL'S SCREAMS SAVE PARENTS

A two-alarm fire destroyed the two-and-one-half story residence of George F. Lowd, on Main st., Hull, early today, causing damage estimated at $6000. Lowd and his wife and daughter barely escaped.

Lowd's daughter, Nellie, 10, was awakened by the crackling of flames in a back room of the house. She screamed, arousing her father and mother.

The house was filling with smoke as the flames spread through the building. Lowd made his way with difficulty to his daughter's bedroom and carried her out. They had no time to seize any belongings and were forced to flee clad only in nightclothing.

Neighbors sounded an alarm and Public Safety Commr. Henry J. Stevens ordered the second alarm when he reached the scene. Firemen quickly got the blaze under control and prevented it from spreading to neighboring cottages.

Laundryman Beaten

Charles Chin, 29, laundry proprietor, was assaulted and robbed of $3 by four men who held him up in his shop at 40 Brooks st., Brighton, early today. He was found unconscious by police and taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

MARINES MEET HERE JULY 9

Former "Devil Dogs" will converge on Boston, July 9-10, for the third annual department convention and reunion of the Marine Corps League, with the Theodore Roosevelt detachment as hosts.

A feature will be a get-together Saturday evening, July 9, at 42 Blossom st., West End, with speeches by candidates for offices.

Sunday the department is scheduled to assemble at the Theodore Roosevelt department headquarters 108 Massachusetts ave., for the business meeting.

The morning session will be devoted to organization, appointment of committees, and committee meetings, with election of officers in the afternoon. In the evening a dinner was planned.

'WHAT-A-MAN' HAS BLOWN UP, CLAIMS 'MA'

Hermosa Beach, Cal., July 5 (AP)—Coincident with the booming of a fireworks display at the beach here in front of her home, Mrs. Minnie (Ma') Kennedy Hudson announced that her marriage to Guy E. Hudson had "blown up."

"You can say for me," began Mrs. Hudson, mother of Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, "that after a year of fruitless attempts at establishing Mr. Hudson in a permanent position, I have decided that it would be to our mutual advantage if he went his way, and I went mine."

HUDSON BREAKS IN

At this stage of the interview, Hudson, who was referred to as "What-a-Man" by Mrs. Hudson when she eloped with him a year ago in the State of Washington, walked up the steps of the beach cottage.

"You can say for me that if there is a separation or divorce in this family, it is not because I want it," he said.

"As I was saying," went on Mrs. Hudson, "I have good wishes for Mr. Hudson and will do anything I can to stand him on his way to wherever he wants to go, but I am cutting loose.

COMIC STRIP LIFE

"I used to cry, but not any more. It's just a comic strip, this married life of ours. Funny, and getting funnier. And I want it understood that I am not responsible for any debts or other obligations he had incurred."

Hudson had been living for the past several days in a Los Angeles hotel. Mrs. Hudson had explained it was an "economic separation" while Hudson was looking for work. She had denied it would be permanent.

'MA'S' LOVE OUT WINDOW

Mrs. Minnie "Ma" Kennedy Hudson became tired of trying to keep her husband, George Hudson, on any kind of a job, and as a result their romance is at an end, she told reporters. "Ma" also refuses to pay any of George's debts. They are shown in the happier days. (International News Photos.)

SMITH REFUSES TO GIVE STAND ON ROOSEVELT

New York, July 4—Gov. Roosevelt has told Tammany Hall that he was sure the organization would support him in the presidential campaign. He said so in a telegram sent to Leader John L. Curry and read at the Independence Day celebration of the Tammany Society last night.

The crowded hall cheered the nominee's message. Alfred E. Smith, on the platform with the other sachems of the society, sat impassive as a real Indian and as bronzed for several moments. Then, without relaxing his graven features, Smith clapped his hands, lightly.

CALL ON SMITH

This was the closest he came to breaking the Sphinxian silence that has surrounded him in public since he was defeated for the presidential nomination by his former friend. But the Tammany tribesmen accepted it as evidence that Smith will remain regular for Roosevelt and repeal.

Through the cheers the message evoked, there came calls for Smith to declare himself but he grimly shook his head. At the close of the celebration, he softened sufficiently to deliver a brief, forceful spontaneous speech in defense of the Constitution, but he did not mention or refer to the party candidate or campaign.

The final sentence of the governor's telegram which so aroused the audience read:

"I am assured that the society of Tammany will follow the banners when the cause of real Democracy is at stake."

AL JUST ROAMING

Leader Curry led the applause and James A. Farley, the new chairman of the Democratic national committee, joined in vigorously. So did Atty.-Gen. John Bennett, U. S. Sen. Robert F. Wagner, Surrogates James Foley and John O'Brien, Dist. Atty. Crain, George Olvany and other party powers. So finally did Smith—but when he was asked later to interpret his action or reveal when he would make a statement concerning his course, he retorted, with a tinge of anger at the interrogation:

"I have nothing to say. I've worked damn hard for two weeks and I'm not going to pin myself down to when I am going to say anything. I'm going to take things free and easy for a while now. I'm not going to say anything. I'm just going to roam around."

And as he threw his arms wide apart to indicate the route of his roaming and his lips snapped together tightly as he ended the sentence.

AL BACK HOME—ALL SMILES

Roosevelt and Sons on Boat Cruise to N. E. Next Week

Albany, July 5 (INS)—With his four sons, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic presidential nominee, will embark on a 40-foot yawl next Monday morning from some place on Long Island for a week's cruise through the Cape Cod Canal to Portsmouth, N. H.

"We are going to do our own navigating, cooking and washing," the Governor said today.

"I hope to keep that a secret," he added.

The governor said that if Mayor James J. Walker files his answer to the removal charges this week he will take the papers along with him and study them on the cruise.

The governor will motor to his country home at Hyde Park Friday night or Saturday morning and go on to New York Sunday night.

SMITH LOOMING AS GOVERNOR

New York, July 5 (AP)—The Evening Post says today it has learned that a Tammany movement is under way looking to the nomination of former Governor Alfred E. Smith for a fifth term as the state's chief executive.

Prominent Tammany leaders are said by the Post to want Smith drafted into position, while persons close to John F. Curry, leader of the Hall, it is understood that Smith's selection would be welcome to the Tammany chieftain.

CURLEY IN BOOM FOR ELY

at the convention as a member of that delegation.

"We are sure we have a good friend in you," he wrote.

One of the mayor's visitors was James A. Murphy of Seattle, Wash., secretary of the Washington State delegation, and formerly an alderman from South Boston. Coming to Boston on that "Ned" Leary call messenger he was taken to the Mayor's office.

FOR CABINET POST

On leaving, Murphy said he thought Mayor Curley would make an excellent secretary of war under the Roosevelt administration.

Filled with enthusiasm and energy, the mayor declared that last night's reception on the Common, "the largest gathering ever assembled in this city," was striking evidence of Roosevelt's strength.

"I am convinced that Governor Roosevelt will sweep the country," the mayor said. "Last night's demonstration on the Common was evidence of it.

A large number of department heads were waiting in his outer offices to take up with the mayor matters that had accumulated during his absence at the Democratic convention.

"Last night's gathering," said the mayor, "was a spontaneous gathering and it was the largest ever assembled in this city, even larger than the famous meeting called by Governor McCall when we entered the war.

"It can mean only one thing. That is that the people of this city demand a change in the administration at ashington and intend to get it.

"It was the same all along the ally had to fight their way to the waiting automobiles the jam was so great. Once started the long line of automobiles, headed by several bands and veteran organizations, moved slowly up Washington st., to Stuart st., to Park sq. to Boylston st. to Tremont st. and the Common. Cheering crowds estimated at 25 000 lined the entire route of the parade.

YOUNG ROOSEVELT TALKS

A surprise was sprung at the Parkman Bandstand when "Teddy" Given introduced James Roosevelt and Mrs. Roosevelt, son and daughter-in-law of the Democratic presidential candidate, who had made the trip back to Boston with the Mayor's family. They were given a big hand.

In a brief address, young Roosevelt expressed deep gratitude to the huge gathering for the reception. He declared that he recognized that many people had their own candidate favorites, but now that the choice had been made, it was time to pull together.

Mayor Curley, who followed Roosevelt, declared that the immense crowd, the largest that had ever gathered on Boston Common in his memory, augured well for Democratic success in November.

In a plea for harmony within the ranks, the mayor conceded that disappointments come in 600 everybody's life. He himself, he said, has had his ups and downs, and has "taken it on the chin" more than once, but has taken off his coat notwithstanding and worked for the party's success.

The Mayor eulogized Governor Roosevelt, saying that his experience in national life together with his great humanitarianism makes him the ideal candidate for the presidency and the only one to whom "forgotten man" can look with confidence.

"I found the forgotten man and his dependents in the number of 1,500,000 subsisting on public and private charity, so destructive to self respect, in the richest city in the world in New York City. I found the forgotten man in the great industrial city of Detroit, with his dependents numbering one in three of the entire population of nearly 700,000, subsisting on public and private charity in such meagre amount as simply prevent actual starvation.

"I found the forgotten man in the city where the two leading political parties have recently convened, Chicago, and I found that he no longer sought refuge in the poorer section of the city because every other means of refuge was already occupied, line to Chicago. People stood in the rain, even women and children waving flags and hats to us as we passed. People don't stand in the rain simply to get wet. It was a clear-cut indication that these people were interested in a change at Washington."

NORTH STATION JAMMED

From the time the Mayor stepped from the Minute Man at the North Station until his departure for his home after addressing 120,000 persons on Boston Common, his progress was one continuous ovation.

Fully 15,000 Curley enthusiasts had jammed the North Station and it environs when the Mayor's train pulled in. When the "delegate from Porto Rico" appeared the din was terrific. Bands blared, cheers were given with a will and engineers tooted their whistles.

Veteran police officials declared that nothing like the demonstration has been seen in Boston since the receptions to Al Smith and to Lindbergh.

Business Booms for Hatters in Danbury

Danbury, Ct., July 5 (INS)—A boom set in for Danbury hatters today.

Announcements were made by officials of two hat factories that they are producing men's felt headgear at capacity and that by next week the present rate of orders will necessitate an even busier working schedule. One plant believed to be the largest hat factory in the world, employs nearly 1500 men at its peak. The other employs three weeks for $150.

"It was cheap and that's why we could afford it," he said.

"I want to do a lot of swimming and get some real rest for the campaign that lies ahead."

The exact place on Long Island where the Governor will board the yawl will not be decided until just before he leaves his New York home early Monday morning.

"I hope to keep that a secret," he said.

The governor said that if Mayor James J. Walker files his answer to the removal charges this week he will take the papers along with him and study them on the cruise.

The governor will motor to his country home at Hyde Park Friday night or Saturday morning and go on to New York Sunday night.

ROOSEVELT WIN HALTS BOLT

By KENNETH CLARK

(Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Washington, July 5 (U.S.)—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's nomination as the Democratic candidate for President stopped a third party ticket from being put in the field this year, Universal Service learned today.

Sen. Borah (R.) of Idaho and possibly ex-Gov. Dan Moody (D.) of Texas, as running mate, would have headed an independent party if Newton D. Baker had been nominated by the Democratic convention. The slate and the backers were ready to wage a vigorous nation-wide campaign if Roosevelt had been defeated.

Backers of the third party movement were convinced the goal of the financial interests at the Democratic convention was to stop Roosevelt and put over Baker as the nominee.

Progressives in Congress and liberals throughout the country, according to instigators of the third party scheme, will be satisfied with Governor Roosevelt.

HAGUE QUOTED FOR ROOSEVELT

Washington, July 5 (AP)—Assurance that Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, and New Jersey Democratic leaders would support Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt "wholeheartedly" came today from Rep. Percy H. Stewart, of Plainfield (N. J.), candidate for the Senate.

Stewart said he had been authorized to correct any "unauthorized impression" that may have gone abroad that Roosevelt, Presidential nominee, would not receive the "wholehearted support" of New Jersey Democratic leaders. He said he spoke also for Gov. A. Harry Moore.

Upon his return to Washington today from New Jersey and a conference with Mayor Hague, who was the Smith floor leader at the Chicago convention, Stewart said he found the party ticket and platform much to his liking and predicted the Democrats would carry New Jersey.

Curley Extends Bay State Influence, Says Conry

By JOSEPH A. CONRY
Traffic Commissioner.

Roosevelt fired the imagination of the American people by flying from Albany to Chicago. He abolished the antiquated notification committee. He thrilled fifty million citizens within 24 hours of his nomination in a speech which forever will be a model of campaign oratory.

He offered instant decision, immediate action and intelligent remedy.

His leadership means moral courage, physical strength and intellectual earnestness blending in honored harmony.

The distinguished delegate from Puerto Rico, Mayor James M. Curley, lengthened Boston's influence. It was a Massachusetts man who was first Governor of Porto Rico under the United States. The Sixth Massachusetts Infantry took possession of the island and the hearts of the people at the end of the Spanish War.

This is the only territory of the United States that Columbus actually explored in person.

Spanish influence for centuries has mellowed Galway.

It was fitting that the Curley line from Galway should continue with Columbus discovery of Puerto Rico.

The island was all for Roosevelt and Garner under the influence and leadership of Curley.

Puerto Rico Revives! Curley Conquistio!

Beautiful isle of the turquoise seas, rich port indeed for the land of the free, where sweet spring eternal reigns supreme as Erin's happy rival for the wearin' of the green.

Musical Comedy Star Dies

WALKER BEGINS SEABURY REPLY

New York, July 5 (AP)—Mayor James J. Walker today began writing his answer to charges of unfitness filed against him by Samuel Seabury. He hopes to send it to Governor Roosevelt next week.

"I think it will take the Governor about two weeks to study my answer," he said. "I think I will know just what is to happen to me, if anything, in about three weeks.

"That is just speculation, of course. I'd like to know as soon as possible, because I can scarcely go ahead on any definite, detailed new policy of administration until the Governor acts."

Whether or not Mayor Walker is removed from office, he will vote the Democratic ticket headed by Gov. Roosevelt this year. The mayor made that plain when he returned from the Chicago convention.

GIRL KIDNAPED AND BEATEN; HUNT TRIO

Two men and a youth were sought today for kidnaping a Cambridge girl near Scollay sq. yesterday and throwing her from their auto in Falmouth at. after they had beaten her and attempted to at. tack her.

The girl, Miss Emily Silva, of Elm st., Cambridge, staggered to the home of Edward Irons, in Steffle ave., shortly before midnight and revealed the story of her kidnaping. Her face was covered with scratches and bruises and her clothing was torn.

Irons summoned police, who notified the girl's parents.

The three kidnapers were described by the girl as follows: the driver, about 35 to 40 years of age, wearing slippers, white socks and a light blue sweater; another, about 50, wearing a dark coat, derby and boots, and the third, a young man in his early twenties.

According to the story told by the young woman, she was walking on Tremont at. toward Scollay sq. where she was going to a theater when an auto pulled up alongside her and two men leaped out. Before she could move they had seized her and bundled her inside the machine, forcing her to the floor.

She fainted and did not recover consciousness until some time later, she said. She awoke to find herself in a cottage. The men tried to make her drink liquor but she refused. They also attempted to attack her but she was successful in beating them off.

Her resistance led them to beat and choke her she declared but she still refused to drink and continued to fight them off. Finally they dragged her out of the cottage and back into the automobile.

The celebration will start October 4 and end with a monster banquet at the Hotel Statler, October 17.

John F. Cronin, P. G. K., is chairman of the committee, and will be assisted by John J. Foley, Andrew J. Gleason, John J. O'Brien, David G. Nagle, Arthur J. Leary, Fr. Joseph McMahon, Arthur J. O'Keefe, John J. Chapman, Richard J. Dwyer, Dr. George A. Sullivan, John F. Colton, Daniel S. Santry, John J. Collins and Edward G. Madden.

Robin Builds Nest on Rail Turntable

Emporia, Kan., July 5—The hiss and rumble of giant locomotives which are guided onto a big turntable at the Santa Fe roundhouse here is being carefully reduced to a minimum. A mother robin has selected the turntable as a likely spot to rear a family and has deposited three blue eggs in a tidy nest.

Mother robin deserts her eggs while each engine is turned, but reappears quickly as soon as the turntable is vacated.

MARTHA LEE'S COOKING PAGE

Jean Tells How to Cook Her Favorites

The most interesting item in this morning's mail were some recipes received from Jean Harlow, who is now vacationing on the coast after completing her latest picture, "Red Headed Woman," which will be shown at Loew's Orpheum Theater starting next Friday, July 8.

Imagine a red headed woman with a flare for the domestic! Miss Harlow writes:

"You might call this letter 'Miscellaneous Notes from a Cook's Cuff,' or perhaps 'a Hollywood Cook's Tour,' would be better. This isn't an attempt to present a scientifically balanced menu, but I do want to send you some favorite recipes that I hope will be new to you New Englanders. I love to cook simply because I love to cook! And, like everyone else, I have a few pet ways of doing certain pet dishes that I think are a little better than the other fellow's pet method.

"For instance, there's been a recipe for gorgeous rolls in my family for years. They'll truly melt in your mouth. And this is the formula:

DELICIOUS HOT ROLLS

1 cup warm milk
½ cup butter and Crisco mixed
1 tbsp. sugar
1 tsp. salt
1 egg well beaten
1 cake of compressed yeast, dissolved in ½ cup lukewarm water.

"Cook the butter and Crisco in a pan with the milk and melt it. The milk must be quite hot. Then add the sugar, salt and beaten egg. When lukewarm, add the yeast. Use enough flour to make a soft dough. Let stand for 4 hours, then cut down and divide the dough in two parts. Roll the dough out about ½ inch thick. Cut with a small biscuit cutter. Dip the top of the roll in a little dish of melted butter. Place another buttered roll on top of the first roll. Now place the rolls in a buttered pan, let stand 2 hours and put in a very hot oven about 10 minutes. They're worth the trouble! And I like them a lot better than some of the movie roles I've had in the past!

"Did you ever try scrambled eggs cooked this way? It gives them an entirely different and delicious flavor.

ZIPPY SCRAMBLED EGGS

Add 1 tbsp. of bottled horseradish to 6 to 8 eggs. Beat well. Add 1 tbsp. of milk for each egg. Put 2 tbsps. of olive oil and 2 tbsps. of butter in a heavy frying-pan. Turn in the eggs and stir gently until they are done to the right consistency.

"In baking potatoes, keep them covered while they are baking. Then scoop them out of their skins. Mash with butter, hot milk, salt, grated American cheese. Put back in skins and coat heavily with more grated cheese. Brown in the broiler.

"Spare Ribs and Sauerkraut has long been my favorite dish when it's cooked in this way:

"Cook the kraut slowly from 3 to 3½ hours, with only a few sparerib to give it flavor. Sprinkle salt and pepper on the ribs and coat with flour. Put the ribs in a baking dish which you cover in a hot oven at first, keeping ½-inch of water in the dish. Cook the ribs slowly for an hour. Remove the cover about 20 minutes before you take them, so the ribs can brown.

BROILING STEAK

"And when you're broiling steak, soak the steak for 3 hours in olive oil to which a clove or two of garlic have been added. Then broil in the usual way. Save the olive oil until you want to use it again.

"These are just a few tips. It's my own belief that we all eat one-fourth of our food because we need it and three-fourths of it because we like its taste and 'de gustibus non est disputandum,' as Caesar probably told his cook more than once."

Drink for Pep These Days

Family just picking and fussing with their food these muggy days and leaving the table with not enough nourishment in them to keep the proverbial canary alive? Don't forget that a glass of snappy, bubbling, cooling ginger ale at each plate, will do lots to arouse hunger, tone up the tummy and prepare it for the necessary foods. There certainly is something about the crisp, bracing flavor of ginger ale that does things to us that we need to have done in warm weather.

And remember in ordering that there are three distinct types—the golden, pale dry and extra dry. All mellow, healthful and delicious, but each different in its flavor. The golden has been a favorite for many years and is a special treat to the children. The pale dry is famous for its pleasing, dry flavor either in recipe drinks or alone, and there's the extra dry, which is supreme in its own class.

We have several brands in mind that we know are made from the finest ingredients, pure water from deep rock springs, pure Jamaica ginger, finest table sugar and real fruit flavor, fully carbonated to give zip and sparkle. And carefully aged to make a finer, richer flavor.

Frankfurter Roll

Parboil frankfurters. Split them and spread with prepared mustard. In each, place a thin slice of dill pickle. Roll in bacon strips, fasten with toothpicks. Broil or pan broil.

Ham and Tomato Grill

Take a slice of boiled ham ¼-inch thick and about 3 inches square. Spread with prepared mustard. On top of this place a thin slice of American cheese and a slice of tomato. Grill under broiler until cheese is melted and tomato browned.

Vim, Vigor in Whole Wheat

I noticed that "1 pkg. shredded wheat" appeared nine times on my grocery bill for the past month and wondered how a small family could consume so many shredded wheat biscuits in four short weeks. But I'd forgotten that we're taking advantage of the delicious and reasonable strawberries to serve for breakfast on the shredded wheat biscuits with lots of cream, and the chow-puppy gets double his allowance of shredded wheat just as soon as warm weather appears and his meat quota is cut down.

And at least once a week we have bananas, whipped cream and shredded wheat biscuits for a burgup dessert. Then, too, with the bathing season here, I've been trying to count calories a little more carefully and shredded wheat biscuits always have an important place on reducing diets.

Some foods contain only fat-making material, others are purely muscle makers, and others only make bone and teeth. Shredded wheat is one of the perfect foods that contains all these elements in exactly the right proportion to build a perfect human body to supply all the energy we need to do a day's work.

Nature gives us a whole wheat grain that contains everything that the human body needs to build tissue, muscle, bone and brain. But, of course, you can't eat it raw and so we're thankful to the scientists who have perfected the shredded wheat biscuits which offers whole wheat grain made digestible for the human stomach.

Chelsea Woman's Recipe for Hermits

Hermits

Cream ½ cup butter and 1½ cups brown sugar. Add 2 tbsps. sour milk and 2 beaten eggs, with 3 cups cake flour and 1 tsp. soda, ½ tsp. nutmeg, ½ tsp. cinnamon, ½ tsp. allspice. Mix all and add ½ pkg. seedless raisins and 1 pkg. pitted dates, cut in halves, 1 jar maraschino cherries cut in halves and ½ cup nut meats, broken. Mix well and spread very thinly in an oily shallow pan. These are delicious and will keep for a long time, if you can keep them. Let these cool before they are cut into finger-shaped pieces. From Mrs. Ina Potter, 21 Carmel st., Chelsea.

Firecrackers Take Place of Confetti

Firecrackers and torpedoes were thrown instead of confetti at the wedding of Miss Mary M. Buckley of Cranston st., Jamacia Plain, and Peter F. Charlton of Germania st., Jamacia Plain. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Francis Flaherty in the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, Center st., Jamacia Plain.

Snappy Sandwich

A snappy sandwich adds zest to the out-of-door lunch. Spread white bread with butter, then with snappy cheese and add drained crushed pineapple.

A BIRDSEYE VIEW

OF THE SUMMER market-basket shows tender, delicious, white rabbit meat to prepare your favorite chicken recipe. Plump Bluepoint oysters to fry or for cocktails. Apples all pared and sliced for fresh, juicy pies. Sliced mushrooms for delicious brown gravy. Fat, juicy fresh prune-plums for breakfast-table. All quick-frosted and ready in sanitary cellophane-wrapped packages, to be re-incarnated to their original fresh selves.

I'VE A FRESH SUPPLY of that recipe book I helped write for a certain dairy company. Delicious new dishes to make with milk, including Summer salads, reliable desserts, hot main dishes, such as fried chicken with cream gravy, au gratin and cheese dishes, and some dandy sour milk suggestions. Yours by return mail, if you'll send me a loose 2c stamp.

HAWAIIAN NECTAR and Hebe Blend are just two of the delicious things you can make with a certain fresh fruit syrup and ginger ale. For instance, 1 cup of pineapple juice, ½ cup of this celebrated lime and lemonade syrup and 1 bottle of ginger ale, with plenty of crushed ice and a maraschino cherry makes something to write home about. Or 1 cup of fruit salad, chopped, and blended with ½ cup of this same orange-lemonade syrup and 2 bottles of ginger ale. The syrup's made in Medford from fresh fruit, and can be bought—let me tell you where!

WE'VE ABOUT TWENTY sets—not entirely complete—of Martha Lee Cooking School recipe sheets, left from the Spring classes. We'll gladly send you a set of three or more, each containing eight or nine true and tried recipes, if you'd like to send us three loose 2c stamps for return postage.

DELICIOUSLY DIFFERENT is a certain Scotch ham. Mild, delicate flavor, unsmoked and sweet-pickled. Sprinkle a slice with flour and brown sugar, dot with cloves, cover with milk and bake 45 minutes. Serve with sweet potatoes, topped with marshmallows or fried pineapple slices. A product of New England.

AN EIGHTH WONDER of the world is chemically treated paper to use in place of dust cloth. This wonder paper cleans, dusts, polishes all at once. Splendid for automobiles or other highly polished surface. 50c a 25-yard roll.

TEA TIPLETS, specially prepared to exclude the coarse leaf, fibre and stalk. Usually $2 a pound. Now 59c a pound—packed in the four quarter-pounds to preserve strength.

THE HANDSOMEST BEVERAGE set I've seen, has six tall chipproof glasses, trimmed in five snappy stripes. With a fat, squatty 2-qt. jug with special ice lip. Lovely bridge or shower gift. $1.39.

DO LET ME TELL you the where and how much of one or all these items. A loose 2c stamp, with the column clipped and checked, will bring prompt information. More next week, from

Yours faithfully,

Try This Hash a La Benedict

Now is the season when ready-to-heat-and-eat corned beef hash comes into its own. No camp or cottage is complete without a generous supply of this delicious hash that appeases hearty summer appetites so wholesomely and at such small expense. Here in the Martha Lee Cooking School, we heat a heavy aluminum frying pan and melt in it two generous thsps. of butter. On this we place the contents of a can of the hash and smooth it down with a spatula. Next we drip on about 2 thsps. of diluted evaporated milk or thin cream.

Then turn the heat very low and let brown gently for one-half hour. A few minced green peppers may be added if liked. The hash comes out of the spider in omelet form, beautifully browned and waiting for its accompanying soft dropped eggs, tomato sauce, or whatever you may prefer.

For an individual breakfast order, place a well-browned flat cake of hash on a well-buttered piece of toast. On the hash place a dropped egg. To turn this into a hearty and delicious luncheon dish, pour over the egg and hash a mock hollandaise or bechamel sauce, made by adding one beaten egg and a little lemon juice to ordinary cream sauce and cook for one minute.

Girl About Town

—By ALYCE SIEMENS—

The Heavens above were cloudy, then
They suddenly turned to blue.
The sun just has to shine, because
A letter came from you.

Baby Shoes!

An eight and a half pound package was delivered to Evelyn Fitzgerald at the Emerson Hospital last Thursday per Daddy Peter "Angus" Fitzgerald's instructions to old "Doc" Stork . . . And since "Ev" had requested a chubby blue-eyed baby girl, that's just what that precious package contained! . . . And next month will see a second wee tot cooing up at its brilliant Daddy. Superior Court Judge John J. Burns!

Gossip-Catty!

West Roxbury's school teacher Thomas Walsh was gold-banded to Charming Anita O'Neil, a New Jersey peach, on Saturday in New Jersey . . . 'Twas a romance that budded and bloomed at Magnolia last summer . . . The week-end vanity case Mayor Curley's representative shopped for on Boylston st. and then presented to Amelia Earhart, as a gift from the city, cost $75! . . . Why did Dan Tupper lose that go-search-for-it mustache and why won't the Bradford phenomenon tell the nearby date of his joining the benedicts' Ha? . . . Jimmy Dewey can use the adjective "supercilious" more times in five minutes than there are seconds in the same time! . . . He reads books! . . . Alice Joy, gracious radio-daughter, worked a la duo act, around this section two years ago . . . Getting a "No good" for her trouble . . . It was when Alice fanally ended, upon her Manhattan invasion, that she hit her present swell stride . . . So that famous New York tabloid is bankrupt, with it just a matter of days until it actually folds, eh? . . .

Theater To-Dos!

Walter Donahue, elongated dancer, can't miss with that new act he's showing in New England . . . What with his own nimble-toes being augmented by those even blonde Luscious Ones of this year's Corbett Crop! . . . J. P. McEvoy shifted in and out of town Friday to eye Jimmy Savo for his next musical now in the mixing . . . Never has it witnessed such gawky damsels trying to be grace personified as those jerking ladies of the ensemble now at the "Met!" . . . But versatile Zelda Santley's impersonation on the same bill of our favorite screen characters, Jean Pitts, is a classic . . . Gus Van, in a snappy gray model, folding off to the Boston Common's baseball game mid-Sunday, looked years younger than when he's carrying a tux about . . . And he's the most enthusiastic wife-booster in the Show World . . . Been consistent in it too for 23 years now! Queenie Smith, diminutive star at RKO Keith's, calls it—Victoria romance novels "drug store books" and will tap off our column with—and will tap off our column with—and when we request that she give her low down on romance and "getting acquainted" . . . Jack Goldstein did the rest!

Regular F. T. Barnum Friday traveling over the road in the middle of the night with all those wild animals you may now gape at on Washington st. . . . And "Bring 'Em Back Alive" is that thrilling that even if you happen to be one of those individuals who crave table-romancing et al, you'll be disappointed because this corking jungle epic is too short—it'll get you! . . . Don't miss the dreamy rhythmic synchronization of the film by the once-popular-here Gene Rodemich!

Snooping and Telling!

Everett's Mrs. Lillian Van Deventer, in the palest blue sports outfit and picture hat, is a knock-out—even to feminine eyes . . . She has the cutest curl, right "in the middle of her forehead"—just like the little girl in the nursery rhyme tales—and the grandest rose-petal complexion! . . . She listened to every word of the two conventions over the radio . . . Even woke up as early as 9 a. m. to be sure not to miss anything . . . She's a terific fan for Gov. Ely—and, might we add, she's a very blushy and enthusiastic admirer of Marvin Brash, the first Democrat ever to be an appointee on Gov. Ely's Metropolitan Commission . . . With Belmont's Mrs. Joseph Henley and her two pretty orchid-frocked daughters, Betty and Jean, Mrs. Van Deventer was the first of the Pretty Ones of the Hub to greet the first batch of returning conventioneers . . . A Washington friend of ours seems to think that Mr. Hoover will uncork three neat surprises between now and September's beginning, which will encourage voters to believe in him . . . Maybe so! . . . Jack Starkey went to the radio to tune in six times during Jack's fighting with Max . . . But she didn't plug the switch in and claims that's the nearest she's ever been to listening in during her champion's bouts . . . As though poor busy Johnnie Buckley didn't have enough to think about on the championship night, he was dragged out of his dressing room-hiding place by a blonde with no heart! . . . One Kay Corbett who had gone to Manhattan, and was in the new bowl, thoroughly confident of a ringside seat—and without a ticket in her dainty hand! . . . Well, no one knows how she does it, but never the less, Kay got a three-row-from-the-front seat right next to the Gene Tunney's, Mayor Walker and Texas Guinan! . . . And you can't tell us that Kay's flying back to Boston with Ernie Schaaf and her daily over-the-phone gabbing with the slick boxer isn't beyond the "just-friends" stage! . . . (For which speaking out we shall probably be hanged at sunrise!)

Bickford in Sea Film Lead

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service, Inc.

Copyright, 1932, By Universal Serv., Inc.

Los Angeles, July 5—The Charles Bickford fan club and the legions of Bickford admirers will be pleased to know that their hero has just signed a contract with Columbia. He will play the lead in "The 13th Man," the sort of George Bancroftish role in which the red-headed actor excels.

I hope he will do it well, because I'd hate to have to say again that I thought he gave anything but a superior performance. I am still opening letters that deserved me for my review of his work in "Thunder Below."

"The 13th Man" is a sort of sea "Beau Geste" in which Bickford plays the one surviving man in a crew of 13. The story is an original by Howard Higgin who is also director, and the dialogue by Francis Edward Faragoh with Keene Thompson assisting in the preparation.

In Swanson Film

Lawrence Olivier, Genevieve Tobin and John Halliday will spend their glorious Fourth saying farewell to Hollywood friends. They leave tomorrow to sail on the Bremen for jolly England to play in Gloria Swanson's picture, "Perfect Understanding." At least, we hope nothing comes up again to prevent Mr. Olivier from joining Miss Swanson as her leading man. Goodness knows she tried hard enough to get him after negotiations with Melvyn Douglas and Ben Lyon fell through. Mr. Olivier is English and he will help the British quota demanded in all English made films. Jill Esmond accompanies her husband (Olivier) on a holiday. She returns later to join Radio Pictures with whom she has a contract.

A Line or Two

The stern-looking Robert McWade is at Universal City. He is punching the clock for "Once in a Lifetime."

David Torrence, who has kept that Scotch accent through thick and thin, is on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot playing opposite Norma Shearer in "Smilin' Thru." Mack Sennett has signed Merle Alba for "Hypnotized." She is the girl in case you don't remember who went to Tahiti with the Douglas Fairbanks Company and played opposite Doug in "A Robinson Crusade of the South Seas," or is that the name? Richard Wallace and Paramount must have settled all those difficulties, for he is back on the lot getting ready to direct "If I Had a Million." Hedda Hopper, greatly interested in hearing about "Wedding Rehearsal," the English picture in which Roland Young played the lead. There are seven weddings in the picture, count them. Seven. Raymond Hatton is doing nicely, thank you. He is in "Pony Boy," Tom Mix's picture at Universal, and in "Long Loop Laramie," Col. Tim McCoy's picture at Columbia.

From time to time we have been hearing about the rejuvenation of Sylvia, Hollywood's famed masseuse. Yesterday that rejuvenation was complete when Sylvia sent a telegram saying she was to be married to Edward Leiter, some years her junior.

Peppy Bill for Scollay Fans

Manager E. A. Vinson of the Scollay provides a fine bill of peppy vaudeville this week. Throughout there is color combined with sparkling comedy and peppy dancing. Headlined by a revue, "Gerber's Gaities," the entire bill was a great success as shown by the hearty applause of a large holiday crowd.

The revue features the Templeton Brothers, well known in Boston for their work in George M. Cohan's shows and as headliners in vaudeville.

The fine tap and toe dancing of Loretta Gray is a marvel of skill and cleverness. Miss Helen Keefe, who hails from Cambridge, displays a fine singing voice and some clever dancing. The Dancing Dolls are very petite, but are full of charm when it comes to dancing.

Charles Kemper and Company bring bowls of laughter with funny portrayal of college boys.

Beautiful girls with colorful songs and dances makes the "Fiesta de Mexico" a pleasing novelty. Sherman and Vaye as rube comedians, proved themselves to be a fine act in more ways than we have time to list.

Leslie Howard in Film Lead

The excellent acting of Leslie Howard makes "Reserved for Ladies," light comedy film, especially interesting. This picture, made in England, and featured on the Fenway-Modern-Beacon screens, reveals Howard as a Mr. Robinson Crusoe of the South Seas, or is that the name? Richard Wallace and Paramount must have settled all those difficulties, for he is back on the lot getting ready to direct "If I Had a Million." Hedda Hopper, greatly interested in hearing about "Wedding Rehearsal," the English picture in which Roland Young played the lead. There are seven weddings in the picture, count them. Seven. Raymond Hatton is doing nicely, thank you. He is in "Pony Boy," Tom Mix's picture at Universal, and in "Long Loop Laramie," Col. Tim McCoy's picture at Columbia.

Screen Gem at Fine Arts

By HARRIS MORGAN

The German makers of that sparkling screen musical, "Two Hearts in Waltz Time," have fashioned another gem, now featured at the Fine Arts theater. The new picture is titled "Das Lied Ist Aus," translated as "The Song is Over." It's an even more pretentiously produced than its predecessor, and is outstanding in every particular. That, in our opinion, it does not outdistance "Two Hearts," only means that it is one of the many delightful comedies we have witnessed in some time.

"Das Lied Ist Aus" has everything—superb music, magnificent acting, excellence in story, and class in settings.

The theme has its romance, and it has its humor, and both are skilfully handled by director and actors. Liana Haid, the heroine, is a distinguished performer.

Willy Forst is splendid, which is to be expected, as he is a grand actor always. Lesser roles are ably taken.

Greta Garbo's Latest Hit on Bowdoin Bill

The Bowdoin Square Theater has a big show of films and seven acts of vaudeville. One of the screen hits has Greta Garbo in "As You Desire Me." On the same bill is "Radio Patrol."

"Bring 'Em Back Alive" Swiftly Moving Film; Queenie Smith on Bill

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

"Bring 'Em Back Alive," is a swiftly moving, beautifully photographed panorama of the jungle, a stirring drama of tooth and claw. It packs more punch than a dozen ringside bouts and delivers its thrills with a wallop which induces gooseflesh and that fearsome sensation of sitting on needles and pins. Its battles of brute and beast rise to an exciting climax—comedy relief suddenly steps in just when the nerves are on edge, and these animals serve up humor just as nonchalantly as they had handed out their big dramatic moments.

The picture, furnishing top screen entertainment along with a stellar vaudeville bill at RKO Keith's, is the best of all the nature films. There are several reasons for this. One is the directness and simplicity of this drama of lights and shadows. Then the the scenes have been most expertly put together. The animals are left to play out their parts of hero and comedian; the human touch is so adroit it is unfelt or merely incidental. Frank Buck's brisk talk is another asset, his running comment serving as a pleasing and unobtrusive background. From the voice one judges Buck to be a man of modesty; from the picture, one quickly finds him a man of iron nerve.

Still another point. This film is different from others of its type, in that Buck is not out to kill, but to capture—he is to bring them back alive for the zoos and circuses. This is an underlying thought that begets a quicker and a keener audience sympathy and interest.

"Bring 'Em Back Alive" bears no apparent touch of Hollywood at any stage. That is strongly in its favor. If at times we suspect the interweaving of scenes in tense periods, there are so many other plainly genuine and greater thrills that suspicion is soon overwhelmed by being brought face to face with the fiercest struggles eye could witness outside of jungleland.

Some of the highlights of "Bring 'Em Alive" have already been told about on this page. There is a fight between a black leopard—or is it a panther?—and a tiger. Another between a tiger and a lion, still another between a python and a crocodile. For us, the peak of emotional interest came in watching the python's coil tightening until this Sheeri Khan was gasping for breath—and in the end, even to greater degree, in the short but gripping contest between the bull buffalo and the tiger.

This is a picture truly worth seeing; none should miss it. It is drama in the raw, stark at times, comic in spells, and always interesting. We are going to see it again, which is more than we can say of most movies.

The variety bill is one of the best yet. The stage show is generous as to talent and length. For headliners there are Queenie Smith, star of musical comedies, winsoma and capable, teamed up with the agile Harry Puck. Their act goes over big. Gus Van gets a tumult of applause with his songs, and the Diamond Brothers, a clever trio of smoke-out chaps, simply stop the show.

Jane and Katherine's chatter and patter and harmonize and have the audience with them all the way. Roxy and Joseph La Rocca are a rousing success with their harps, which they handle in masterly fashion. Winnie and Dolly, with a novel setting for their acrobatics, and Ralph Olsen and two girls in a dancing turn, complete the quality bill.

World War Drama Is Portrayed on Screen

Exeter Theater

Barbara Stanwyck in "So Big," and Conway Tearle in "Vanity Fair," are the attractions for today and tomorrow at the Exeter. The last half of the week Loretta

Slim Timblin Star at Boston

Gala and gold is the word for the diverting bill at the RKO Boston this week. Class is the keynote of the features on stage and screen. As the star of the footlight revue, "Frivolities," Slim Timblin, a favorite hereabouts as everywhere, pours out the fun with a lavish hand. He gets tremendous applause, too.

Timblin has new gags and puts them all over perfectly. The whole revue sparkles brightly. Tom and Betty Wonder are expert dancers; the boy—he seems just that—is the same who, if memory serves correctly, stopped a musical show at one of the "legit" houses last winter.

On the silver sheet is a very entertaining murder mystery thriller, "By Whose Hand?" The star is Ben Lyon.

DICKEY SUSPENDED FOR SLUGGING REYNOLDS

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

Mr. Boston

I WAS FOR CALLING a federal investigation to find out where "Gentleman" Jack Washburn got the 10 grand he posted with the Boston Evening American for a title bout with Henri DeGlane or for a battle with Gus Sonnenberg until Toots Mondt submitted a list of statistics.

Personally I have never been very strong for statistics. Like insanity and handwriting experts, you can prove whatever you want to with statistics. One might even be able to show that Massachusetts and New Jersey are bone dry.

Toots Mondt has come forth with a very strong argument in regard to Washburn's financial standing. He has produced figures showing that "Gentleman" Jack has dragged in $310,000 at the box office in various parts of the country during the past year.

I say $310,000 is a whole lot of money. It would even be a flock of dough in Mexican currency.

Wrestlers like Washburn receive a 25 per cent slice of the gate receipts. This would make "Gentleman" Jack's end $77,500. As a member of the Mondt-Curley league in good standing, Washburn has had a manager. No respectable manager of wrestlers would sink so low as to take less than 50 per cent of the spoils. There are some managers of boxers who are satisfied with 33 1-3 to 40 per cent of the jack, but pilots of wrestlers consider that kind of money short dough.

On a 50-50 split Washburn ended up with $38,750. Out of that amount he had to pay doctors' bills, hand over a few dollars to bondsmen, as well as take care of some checks at ritzy night clubs.

Anyhow Washburn has proved, with the aid of Mondt, how he is able to have a reserve of 10 grand without having had a tin box or robbed a bank.

THEY SAY MONEY talks. Then it is about time that Londos, DeGlane, Sonny or some other highly touted wrestler gave that 10 grand forfeit some consideration. I know former millionaires who would permit Washburn to sock them on the button in front of a crowd on State st. if they were even permitted to look at 10 grand for 10 seconds.

The fact Washburn licked Charley Strack, and more than held his own with Ed Don George proved that the fellow can wrestle as well as sign healthy checks. I used to consider Washburn king of the fat heads, but if he keeps winning and the prima donnas continue to dodge him I am liable to get sold on the idea he is the best wrestler in the world. And wouldn't my old pal Henri DeGlane, not to mention Jim Londos, get quite angry if I were to proclaim Washburn champion. And during July dog days even a humble sports writer is liable to do most anything. Especially when one cannot get good beer with which to cool one's thirst.

LOU SMITH, WHO owns the splendid race track at Rockingham Park, Salem, N. H. believes that New Hampshire will legalize pari-mutuel betting. Governor Ritchie of Maryland recently pointed out that his State received $3,000,000 in taxes from the pari-mutuel machines at Bowie and Pimlico. Kentucky, Illinois, Florida and Louisiana have also enriched their State treasuries from their cut at the pari-mutuel machines.

Folks in New Hampshire now bet through the bootleg system. They place their money with bookmakers who never pay more than 15 to 1, and who sometimes hop the fence when the going gets tough. I don't think the thousands of unemployed in New Hampshire would register a protest if a state tax on pari-mutuel betting was turned over to aid them.

ODONNE PIAZZA, who went to the finals with Gorilla Jones in the National Boxing Association's middleweight tournament, will try to win the New England title when he tangles up with Leo Larivee of Waterbury, Ct., at an Argonne A. A. show at Fenway Park on Thursday night. Piazza was beaten by Larivee when the latter first busted into Boston, but he says he will now even up the score.

Vittorio Livan, who is in the same fistic stable with Piazza, will take on Bud Mignault of Brockton in a six-round bout. I think the six-session affair between Jack Sigmore of Cambridge and Ted Sandwina of New York is also entitled to a tumble.

THE TREMENDOUS reception Jack Sharkey received from the 26,000 persons who attended the unemployment carnival at Braves Field last week has caused the world's heavyweight champion to notify Matchmaker Jimmy Johnston of the New York Garden that he would like to defend his title in this city. Braves Field, with seats on the ground, could accommodate 80,000 persons at a title contest, which is 10,000 more than were jammed into the Garden Bowl the night Sharkey won the title from Schmeling.

Massachusetts also permits 15-round bouts when a world's title is at stake. Lou Brouillard won the world's welterweight championship from Young Jack Thompson at the Boston Garden over the Derby route.

The late Tex Rickard was planning a world's championship bout in Boston just before he passed on. I talked the matter over with Tex and agreed with him that the Hub was ready for a major league fight promotion.

Philadelphia was never considered as good a fight city as Boston, but drew $1,500,000 with the first Dempsey-Tunney bout.

Sharkey is under contract to defend his title under the direction of the New York Garden on or before June 30, 1933. I cast my vote for a Boston title match.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

MACKS LACK OLD URGE TO WIN

By JOE CASHMAN

Maybe there's something, after all, to the theory that baseball success can grow tiresome.

This chronicler never before put much faith in the claim that the principal reason why every great team invariably slows up after two or three seasons at the top is because it becomes fed up on victory and loses its incentive to occupy the throne.

He always held that no group of professional athletes could grow apathetic toward a purse of gold of the size which awaits major league pennant winners and has ascribed every decline of a championship outfit either to the heavy toll Father Time levies on diamond performers or to the fact that its conqueror was the superior club.

The current American League race, however, makes him doubt much of this.

If the Philadelphia Athletics, defending champions, haven't grown weary of setting the pace, it's next to impossible to explain the eight-game lead enjoyed by the New York Yankees.

A's as Strong as Yanks, in Paper Comparison

The McCarthymen who had their troubles taking three games out of five from our lowly Red Sox in the most recent series at the Fens aren't eight games or half that many stronger than the Macks, who were prevented by rain from showing in a double-header here yesterday.

In fact, on paper the A's shape up as every bit as strong as the Gothamites.

And the claim that the three champions have alowed up and the apparent strength of their lineup in print is grossly deceiving while no doubt true, doesn't mean a thing in this particular case.

Naturally, the A's aren't as great as they were three years back. The passing seasons have lessened the effectiveness of many of the Mackian stars who were at their peak in 1929.

But this is just as true, if not more so, of the Yanks. The backbone of the New York club is composed of Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Tony Lazzeri, and Earl Combs, all of whom helped bring three pennants in a row to New York before the A's became rulers of the baseball universe.

And the new men Connie Mack has picked up in the past three years are much younger and classier on the whole than the New York additions.

The A's have Cramer, Coleman, Roettger, Williams, McNair and Freitas, among others, all of whom stepped in from the minors and are still improving.

A's Have Not Slipped More Than Yanks

The Yanks have added Joe Sewell, who has been around close to 15 years; Charlie Ruffing and Danny MacFayden, both of whom earned their big league spurs long prior to '29, and Lynn Lary, a weak hitter and not so hot a shortstop. They're not getting better. Lefty Gomez and Ben Chapman represent about all the new, young and promising Yankee strength.

In other words, the A's have deteriorated, but not any more, it as much, as the Yanks.

All of which tends to indicate that lack of incentive on the part of the Macks is chiefly accountable for the Yanks being so far in front, and that while a 10-game lead on Independence Day usually means a smooth road to the pennant for the leaders, the champions may still turn the American League race from a New York parade into a tense struggle, if they can recapture their old ambition to be lords of all they survey.

Though this is an open date for both the Sox and the A's, they will not play off either of the holiday postponements this p. m. The tilts will be staged as part of double-headers when the Macks return here in August.

The rain was another very bad break for Bob Quinn. The box prexy could find plenty of use for the money that would have passed into the Sox offices had the weather been good.

On the other hand, Manager Marty McManus had plenty of cause to be thankful when he saw the no-game sign hung up. He would have been in a terrible fix for pitchers had the games been played.

After the two-day layoff, however, the Red Stockings should be all in good form for the series with the St. Louis Browns which opens tomorrow.

LEVINSKY BUBBLE

Dempsey Bowl, Reno, Nev., July 5 (US)—The King Levinsky myth went up into the rifled Nevada atmosphere here when he was decisively beaten by Mr. Baer of California in twenty slow rounds.

It is approximately 8,000 spectators looked on in the wooden bowl named after a really great fighter, Jack Dempsey. Baer took the wind out of the king's sails with a terrific body attack that made the Chicagoan virtually helpless in the later rounds.

The fight proved a financial flop, for there was barely $25,000 in the house.

Of the 20 rounds, Baer won 15, Levinsky three and two were even. It was just that onesided.

SOLON-YANK BATTLE ONE OF MANY

By RILEY GRANNON

The 10 per cent salary cut most bg leaguers are reported to be suffering this season has robbed them of none of their enthusiasm.

In fact, they are taking the game more seriously than ever judging from the numerous fights that have taken place.

In the past few years the athletes for some reason or other all turned gentlemen. They just refused to swap even harsh words.

This season, however, hardly a week has gone by without a good old fashioned slugfest on some major league diamond.

The battle in Washington yesterday between Bill Dickey, Yankee catcher, and Carl Reynolds, Senator outfielder, was the most

NOT ENOUGH SAYS ANGRY GRIFFITH

New York, July 5 (INS)—Bill Dickey, New York Yankees catcher, has been indefinitely suspended by William Harridge, president of the American League, for his fight yesterday with Carl Reynolds, Senators' outfielder, in a game in Washington, according to word received here today.

The suspension was expected in baseball circles, since Reynolds suffered a broken jaw and will be out of the game for about six weeks.

Clark Griffith, president of the Senators, filed a protest with Harridge yesterday.

Senators' President Is Not Satisfied

Washington, July 5—"That's not sufficient punishment," loudly proclaimed President Clark Griffith of the Senators when he was informed that Bill Dickey, Yankee catcher, had been suspended indefinitely by President Will Hartridge of the American League for his attack on Carl Reynolds, Solons' outfielder, yesterday.

Griff was just leaving the Georgetown Hospital after a visit to Reynolds, who is confined to the institution with a broken jaw.

"What about the doctor's and hospital bills," the Old Fox demanded. "I shouldn't be forced to pay them in addition to losing Reynolds' services for several weeks and possibl losing the pennant as a result of his absence. And certainly Carl shouldn't be asked to stand the expense.

"I never witnessed such an unwarranted attack in my life," he continued. "Such cowardly actions on the ball field must stop. They never will, however, as long as the offenders are let off with an indefinite suspension. Why, one day off could be ruled an indefinite suspension.

"Dickey should be kept out of the game just as long as Reynolds, should be handed the maximum fine and should be forced to pay all of Reynolds' bills.

"And I'm going to demand all of this."

Killilea First in Fogg Post Run

Joe Killilea of Hyde Park, B. C. football player, starting at scratch with a field of 17 runners, won the five-mile road race of the Cecil W. Fogg post, 72, American Legion, yesterday. Killilea's time was just 30 minutes flat.

Alvan C. Porter, running for Falcon A. C. was second, with Bernard King of the Manor A. A., third.

THOMAS STOPS FALLING HAIR

Hair in your comb and brush means that your scalp is not physically able to withstand the ravishing attacks of the baldness producing germs. Unless you immediately rid your scalp of these causes of abnormal hair fall, you are bound to become bald.

Thomas treatment overcomes the causes of falling hair and gently stimulates the oily glands, deep in the scalp, which cause hair to grow normally. When Thomas treatment starts, hair fall stops, dandruff ends and hair grows again as Nature intended it should grow. Thomas treatment is reliable, dignified and proved by more than 16 years of success. HAPPY SCOT 1ST IN CARTER 'CAP

Aqueduct Race Track, N. Y., July 5 (US)—Happy Scot, the property and pet of Adm. Cary T. Grayson, proved the gamest in the famous Carter handicap at Aqueduct and won the $6,100 classic by a neck from Mr. Sponge. Pompeius was third, a few lengths to the rear.

Marcel Thil Beats Harvey in Ring Go

London, July 4 (US)—Marcel Thil, French world champion middleweight boxer, defended his title successfully at the White City Stadium, defeating Len Harvey, British middleweight champion, on points. The fight went 15 rounds.

Thil won his title recently by defeating Al Jones, Panama-American Negro who was recognized as holder of the middleweight title by the American National Boxing Board.

BIG INNINGS Game

The Big Innings is growing!

For the first game there were thousands of entries, but for the present week, entries for which closed last Friday at midnight, the number of those trying the game was doubled.

There is one new rule for the game. In the future, including this week's game, when more than one inning is high for the day, the lowest of the high innings ONLY will count in the prize awards. If, for example, the first, third and fifth innings are tied for high for a day, only the first will count in making prize awards.

The winning combination for last week was 7-2-1-3-4 or 6-5 or 6. Anyone who submitted the prize winning combinations of four, five and six numbers, according to the rules of the contest, is asked to communicate with Big Innings Contest editor, Sports department, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq. Call Liberty 4000.

Winners are obliged to identify themselves, and the combination submitted, and then their entries will be checked before any awards are made.

Orleans Blanks Harwich Nine, 5-2

Orleans, July 5—Orleans shut out Harwich, 5 to 0, here, while Barnstable defeated Falmouth, 5 to 1, in the morning game at Hyannis in the Cap Cod league. The afternoon games between the same teams were rained out.

STANFORD COACH HITS EASTERNERS' "PLOT"

Charges Timers With Slow Clockings

San Francisco, July 5 (US)—Charges made by R. L. "Dink" Templeton, Stanford University coach, that a conspiracy of eastern timers had resulted in deliberate slow clocking of runners in the I. C. 4-A track and field meet finals at Berkeley Saturday brought indignant denials today from Mortimer Bishop, head timer.

"We timed those races as they were run," he snapped.

Templeton advanced the theory that the eastern timers wished to "show up" the western timers, and consequently belittle western track records. Ralph Proctor, lone western official timer, and non-officials who held watches, are declared to have clocked faster times than the official ones in a number of events.

It was complained that the eastern timers waited until the runner's body was across the finish line before stopping their watches. Instead of doing so when the tape was cracked.

Record's 15 Seconds Victory Cited

San Francisco, Cal., July 5 (INS)—Verbal fireworks popped here as an aftermath of the I. C. 4-A track and field meet finals at Berkeley, Saturday.

"Dink" Templeton, Stanford University coach, said:

"There was a silly conspiracy on among the Eastern timers to show the West up," Templeton declared. "However, they cut off their noses to spite their faces, for now the ridiculously slow marks of the I. C. 4-A's have gone out all over the world, making the I. C. 4-A athletes appear bad, among them several Eastern stars, who didn't deserve such treatment any more than our men."

Templeton particularly pointed out finger of scorn at the 9.8 mark of Frank Wykoff, University of Southern California flash, in the 100-yard dash; the 47 seconds flat record of William Carr, Pennsylvania quarter-miler, who defeated Ben Eastman, and the 15-second 120-yard high hurdle victory credited to Eugene Record of Harvard.

"Nearly every man in the high hurdles," Templeton said, "could do better than 15 seconds, yet Record, the champion, with a perfect start and a beautiful race, was given that awful time.

"And in the quarter mile a number of competent men clocked Carr at 46.5. That's really what he made, instead of 47. Wykoff ran 9.8 in the hundred, too. It's the limit to think that he'd turn in his slowest time of the year in the great condition he was in, especially when he beat Bob Kiesel, who hasn't run 9.8 hundred for months, and Dick Hardy of Colorado, who qualified in 9.7."

Bishop and Gus Kirby, head of the I. C. 4-A, declared Templeton's charges as "unfounded."

"We timed those races as they were run," Bishop snapped.

JOE M'CLUSKEY FAVORED TO WIN 'CHASE

By LAWSON ROBERTSON
Chief Coach American Olympic Team

Berkeley, Cal., July 5—There will be staged at Edwards Stadium this afternoon five contests that will be in the nature of semifinals for the Olympics.

They are the 4000 meters hurdle, [illegible] meters steeplechase, 5000 meters run, 10,000 meters run and hop step and jump. There was some thought originally to card these events as specials and make them a part of the intercollegiate 4-A championships.

This idea was discarded because many of the collegians who participated in the 120 and 220 hurdles as well as some of the jumpers and distance runners want to try for these honors. It would have been asking too much of the boys to perform in the regular I C 4-A races and also in these endurance contests.

The 400-meter hurdle is obsolete so far as the U. S. A. is concerned, but is kept in the Olympic program. It is a gruelling form of contest and punishes the boys considerably because of the call that it makes on speed and durability.

Joe McCluskey Ace of 'Chase Entrants

The 3000 meters steeplechase seems to be at the mercy of Joe McCluskey of Fordham this afternoon. The 5000 and 10,000 meters are rather open races, so is the hop step and jump.

After the contests this afternoon the eastern squad that came here for the I C 4-A game will begin to disband. The men who finished 1, 2, 3 will go to Palo Alto and begin training up for the Olympic trout finals there on the 15th and 16th.

Beyond Bill Carr's feat in outrunning Ben Eastman in the 440 nothing much happened in the Intercollegiate 4-A finals Saturday that was very contrary to expectations.

Hallowell Loses in Mile by Half an Inch

Eastman ran true in form in winning the 880, Penrose Hallowell, the choice to win the mile, was beaten by half an inch by Joe V. Mangan. The latter rated well up and some of the coaches chose him ahead of Hallowell.

Joe McCluskey was the unanimous choice to win the two-mile and he delivered. Gene Record, the choice to win the high hurdles, came through.

McDougall, of Penn, who was figured to win the hammer throw was the only man among the 15 nominees of the coaches who failed to finish better than second.

This shows that the Western stars are at the peak of their form and that the Eastern invaders lost none of their fitness by the trip across the continent and that they retain their condition despite a climatic change.

When Track Coach Claims Runners Were Two-Timed

BOB KIESEL, 1ST — FRANK WYKOFF, 2ND

Here is Kiesel, California sprint ace, edging Frank Wykoff in the IC 220 final, in 21.3 seconds. Wykoff had beaten Kiesel in the 100 so this race evened things. "Dink" Templeton, Stanford coach, claims the runners were two-timed. "Dink" says eastern timers waited until the runners crossed the line. Western timers snapped watches when chests touched the tape. DOUBLE WIN GIVES TRIBE 2D PLACE

St. Louis, Mo., July 5—Boston's Braves, still the biggest surprise of the current campaign, open their second western invasion in a three-game series with the world's champion Cardinals here tomorrow.

The Warriors arrive here in second place, the same berth they held down on their first visit to the Mound City, when they took two games out of three from the Streetmen.

They began to slump when the local entry went to Boston and evened scores by taking two out of three, and it looked last Sunday as though they would soon drop into the second division, but yesterday, with a double defeat meaning a possible drop into fifth place, they rallied to win a pair from the Phillies and climb back into second, only one game back of the pace-setting Pirates.

Consequently the visitors can no longer be regarded as anything but m. serious pennant contenders.

The McKechnie outfit had its troubles winning the first game from the Quakers, 8 to 6, but it ran away with the nightcap, 9 to 0, behind the five-hit pitching of Harry "Socks" Seibold, who previously hadn't pitched a first class game for weeks.

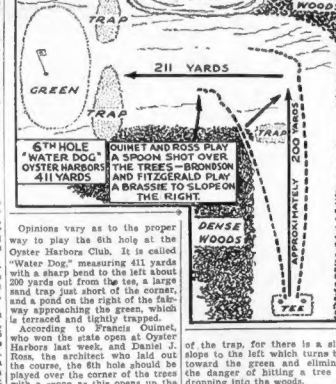
OLYMPIC CREWS TUNE FOR TEST

Worcester, Mass., July 5 (INS)—With the eight-oared Olympic crew tryouts two days away, six eights sprinted up and down Lake Quinsigamond today while two others were arriving and another was expected Wednesday.

Workout drills were scheduled for Princeton and Penn A. C. oarsmen as soon as possible after they arrived today.

Golf Heart-Breakers Near Boston

No. 6 at Oyster Harbors



Opinions vary as to the proper way to play the 6th hole at the Oyster Harbors Club. It is called "Water Dog," measuring 411 yards with a sharp bend to the left about 200 yards out from the tee, a large sand trap just short of the corner, and a pond on the right of the fairway approaching the green, which is terraced and lightly trapped.

According to Francis Ouimet, who won the state open at Oyster Harbors last week, and Daniel J. Ross, the architect who laid out the course, the 6th hole should be played over the corner of the trees with a spoon as this opens up the hole and makes a comparatively easy second shot to get home.

Ray Brondson, the pro at Oyster Harbors and John J. Fitzgerald, who is general manager of the club and one of the leading amateurs in the state claim the best results are obtained by playing a brassie from the tee over the right hand corner of the trap, for there is a slight slope to the left which turns balls toward the green and eliminates the danger of hitting a tree and dropping into the woods.

Brondson and Fitzgerald agree that the yardage gained by cutting the corner is offset by the risk of not getting sufficient carry in a spoon shot to clear the woods.

'Twixt Tee and Cup

By BILL GRIMES

One of the most popular and best conducted tournaments of the season, the Winchester four-ball invitation, starts with an 18-hole qualifying round tomorrow, after which the field will be divided into five divisions for two days or match play.

Not only does the Winchester invitation attract exceptionally fast fields annually, but C. Harry Bowler, who is now the major domo of the club, is a past master in the science of conducting tournaments. In fact, Harry Bowler is mainly responsible for the success of this annual event as well as the father and son tournament.

It was laughable to listen to some of the professionals at Oyster Harbor predicting that Francis Ouimet would crack during the final round. If some of the invaders who figured that Ouimet was due to break down under the strain were fortified with the steel nerves of the national amateur champion, they would be touring the country playing exhibitions on the strength of some major blue.

During the final round at Oyster Harbors, Wiffy Cox and Bobby Cruickshank resorted to more than the usual amount of comedy in order to keep relaxed. However, Cox finally broke down, for with two holes to go and needing par to tie Ouimet, he finished one over at both the 71st and 72d holes.

In all probability John Ford played more sensational shots than any player in the Massachusetts open at Oyster Harbors. John did not score well, but he was the talk of the championship because of his wonderful recoveries.

There is no better sportsman in the professional ranks than Johnny Farrell. Regardless of whether he is going good or bad, Johnny always plays the game, and he is a credit to golf.

Headed by Francis Ouimet, Jesse Guilford, Bill Blaney, Joe Lynch, Emery P. Stratton, most of the leading amateurs of the state will play in the Marshfield Country Club open this week end.

LYNN EIGHT IS N. E. CHAMP

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

James Hildebrand, freshman at Syracuse University, gave notice that Jim Ten Eyck, coach of the Orange navy, is going to have a good stroke-oar next season in the 46th annual regatta of the New England Amateur Rowing Association on the Charles River Basin.

Young Hildebrand stroked the West Lynn eight-oared shell to a four-length victory over the highly-favored Riverside crew in the N. E. A. R. A. feature as craft of every description cluttered up the ruffled Charles in the annual carnival.

The West Lynn-Riverside match race was over the Henley distance, one mile and 550 yards, and Hildebrand and his crew-mates took the lead after the first quarter and gradually pulled away.

There were seven rowing events and eleven canoe events in the festivities which started early in the a. m. and finished late in the afternoon. The competition itself was exciting.

Although the Riversides fell before West Lynn in their match race they won two other rowing events. Samosets cleaned up in the canoe events with 36 points while the Crescents had 30 and Breeds' 29.

N. E. A. R. A. champions for 1932 are:

STARS BREAK RULES WITH NO PENALTY

By BILL GRIMES

After many of Bobby Jones' successful conquests in open championships, the professionals were both bitter and loud in their denunciations of the powers that be for alleged favoritism, which they claimed were in no small measure responsible for the Atlanta wizard leading the pack.

At the conclusion of the Massachusetts open championship last week at Oyster Harbor, the shoe would have been on the other foot had either Bobby Cruickshank or Wiffy Cox carried away the title.

During the final round Bobby Cruickshank played a beautiful shot from the trap to the left of the fourth green, his ball stopping about five feet beyond the cup and in a direct line with Cox's putt. While Bobby was climbing out of the trap, Cox marked, lifted his (Cruickshank's) ball and tossed it to the little Scot.

As Herman Barron, who was also to the left of the green was deciding upon the shot to play, Cruickshank dropped his ball on the green, took a practice putt, his ball rolling about the distance of the putt he was to make.

No Official on Spot to Penalize Infraction

Such actions are in direct violation of the rules of golf, but there was no official on hand to enter a protest, although the foul was noted and commented upon by one of the most prominent women golfers in this state who was following the match.

Later on, the 13th hole, Cruickshank was in the rough from the sea and within a club length of a water pipe, enabling him a free lift and drop, which he took, but as he rolled so close to a tree that it was impossible for him to take his stance.

He dropped again, claiming that his ball was still within a club length of a pipe.

After hitting a tree with his club head, in a fit of temper Cruickshank finally took his stance and played the shot which went into the trap to the right of the green as he came out of the rough. Cruickshank complimented himself upon not having claiming that any other player in the field would have taken his ball well away from any interference.

M. G. A. Officials to Act on Cox Case

Wiffy Cox, the defending champion, should have been disqualified, after he had posted his first round score, but through the failure of the M. G. A. officials to investigate the rumors, he was allowed to play through and left Oyster Harbors with $350.

A year ago, during the caddy championship, little Tommie Quinn, a 15-year-old boy and as honest and trustworthy as any one who ever swung a club, was disqualified for removing a stick on a hazard. Although the officials stalled on the Cox case, they had no time at The Country Club, taking second place in the caddy ranks from Tommie Quinn.

In removing the stick from the road at Oyster Harbors, Wiffy Cox committed a deliberate foul, the obstacle was in a direct line of his shot, while Quinn's act was more of a nervous, exciting or an item of relaxation, while a ball was being marked on the green and took place 20 feet or more to the right of where he was to chip back to the green.

Wiffy Cox was allowed to remain in the championship because he is one of the so-called "Big Shots" and the defending champion.

Until such a time as golf in this state is placed under the supervision of officials, who are able to display as much courage when called upon to rule against a star as they pretend to have when rendering decisions against caddies, the Royal and Ancient game will continue to suffer.

A HITTING FOOL

FIVE HOMERS BRING BID FOR ARLETT

Baltimore, July 5 — Major league telescopes were trained on Baltimore today, getting a close peek at Buzz Arlett, Oriole outfielder who set a record of five home runs in an International League holiday game against Reading.

At one time a member of the Phillies, Arlett flunked in the big leagues because, although he could hit to the queen's taste, he was guilty of catching too many flies with his head, and fond of resting in one spot in the outfield.

Now all is forgiven, and it is understood that Arlett is entertaining offers from an unnamed major league club. The Oriole officers admit, however, that they have received bids for Arlett.

Arlett's five home-run clouts, establishing a record unequalled even by the great Babe Ruth, was the second strenuous effort on the part of the Oriole outfielder. Earlier in the season, he hit four homers in one game.

"The greatest turn-around hitter that ever entered baseball," is the opinion of John McGraw, late manager of the New York Giants. He was speaking of the batting ability of "Buzz" Arlett.

BUZZ ARLETT

GRIPS BAT AT END

Diamond Dust

BY JOE CASHMAN

There's only one game scheduled in either big league today, the Giants being booked to play the league-leading Pirates in Pittsburgh.

A big piece was sliced off the Yankees' lead in the American League race on the holiday, Washington taking a doubleheader from the McCarthymen and reducing their advantage to seven as a half games. A home run by Joe Cronin with one on gave the Solons a 5 to 3 win in the opener and broke an 11-game winning streak of Vernon "Lefty" Gomes.

A fist fight also enlivened the morning game between the Pirates and Cubs. Marvin Gudat, pinch-hitting, reached and was forced at second in the eighth inning.

He didn't exactly like the way Floyd Vaughn, young Bucs shortstop, blocked him, so he hauled off and cracked the kid on the jaw. He received a wallop in return before other players broke the melee up. Neither Marvin nor Floyd, strange to names for fighters, was banished.

The Pirates won that game and came back in the afternoon to overcome a three-run lead and win out, 6 to 5, in 11 innings. Thus the Cubs dropped below the Braves into third place.

Earl Whitehill, veteran Detroit southpaw, turned in the best pitching performance of the season to date when he held the Browns to one hit in the first game of a doubleheader, both ends of which were grabbed off by the Tigers, 2 to 0, and 13 to 7.

A single by Goose Goslin was the only safety the little portsider permitted. The double win sent the Tigers back into second place by a narrow margin over the A's who were idle in Boston.

The only twin-bill that was divided saw the White Sox whip the Indians 2 to 1 in the first game and lose the second to Wes Ferrell, 4 to 2.

The lowly Reds whipped the world's champion Cardinals, 7 to 3, in the first game and came from behind in the second to tie the count 3 to 3, and keep it that way until darkness halted the contest at the end of the 13th frame. Dazy Dean pitched for the Cards in the second game.

DICKEY'S WAR ON REYNOLDS COWARDLY

serious, but it was only one of many that has disturbed baseball officials and blighted baseball fans since the race began.

A few weeks ago, Umpire George Moriarty became tangled up with several White Sox players. He pinned a K. O. on Mitt Gaston, restwelled Sox mound ace, and took plenty of punishment in return from Catcher Charlie Berry, brother ex-Pennsylvanian. Manager Lou Fonseca and Catcher Charlie Grube

Myer-Gehrig Fracas Hush-Hushed

Earlier in the season in Washington, Buddy Myer choked Lou Gehrig. For some reason or other, little publicity was given to that fracas.

There hasn't been a serious battle on either local park, but that's not the fault of the players. Catcher Al Spohrer of the Braves and Joe Stripp, Reds infielder, had to be separated by Umpires on one occasion, and soon after, at Fenway Park, Catcher Eddie Connolly of the Sox and Jimmy Dykes, A's third sacker, had many a hearty lamdoncher and Dick Bartell, peppery Phils' shortstop.

Players Lose Heads Easily

Athletes are bound to get excited and lose their temper occasionally in the heat of battle and little fault can be found with them if they occasionally go primitive and start taking pot shots and one another.

Such a cowardly attack as took place in Washington hasn't been witnessed in a big league park since Earl Smith then catching for the Pirates, sneaked up on Dave Bancroft, then second baseman of the Braves, after a crash at the plate and knocked Banny cold.

Old" received a 30-day suspension for that and Banny escaped without a broken jaw.

Clark Griffith's demand that Dickey be suspended until Reynolds is able to play again seems fair, though whether President Will Harridge will agree remains to be seen.

He has an excuse to let Dickey off lightly since umpire Hildebrand handshed Reynolds as well. Which was a mistake, for now that he considered the union had done something out of his way.

The arbiter should see this now, saying that Reynolds had done nothing wrong and was banished merely because it takes two to make a fight.

Yanks Hate to Take It

Dickey's outburst is further proof that what the Yanks may be a great ball club, they don't like to take it.

When they are winning they're fine but when the opposition gets a little tough they grow sullen and angry. They can't understand why they aren't allowed to win every game by the score of 20 to 1 or more.

To get even for Johnson's insult to Dickey here sunday, George Pipgras tried to "duel" the Sox five, chased off when he next came to bat.

The Yanks will be wrecked if they keep up those tactics. They may be the best ball players in the league, but when it comes to rough stuff any number of teams can give them a run for their money if they continue to go around with a chip on their collective shoulders there won't be enough of them able to play ball to keep them on top.

TRACK FAST FOR GRAND CIRCUIT

Cleveland, July 5 (AP)—Favorable weather was forecast for today's Grand Circuit program at North Randall track after a muddy track forced postponement yesterday of the two main events.

Both of the postponed races were on today's card, the $12,500 stallion stake for three-year-old trotters, and the ever-popular free-for-all pace.

The latter event drew six of the fastest side-wheelers in the world including Jay Eg, Gratlan, 3 594, winner of the $25,000 American pacing Derby in 1930 and Winnipeg Boy, 1:57¾, the fastest pacer of all time.

AUTO RACKET OF DRY AGENTS REVEALED

By THE MASKED REPORTER
Copyright, 1932, by the Boston Evening American

You may have been interested "no end," as we of old Soho say, in the antics of the white-pants federal boys who were out digging up liquor evidence over the holidays—but let old Ali "Azed-in-the-Woods" Hassan tell you a story.

Whether they knew it or not, local prohibition men have had the peek put on them by a curious squad from Washington during the past week in connection with automobiles seized in connection with liquor cases, and it was a very interesting peek so far as one local high official goes.

The investigation of the Washington man has uncovered here a nice little racket which is practiced not only in New England but throughout the country by the boys who used to be called federal prohibition agents but who, only last, week, were promoted in appreciation to something sounding a bit more Mayfair.

SEIZED AUTOS HANDY

High ranking officers of the federal prohibition service for years have been making a practice of converting to their own use—and the use of friends and relatives—high-priced automobiles seized for alleged violations of the national prohibition act.

Politicians who are relied on for strength and a sturdy shoulder at the wheel in times of stress have also benefitted greatly by the lefthanded conversion of the high-priced automobiles, one of which were confiscated only after certain facts were forced to give perjured testimony in federal court.

It has been learned by your Masked Reporter that one of the highest ranking prohibition authorities in this area has had for several months, for his own personal use, a high-grade automobile that's only a few days after it was purchased, brand new.

At the time the car was seized, according to the report in the hands of the federal investigators at Washington, the agents making the seizure turned in a report that they had not seen the car's owner in the machine.

PERJURY ORDERED

Nevertheless according to the investigators' report the service agents, who took the car because a small amount of alcohol was found in it, were ordered by the man who now uses the automobile to testify in federal court that they had seen the owner drive up to the curb and leave the car only a short time before the seizure.

This was done by the agents, and when the case ended the owner was found guilty and the car was ordered confiscated.

The exact language of the official to the agents under him was according to the information:

"Get this car. We want it."

Not only has this high-priced machine, practically new, been used by the ranking prohibition official ever since, but it has also been used by members of his family and by one related swain who has taken—one by one, of course—several Wellesley College students out for a bit of parking and a bit of sparking.

Over a period of six years, six cars of this type have been found by the investigators to have been put to illegal uses during the time sold for the benefit of the United States treasury.

In the other direction, influential persons who have become involved in liquor seizures have received their cars back, and in the case of one of the powers, the wrath seemingly was so great instructed to "forget" the fact that he was seated in the machine and was giving testimony, and to return the owner having his car returned.

ANOTHER RACKET

The report to Washington will tell eighteen-there that the well known New England police officials have had, from time to time, the use of seized cars—and for purposes for which they used the cars will be detailed.

Another little discovery made by the Washington men has to do with the protection given to a New England police chief who for 29 months ran booze weekly over a route from the Canadian border into Boston.

The only "unpleasantry" he suffered during all that time was when a prohibition agent who ventured to assert what he believed was his authority stopped the police chief and uncovered his load of duty.

Not only did the police official wriggle out of the pinch in short order, but prohibition officials saw fit to transfer the meddling agent to broader fields where he could not have opportunity again to interfere with the police chief's lucrative "west-end trade."

The cars do not constitute all of the fumadiddles with which higher ranking prohibition officials are concerned in this area and the report of the Washington seekers will contain this and the latest failure of some officials to be true to their souls in regard to various other benefits out of graft.

It is known to me that in at least two instances, two prominent federal prohibition men in the local area have failed to declare all of the many "benefits" that have been listed in the way of properties and securities in the names of families or relatives since the prohibition man joined the service.

Keep your ear to the ground.

Rudy Vallee Won Over to Law Study by Dean Archer

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

New York, July 5 (INS)—Dear Rudy:

Wait a minute before you toss away that megaphone—we're going to tell on you!

We stole into your dressing room between shows, just to say hello, and caught you in the act of—of all things!—studying.

You looked like the night before mid-years at Yale, with your nose buried in a huge book on "criminal law," and your saxophone lying forgotten in a corner.

So it's really true you're going to be a lawyer, Rudy? You admitted it, and it's going to be sad news to the daffydills. What's blowin'?

"But I won't start my practice for about four years," you explained promptly. "There's a lot to learn in the legal profession."

HEARD DEAN ARCHER

Well, we should say there is after one climb at that pile of law books on your mike-up table.

"Whatever gave you the idea, anyway?" we asked. And we must tell the customers what you said:

"Last winter," you began—why, it's just like a novel, Rudy!—I turned on my radio in the dressing room of the Paramount Theatre, and by accident dialed a broadcast of Dean Clarence L. Archer, of Suffolk law school, Boston, lecturing on the laws that safeguard society. Did you ever listen to him?" you asked.

"No, but do go on, go on," we urged.

"I was struck by the simplicity of this particular lecture, and keenly interested, so I listened to others in the same series. Like most people, I labored under the impression that the law was exceedingly dry, intricate and difficult—but I discovered it was no more difficult than the courses I had studied in college," you explained.

SUNS DIVORCE LAW

We know the rest of the story Rudy. You got the book of 36 lectures and began to study them en masse, in your dressing room between numbers on all your spare time. Then you wrote to Dean Archer, and confided that you'd like to be a lawyer, and would he give you some advice? And he wrote right into New York and yesterday you had your first lesson—you learned what happens when a man seeks another man's divorce, you said, laughing.

"I want to be a corporation or a criminal lawyer, in California. I'm very much interested in those two branches," you said.

We suggested divorce lawyer, but you said no, don't you, Rudy?

"I don't like having any connection with gossip or scandal—and divorce is always so unfair to one side," you declared.

We catch on about the California part, we do. That's where you and Fay built that beautiful new home, and you're planning to go out there, leave the stage and the radio, desert the daffydills and become a suburban husband—a private citizen and a lawyer.

Okay, let the saxophone rust. Put the magaphone into an old trunk and save for your grand children. But not yet, Rudy! oooon not yet!

Curator of Royall House Resigns Post

George S. T. Fuller, curator of the Royall House in Medford since the house was purchased by the Royall House Association and opened to the public, has resigned his position and this week will go to Miami, Florida, to establish his home. During his term as curator, more than 16,000 visitors have been entertained at the famous historic house Mr. Fuller's successor has not yet been chosen.

Gronau to Hop Ocean

Hamburg, Germany, July 5 (AP)—Wolfgang von Gronau, who has flown across the ocean twice by way of Greenland, is about to repeat the trip, it was disclosed today. His plane is being taken to the Island of Syit whence the trip will start.

TEXAS FLOODS TAKE 6 LIVES

San Antonio, Tex., July 5 (INS)—Forty feet of water today threatened the town of Gonzales on the banks of the swollen Guadalupe river.

Residents of the lower districts have fled their homes. The business and residential sections of the town, on higher land, were surrounded by the flood waters when last night demolished the Hydro Electric Company's dam four miles up the river.

The flood has already exacted a toll of six. Much property and thousands of acres of farm crops have been destroyed. The damage runs into tens.

Veterans Keep Solid Front, With Spirit Undiminished

By JACK LAIT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, July 5—The Bonus Army staged its second march to the Capitol today to renew its demands for immediate full payment of the soldiers' compensation certificates.

There was little appearance of a break in numbers or spirit of those in the ranks.

Politicians here say the army will evacuate and evaporate when Congress adjourns Saturday. The marchers tell me otherwise.

"Get out, nothing. We're eating oftener and better here than we could at home. I'm going to Wheeling tonight to recruit not less than 150 more of our boys."

ALL ARE DETERMINED

I heard no indignation. But I heard a lot of determination. There were not spite squatters, but principle stickers. One of them said:

"We are here expect to win a thing. But we have already served a high and historic purpose. We have nationalized the unemployment picture. We have made a panorama of it instead of a snapshot. In every locality all of us were aware of the conditions nearby and we thought we had enough to deplore about without thinking of the millions of other Americans past our vision.

"The concentration at Washington has pointed against two broad, far horizon the entire ordeal scene. We took a bad beating this time. But we cannot ever again be forgotten or underestimated. We will win next year. Our cause is peaceful and square.

ALL REAL AMERICANS.

They reveal a tremendous sense of humor and romance and imagination. The Anacostia bivouac or no bivouac, never could have sprung up with, by and for none but Americans. The placards are rich in emotional expression, effigies and miniature graveyards reveal the genius to remain smiling under bitter stress.

One hut is proclaimed "Elsie Robinson Hoot," after that wonderful woman and writer who so eloquently got in line for the boys. Elsie sat beside me in the Stadium in Chicago during the convention and it was she who induced me to come to Washington and cover what she says is the biggest story in the land and is still growing.

FIRE DESTROYS HOUSE

I scarcely think it is a menacing affair any longer, but for color, psychology, significance and manifestation of how broad our nation's grief stretches and how deep it is, it scarcely be overestimated or overwritten.

It is the fraternity of America's unemployed represented in a bi-partisan, but brashly represented. Whites and black mingle, Southerners and Yankees step together, the two coasts meet on one stack of straw.

SOME STORES TO OPEN SATURDAY

A number of men's clothing and other stores will remain open on Saturdays through July and August, the Retail Trade Board announced today in correcting an impression among some shoppers that all retail stores would close in the downtown area.

"A number of men's clothing and other stores will be open as usual on Saturdays during July and August," the board's statement said. "Many Boston department and women's specialty stores will, however, be closed all day Saturday in accordance with the practice of previous years."

Five Men Rescued by Coast Guards

Five men were rescued from dories off Nahant by the Nahant Coast Guard yesterday after rough seas and wind impaired their motors. The two boats were being swept out to sea when crews under Capt Ralph Rich went to their rescue and towed them to shore. They had been fishing.

The men gave their names as Guy Stockwell and Harlan Cummings of Melrose, Robert Sperlman, 21, and Max Weinrob 25, both of Chelsea, and Leonard Ferrari, 23, of Lynn.

SPANISH ROSE SAFE IN PORT

Hamilton, Bermuda, July 5 (AP)—The Bermuda fishing boat, Spanish Rose, which was long overdue in the ocean yacht race from Montauk Point, Long Island, arrived today.

Arrival of Spanish Rose, an unofficial entry in the race, left only the Curlew of Toronto, Dragoo Neck, N. Y., missing. The Curlew has been unreported since she left Montauk Point with the rest of the racing fleet June 25. She is commanded by Nat Blum of New York, and manned by an amateur crew.

Safe arrival of the Spanish Rose renewed hopes that the Curlew also would arrive safely.

SAFE, BATTERED OPEN, IS FOUND IN HARBOR

The safe stolen from the apartment of Miss Josephine Bouchier at 103 Mountfort st., Back Bay, Sunday evening, was recovered by harbor police yesterday from the water between Commonwealth Pier and Merchants and Miners Pier, South Boston.

The thieves shattered the combination but were unable to gain entrance through the door, so they ripped away the bottom of the safe and took money and jewelry. Miss Bouchier, who returned to her home after being away for the week-end, said the money and jewelry stolen from the safe was valued at $325. They recovered the empty jewelry boxes and several papers.

The burglary was one of the most daring staged in some time. The thieves jimmied the door leading to the apartment, pulled a radiator from the wall and removed a shelf from above the safe as well as a bookcase, which concealed it during their work in removing it.

Then they carried it to the sidewalk and into a waiting automobile.

Among the articles taken from the safe were a woman's platinum ring, set with seven diamonds, valued at $100, platinum bracelet, set with five diamonds, value $100; cameo pin, $25; white gold wrist watch, $50; man's gold watch and chain, $15; woman's bracelet, $20, and a $5 and a $10 gold piece.

UNCLE HUNTING KIDNAPED BOHN

St. Paul, July 5 (AP)—William Bohn of Los Angeles, uncle of the kidnaped Haskell Bohn, 20, of St. Paul, was absent today on an unexplained mission, believed to have some connection with the search for the youth.

At the residence of Gebhard Bohn, father of Haskell, it was said William Bohn was not there and it was not revealed where he had gone.

Unconfirmed reports persisted that young Bohn would return home within a day or two. Bohn was seized by two men last Thursday and taken away in an automobile.

LIQUOR FATAL TO WOMAN

Early today police and Medical Examiner Dr. Timothy Leary had been unable to penetrate the veil of mystery surrounding an unidentified woman, about 35 years old, who was found dead in a wash room in a Boston hotel.

No foul play had a part in the death, according to Dr Leary, who, after an autopsy stated that death had been caused by alcoholism and possibly morphine.

Efforts of police to identify the woman failed

60 Million Hidden Loot Found? Maybe! Rod Does Its Stuff

Vancouver, B. C., July 5 (AP)—Word that pirate treasure may shortly be found on Cocos Island has been received by Cocos Island Treasure, Ltd., which sent an expedition to the place last winter

Officers of the company said they had been informed that a divining rod has responded consistently to a metallic discovery over an area of several feet in a creek bed.

The treasure, reputed to be more than $60,000,000 and supposed to have been buried on Cocos Island by Capt. Edward Davis after the sacking of the city of Leon, Nicaragua, in 1685, has long been the object of search.

WANT OLD WEATHER BIRD?

Offers Self for Sale to Get a Job

Sacramento, July 5 (INS)—"How much am I bid?—surely someone can use this old bird!"

With this plea, N. R. Taylor, Sacramento's veteran weather man just retired by the federal government after 32 years of service, offered himself at auction today.

Here is part of his auction block "spiel" in a signed article, titled "For Sale":

"Bid up, please. Surely someone can use this old bird who has spent over half a long life watching the clouds and measuring the sunshine and rain and floods, saving the farmers millions of dollars.

Boston in Hunt for $4000 R. I. Bandits

State troopers and Boston police were watching highways leading from Providence today, following an alarm that five armed bandits were speeding toward this city after holding up the Hathaway Baking offices in North Main st., Providence. TWO KILLED IN GERMANY

Berlin, July 5 (AP)—Two deaths and scores of injuries were added last night to the toll of political clashes throughout Germany

A Communist was shot by police in Berlin when the officers charged a group of battling Communists and National Socialists, and one Nazi was killed at Frankfurt in a clash with Communists.

There were several minor skirmishes in Berlin during the night, in which an undetermined number were injured. A second Nazi was wounded in the fray at Frankfurt.

Two were seriously injured, and many less seriously, in clashes between Nazis and Reichsbannermen at Leipzig. Clashes were also reported at Fruerbach and Forst.

Three deaths and scores of injured was the toll of Sunday's fighting throughout the Reich. The most serious fight developed at Essen, where one man was killed in a fight between Nazis and Communists and a clash between Communists and police ended in the death of one policeman.

CHANGING TIMES DROWN CRY FOR LIBERTY IN NEED FOR RESTRAINT

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

ONE OF THE ADVANTAGES of engineering a column is that when you make a public appearance and wax vocal, you do not have to depend on a harassed city editor for adequate space. The following are my opening remarks at Faneuil Hall yesterday, on the 149th consecutive Independence Day celebration of the City of Boston.

The year 1932 is the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington. The Fourth of July of this year is the one hundred and fifty-sixth anniversary of the Declaration of Independence of the United States of America. It is also, as you have heard, the one hundredth anniversary of the first singing of the hymn "America," written by the Bostonian, Samuel Francis Smith.

Prof. Rogers

It was an interesting year in which the young Harvard graduate, aged 24, wrote his simple but appealing words to fit that simple old English tune. He wrote more lastingly than he knew. Although his hymn has not the picturesque quality nor the emotional power of our official anthem, "The Star Spangled Banner," "America" has for one hundred years been the chosen song of the church, the school and the home, the song of the plain people and, especially, the hymn of the children.

"America" Hymn of Peace

It is a hymn not of war but of peace. It calls to memory the sacrifices and martyrdoms of the fathers of our country; it celebrates the rocks and rills, the woods and templed hills of this country of ours; but always and recurrently its note is liberty and freedom. "Sweet land of liberty," the country favored by that God who is the "author of Liberty," the country in which "Freedom's holy light" is under the protection of His might, who is the God and King of us all.

When young Francis Smith wrote that hymn Washington had been dead less than a generation and there were many living who had fought with him to make these colonies a nation. The triumphant naval war of 1812 was still a living memory. Only six years before, on this very day we celebrate, the two chief sponsors of the Declaration, Adams of Massachusetts and Jefferson of Virginia, had died within a few hours of each other. Only two years ago Andrew Jackson, in the very face of Southern nullification and secession, had proposed his immortal toast: "Our Federal Union, it must be preserved!"

John Marshall, chief justice of the Supreme Court, was still alive and in office, upholding the integrity of the Constitution, against the encroachments of states' rights. For the days in which Samuel Francis Smith lived were no less exciting than ours. The traditions of the old Federalist party, the party of Washington and Madison, Hamilton and Adams, had but recently, in 1828, gone crashing down to defeat under the assault of the new democracy, the democracy of the plain people of the West and South, the pioneers and the backwoodsmen, under the leadership of Old Hickory. Andrew Jackson had smashed the merit system in public office and installed the spoils system, under the theory that any citizen was as good as any other citizen and equally capable of holding office.

Price of Liberty Remembered

In this very year, 1832, Jackson was destroying by his veto power the United States Bank, in the hope that thereby he might take the government out of high finance and big business. He was fighting, not entirely with success, the notorious Tariff of Abominations, the highest tariff bill that time known, the work of the Northern manufacturers and men of commerce. Yet, though his sympathies were with the individual states, the Southern planter and the small farmer and business man, he was American enough to meet South Carolina's Nullification resolutions with his own Nullification Act, which forced the South to reconsider and delay for another generation.

Never think that the America for which young Samuel Smith wrote his famous hymn was uninteresting or lacking its problems. Every problem which perplexes us today existed then, at least in embryo, and the same divided views which trouble us today were even at that time powerful and uncompromising in their opposition.

The theme of Smith's hymn was Liberty and Freedom. We can well understand why this should be so. Less than ten years before President Monroe and John Quincy Adams had served notice on the still feudal autocracies of Europe that the Western Hemisphere was no longer a sphere for European influence and ambition. It is hard for us of today really to understand the reverence, almost the idolatry, with which young America remembered the first declaration of the principles of republican independence, of a free government by a free people, of a free government by representation of its citizens, in a world in which republicanism was still suspect and democracy a beautiful and fantastic dream.

Return to Order Needed Now

By Liberty Samuel Smith meant political Liberty. By Freedom he meant freedom from foreign despotisms. What would he have said, I wonder, if he had been told that the day would come when America, the mightiest nation in the world, would have nothing to fear from any foreign power? What would he have said had he been told that one hundred years later her most pressing and vital problem would be that of internal anarchy and internal disorder—problems which the older dispensation had taken easily and naturally in their stride.

Yet it is true, I believe, that most of the internal problems of this country for the past hundred years have been the fruits of this tremendous emphasis which the Fathers put upon Liberty and Freedom, and of their bland assumption that a free people are so naturally rooted in order and obedience and responsibility that little need be said about these necessary and fundamental qualities of citizenship.

Freedom and Liberty are good and George Washington, who believed in both, made the most of both. But Freedom and Liberty have their corollaries, without which an individual or a people is incomplete, one-sided, unfortunate in his life. We Americans have over-emphasized one side of our great traditional heritage at the expense of the other. Today we are suffering the results of that over-emphasis. We are bewildered, dazed and panic-stricken at what we call our hard luck. It is not luck at all. It is inevitable as mathematics. We need to forget Liberty and Freedom for a time. We have had more than enough of both. Let us return to what Carlyle calls the lesson of the Adamantine Tablets, or as Kipling once phrased it, "Law, order, duty and restraint, obedience, discipline." They might be Washington's own words. With these in our hearts we can hope to extricate ourselves from our present difficulties. With these in mind we need never suffer these difficulties again.

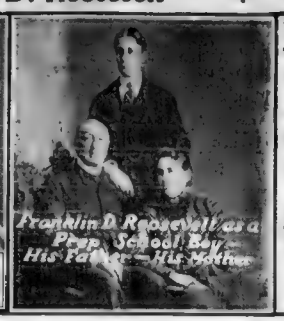
The Life of Franklin D. Roosevelt -:- As a Boy He Aspired to Be President

VISIT TO SEE CLEVELAND

James Roosevelt, gentleman farmer and railroad magnate, called at the White House as the guest of President Cleveland about 45 years ago. With him was his son, a timid boy, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The lad was shy in the presence of the portly and dignified Cleveland, but not so shy that he did not say, as family history reads:

"Some day I would like to be President."



THE BOY SCHOLAR AND PARENTS

Today that boy, now a man of 50, stands on the threshold of the White House. The Democrat who will oppose President Hoover for the highest office in the land on election day!

Franklin D. Roosevelt, in his formative years, in his preparatory school days at Groton School, after careful private tutorship, and through his college life, did not cherish always that hope of some time becoming President.

In fact he was graduated a bachelor of arts from Harvard

BLONDE BARES 'BAKER NOTES' IN LOVE SUIT

Charges Former Milton Banker Wrote of Undying Passion and Planned a Divorce

Charles E. Baker, real estate dealer and former Milton banker, pledged his "undying love" to Paula Marquise, blonde divorcee and mannequin of New York, in letters allegedly written by Baker to the girl released today by her attorney, M. Edward Viola of Boston.

Suit for $50,000 alleging breach of promise against Baker was filed in Federal court last week by the girl, with Baker answering that every claim made in the suit was "a downright falsehood."

In a letter postmarked at Boston on May 19, 1931, Baker is alleged to have written to the mannequin:

"Darling—Hope you got my little love letter that I wrote you before leavin gthe hotel. Oh, dear, I was so lonely in leaving you last night and you must know how I love you, dear one. And I'm quite sure you love me dearly, too.

FOLDED IN HIS ARMS.

"I enjoyed every minut of my time with you and it was simply wonderful . I shall miss you very much tonight, dear, and shall go to sleep with you folded in my arms, and I know you will feel my presence.

"I read your little letter that I had in my pocket and destroyed it on my way home. Good-by, loved one. I love you oh, so much. Always your Chucky."

In another letter, postmarked Boston, May 26, 1931, Baker is alleged to have written about his action for divorce:

"Sweetheart—Gee, it's wonderfully nice to have letters from you, dear. They make a day so much brighter. Besides, I need every so often to be told that you love me, darling

"I understand the papers have been signed and it looks as though I may be in receipt of them this week and that all will be over before the lady goes on her vacation. If things happen that way, think I shall have to celebrate with a big drunk or sumpin about the 4th.

THERE WAS A JOKE

"You have no idea how I want you, dear—my thoughts are constantly of you."

Another letter declared to have been written by Baker and postmarked Milton, June 1, 191, reads:

"Darling: Haven't you laughed yet at my joke? For Heaven's sake, be careful who you ask to explain it — It's not nice, you know, darling. But I told you just the same.

"Oh, sweetheart, I wish I could just drop in and take you in my arms this minute. You are my adorable darling and I love you, dear."

The Malden police class in pelts and cults caught a fleeting glimpse of an inspiring subject today—and it was a fleeting glimpse.

STONES HARD ON FEET

It was a man in some sort of celebration of his birth, thought the law's defenders.

Unhampered by clothing, the fleeting vision easily outdistanced the police, so back they went to the home of Mrs. Florence Grinan from where the first complaint came.

SCREAMS ROUT NUDIST

Mrs. Griman said the weird figure had climbed to her second floor sleeping porch, from where he was routed by her screams. Mrs Grinan is the widow of a former Malden Electric Co. official.

She said the man was tall and of light complexion.

Stork Is Busy at Malden Infirmary

Malden's city infirmary has more residents this year than ever before in its history, according to a report by Supt. J. C. McFadden.

The stork has not been idle at the infirmary, and during the six months since January 1, 40 babies have been born at the city infirmary hospital ward, or more births than in the many years since the infirmary was established.

Real Home for Girls

BY CANDID CAMERA

Everybody in Greater Boston ought to know about St. Helena's House, at 89 Union Park street. That's where students and working girls are given a permanent home—if they wish—under supervision of Sisters of the Grey Nuns. The slogan at the house is —"A House Where Comfort Dwells."

I found Louise Bernier happy and busy on the miniature golf course. This was presented to the home by Mayor James M. Curley.

On the roof I found Eugenio Solimando watering the flowers. There are plenty of flowers in the roof garden.

A modern laundry is at the service of the residents of this Residence for Young Women—Gertrude Scott was using the electric iron as she prepared for a week-end trip.

PROF. ROGERS HITS 'LIBERTY'

The substitution of law and order for liberty and freedom, which he declared were responsible for most of the internal problems of the nation for the past 100 years, were recommended by Prof. Robert E. Rogers of M. I. T., orator at the annual July 4 exercises at Faneuil Hall.

The city's observance of the holiday followed the same program as other years and was successfully carried on despite rain which threatened to dampen the ardor of the exercises. Flag raisings were held at City Hall and the Common and the annual reading of the Declaration of Independence from the Old State House balcony was again carried on.

Acting Mayor Edward Gallagher presided at all the exercises and in the Faneuil Hall ceremonies referred to the Washington bicentennial in connection with this year's celebration.

JOB IS ILLEGAL, IS CLAIM OF OPPONENTS

Controversy Arises Over Conduct of Both the Police and the Fire Departments

Political affairs in Hull, seething for some time beneath the surface, reached the boiling point today when it was learned the selectmen have been petitioned to remove from office Commissioner of Public Safety Henry J. Stevens.

Stevens sometimes known as the Czar of Hull, is charged with having been illegally appointed to illegally acting and has been illegally placed in sole control of appropriations approximating $100,000.

The petition, signed by John F. Rudderham, Hull realtor, was sent to the board of selectmen which consists only of Stevens and Clarence V. Nickerson.

As a result of the recent death of James Jeffries, the third member of the board, it will be necessary to hold a special town meeting to elect his successor.

The chief cause of controversy is said to be the fact that Stevens has administered both the police and fire departments since Police Chief Frank M. Reynolds retired.

GANGI CALM BEFORE STORM

CERO GANGI SAMUEL GALLO

Man Battling for a Third Time for His Life Decides on Acceptances

The 12 men who will decide the fate of Samuel Gallo in his third trial for the murder of Joseph Fantasia in the North End, in July, 1927, were chosen in one hour today in superior court.

Ninety veniremen were called for the trial and so filled the courtroom that Judge Wilford Gray ordered that none of the crowd of would be spectators in the corridor be admitted until the jury box was filled.

As the jury was being selected neither Philomena Romano nor Cero Gangi, the two star witnesses, was in the courtroom, but they were believed to be in the courthouse. Gangi was once convicted and almost executed for the crime for which Gallo is being tried a third time.

STATE REFUSES DATA

The government exercised seven challenges; 10 veniremen were excused as opposed to capital punishment and one was challenged by Gallo's counsel.

William H. C. Collins, longshoreman, 24 Tremont st., Charlestown, was the first juror selected. The others were Patrick J. McCarthy, painter, 1 Medford st., South End; George Gallagher, teamster, 68 Middle st., South Boston; Timothy J. Crowley, clerk, 36 Hilltop st., Dorchester; Patrick Healey, watchman, 5 Prescott st.; William J. A'Hearn, accountant, 13 Bruce st., Dorchester; Otto Kohl, storekeeper 1 School st., pl.

James J. Collins, an inspector, 39 Bailey st.; Edward C. Erlandson, upholsterer, 32 Huntington ave.; Frederick A. Hoch, clerk, 419 Centre st., West Roxbury; Edward F. Devine, rubber worker, 89 Day st., East Boston, and Thomas E. Lalor (appointed foreman), painter, 11 Blake st., Hyde Park.

Gallo and his counsel, Thomas H. Mahoney, held a short conference at the prisoner's case before passing on or challenging a juror, and it apparently was Gallo who made the decision.

GANGI WOUND SHOWS

The defendant, who wore a natty blue suit, black shoes, white shirt and black four-in-hand tie, appeared to have taken on considerable weight since the last trial.

He eyed each veniremen carefully as the prospect was being interrogated by Judge Gray, and the scar from a knife wound inflicted by Gangi when they were both prisoners in Charles Street Jail, stood out sharply on Gallo's left cheek.

4 SUSPICIOUS FIRES PROBED

A two-alarm blaze, believed to be of incendiary origin, which destroyed a West Newton factory last night and three suspicious fires in Dedham were being probed by police and fire officials today.

The Newton blaze, which destroyed the three-story wooden factory of the Clark Manufacturing Company, Kempton pl, West Newton, caused damage estimated at $15,000 and ecaused a huge traffic jam. Two families living nearby were forced to flee from their homes and an aged woman, overcome by smoke, was rescued by police.

Members of the Connolly and Perkins families living at 22 Kempton pl. were forced to flee from their homes. Mrs. Perkins, 55, was overcome by smoke and carried from the house by Sergt. Thomas Burke and Patrolman Walter Jenkins.

Dedham officials declared they planned to probe three blazes because of suspicion regarding their origin. The Dedham fire department was kept busy yesterday, 23 alarms being sounded in all. Police believe the three blazes were set purposely as Fourth of July pranks.

The three fires were all in the Ashcroft section of Dedham.

PEACEMAKER IS SLASHED

The role of peacemaker resulted only in knife wounds for Mrs. Lorette Pellegrino, 32, of 224 Washington st., Brighton, today when she intervened in an argument between two men at Washington and Shepard st.

She was taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital with a severed tendon in her little finger and a cut hand. Police arrested Frank Ruffo of Shepard st., after a short chase and claim to have found a blood-stained knife in his possession.

According to police, Ruffo and Daniel Tucci of Washington st., Brighton, were quarreling over money which the former claimed to have loaned Tucci.

Mrs. Pellegrino, an acquaintance, police said, stepped in between them when the argument became violent and was slashed.

It is alleged that Ruffo started to run, but was captured in a nearby yard by Patrolmen Lundy, McNally and Kilroy.

South End Man Held in Mystery Death

Porthus E. Allen, 32, of Northampton st., South End, was arrested today for questioning in the death of Harry Hodges of Batavia st., former messenger for Back Bay branch of the closed Federal National Bank.

Hodges' body, his pockets empty, was found in Allen's room and bore several bruises. An autopsy was ordered by Medical Examiner Timothy Leary. Asked about $200 found on him when arrested, Allen told police he had won it in a dice game.

He lives at 1 Marshall st., Boston.

'DOPE QUEEN' LOSES APPEAL

A 15-year sentance and a fine of $7000 against Mrs. Rebecca Somerman of Thornton st., Revere, was upheld today, although one judge dissented, in the United States circuit court of appeals.

Mrs. Silverman, characterised by federal agents as the "Dope Queen," was found guilty by a jury last October on charges of selling and receiving morphine.

Judge James M. Morton, Jr., and Judge Scott Wilson upheld the verdict and the decision today. Judge George H. Bingham dissented.

Attorneys William H. Lewis and Matthew McGrath, counsel for Mrs. Silverman, indicated appeal would be made to the United States Supreme Court.

WIFE HELD FOR SHOOTING MATE

Mrs. Theresa M. Scavo, 47, of Field st., Quincy, was held today in Quincy court in $15,000 for assault with intent to murder her husband, Peter, 52, now in critical condition at Quincy Hospital.

Mrs. Scavo waived examination and pleaded not guilty to shooting her husband in the back and arm. She was held for a hearing July 15.

Police say the shooting occurred at 1 a.m. as the climax of a violent quarrel when Mrs. Scavo became enraged, drew a gun and fired several shots at her husband.

Neighbors hearing the shots summoned police. Lieut. John Avery and a detail of officers went to the house and found Scavo lying on the floor. His wife was in a hysterical condition in the kitchen.

Police took Mrs. Scavo into custody. They say she has been suffering from nervous trouble for some time.

Three Youths Held in Golf Ball Theft

Three youths who were peddling fruit in Everett and on whose wagon police found golf balls valued at $117 were turned over to police of Station 1, Boston, charged with larceny of the golf balls from one of Eaton Express Co.'s trucks of Wakefield. The goods are alleged to have been stolen in Com-

Truck and Coach Crash, 1 Driver Hurt

Joseph Silverman, 24, of 133 Callender st., Dorchester, suffered contusions and abrasions today when his light truck was in collision with a coach automobile at Thatcher st. and Warren ave., Dorchester. He was taken to Milton Hospital.

The coach was operated by Carmine Russo, 40, of 499 Beach st., Roslindale, who escaped injury.

"THE GLOBE TROTTER" Brings News in a Modern Manner

Far different is the modern news service from that of years ago when the populace depended on the town crier for what scant news came their way—weeks-old news, half fact and that half a so highly colored product of his imaginative interpretation as to scarcely resemble the original occurences.

The demands for news today are far more exacting. Speed, accuracy and complete coverage are essential. Compare "The Globe Trotter" of today with his ancient counterpart. Now every modern agency is coordinated to gather the facts of every event of interest and importance—and to bring them to you to read in this newspaper, to hear on your radio and see and hear in life-like fashion on the screen of your favorite picture theatre in—

THE LITTLE THEATER IN GLOUCESTER WILL BE THE scene for a number of prominent Fair Things next Friday, when the first of a two-night showings of George Bernard Shaw's "Candida" takes place at Rocky Neck.

POLLY RICHARDSON

Many members of the North and South Shores will be present at the premiere, both in the audience and on the stage.

Jane Hawes has the title role of Candida and Jane Bancroft will play the part of Prossie.

There will be a one-act play in the morning which will be attended by many of the Junior League girls, who will stay for lunch and spend the day at the Little Theater.

A bill of three one-act comedies follows "Candida" and introduces the new talent of the season. Many of the costumes used in "The Rise of Silas Lapham," the third bill, have been borrowed from the attics of the very old Boston families described in Howell's novels.

Several Winsor School graduates, Jane Bancroft, Linda Collens, Polly Richardson, Catherine Blake, Hope Hubbard, and Theordora Lawrence are among the well-known girls who are Barring at the school this summer. Others from Boston include Barbara Percival, Helen Homans, Jane Shreve, Betty Childley, Margaret Bouton, Frances Norton, May Sarton, Polly Sayward Evelyn Williams and Dorothy Dow.

The girls seem very keen on this method of spending the summer months and whether or not a genius is found among them, they will learn much of the appreciation of dramatic art which will be an enjoyment forever.

Several Performances at Oceanside

WE ARE GLAD TO HEAR THAT THE OCEANSIDE THEATER will give several performances this season with the capable Mrs. Evans Dick at the head of the subscription list.

It will be a delight to see the celebrated actress, Erin O'Brien-Moore, who was the heroine of Elmer Rice's "Street Scene," one of the most successful plays of the past New York season . . . the play you remember won the Pulitzer Prize.

• • •

Mrs. Henry Powning and her committee are stimulating wide-spread interest to try and make this season an unusually brilliant success.

Horse Show

THE AMERICAN LEGION HORSE SHOW at Hamilton was the usual success . . . we did not come up from the Cape to "cover" it because we have seen it so many, many times in the past 12 years our previous descriptions will no doubt do as well as a new one . . . the same children, a year older . . . the same judges, a bit bolder, maybe . . . the same horses a trifle colder . . .

Whole "Show"

Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., rigged in his English country gentleman's riding togs . . . are we right about that, Bayard? . . . is really the whole "show." Apart from him, the whole self-conscious crowd turn out to exchange the usual banalities, the "rabbles" . . . and there we many down that way . . . will hang over the rail and look down their noses at every newcomer who ventures to attend to find out what it is all about . . . the Myopia Club will serve a buffet luncheon of which few will partake . . . they are a thrifty crowd about some things . . . the cups and plate will be taken home to be placed beside the cups and plate which they received last year . . . and the year before . . . the same ones usually win each year, enough anyway so that it has become a habit . . . with the judges.

AND THEN THINGS WILL quiet down until Labor Day, when the show is held across the street on the polo grounds of the Myopia Club and a second performance goes into rehearsal. It is all very quiet and dull . . . at least it always was to US, which may be "sour grapes" . . . and then again may be the wine of life bubbling over.

Just a Request

WHAT DO YOU THINK . . . ? Invitations have been received from Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer . . . deposed political queen . . . Mrs. Rodolph Agassiz, Mrs. George R. Agassiz, Mrs. F. S. Moseley, Mrs. Edward Brandegee, Mrs. Lars Anderson and Mrs. Walter C. Bayles, requesting the pleasure of a check for $100 in aid of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union . . . please reply with an acceptance to Mrs. Thayer. Can you beat it? And it will be social suicide to "regret" . . . what a brilliant coup d'etat that was! . . .

Missed Music

FORGOT TO MENTION THAT we saw Mrs. Ellery . . . and please do not ask us her other name . . . she is always referred to as Mrs. Ellery, the violinist, and a very accomplished artist she is . . . at the Hallowell-Hecksher wedding.

Bachrach Photo
Mrs. Fritz Talbot lovely as always . . . !

It would have been very pleasant if she had played a few selections for her friends . . . there was no music, and we missed it.

THE HERMAN GADES, those so very interesting people, from Boston, were present . . . as was Mrs. Fritz Talbot, as always . . . !

GARDENS ON CAPE COD OPEN TO PUBLIC

Inspection Is Slated for Friday

Among the attractive social events on the Cape during the current season will be the showing of seven beautiful gardens on Friday, for the benefit of the Cape Cod branch of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. There will be an admission charge of one dollar for each ticket, which entitles the holder to visit the series of gardens being opened for inspection. In case of rain the gardens will be opened on the following day, July 9.

The gardens selected have been arranged so as to form objects for a delightful morning or afternoon drive, from the neighborhood of Wianno, where Mrs. William E. Jones shows a garden of rare charm about a mile south of the Wianno Club, to Woods Hole.

Rock Garden

After visiting Mrs. Jones' gardens the next stop is at Penzance Point. Here the rock garden of natural beauty, shown on the estate of Mrs. F. A. Park, which overlooks the water off Naushon Island must be seen to be appreciated. There are several beautiful rock gardens on this estate, full of interest to all lovers of nature, with a genuine Cape Cod atmosphere and background.

In Osterville the gardens of Mrs. Charles D. Armstrong are unsurpassed in southern Massachusetts for its boxwood and conifers. In these gardens a distinct touch of the classic of Italy will be noticed.

Unique Charm

Next on the route are the gardens of Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, Quisset, Falmouth. Here is a garden of unique charm on the shores of Buzzards Bay. It is noted for its beautiful roses, which are at present in their prime.

The two remaining gardens of the series are at Woods Hole. One of them is that of Miss Sarah B. Fay. It is one of the older type of gardens, famous for its roses, and was laid out by Mr. Walsh many years ago. The other estate consists of a series of gardens maintained by Mrs. Geoffrey F. Whitney, which portray exquisite beauty with their roses and delphiniums. An unusual and interesting feature is her herb garden.

Surry Plays to Open Tonight

The fourth season of the Surry Playhouse at Surry, Me., near Bar Harbor, will, under the direction of Leighton Rollins, open this evening, with Oscar Wilde's perennially amusing comedy, "The Importance of Being Earnest."

Many dinner parties have been planned before the opening, and tickets reserved by the following Boston residents: Prof. and Mrs. Charles E. Bellatty, Mr. Charles E. Gibson.

Mrs. Hallowell Opens Estate in Medford

Mrs. N. P. Hallowell will open her estate at 50 Mystic st., Medford on Saturday, July 16, in the interest of the Harriet Tubman House, a haven for homeless colored girls in Boston.

The benefit program at "Nod debo," the Hallowell estate, will include a pageant under the direction of Mrs. Gena Mae Brown, and a band concert. The musical program will be supplied by the 372d Regimental Band.

The Harriet Tubman House, located at 25 and 27 Holyoke st., Boston, is a home for colored working girls, stranded transients and girls without any funds, home or work.

The institute depends on voluntary contributions, sales, suppers and benefits for its support. During the past winter the house kept free of charge, many girls who had neither money, friends, nor employment. A large group of socially prominent people are assisting Mrs. Hallowell in this cause.

Mrs. Fannie Lennon is the president and William T. Peary is the treasurer of the Harriet Tubman Home, while Herman J. Lee is directing the activities for the benefit at Mrs. Hallowell's estate.

Wife of Actor Graves to Sue

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

(Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Hollywood, July 4—The Fourth of July was marred by Ralph Graves, screen actor, writer and director, as did the cheerful presence of his wife and little son.

The couple have separated and Mrs. Graves will tell it to the judge when she asks for a divorce, arriving in San Diego with her parents, to fill she files her divorce proceedings.

Ralph refused to discuss the coming divorce today, saying:

"I would rather have you talk to Mrs. Graves. There is nothing sensational. We still have a high regard for each other and only decided to take this step when we found we were better living apart. Mrs. Graves, of course, will get the divorce."

Contract Pairs Near Finals

Cleveland, O., July 5 (AP)—The final preliminary round for the contract pair championship of the American whist league was played here today, with 16 qualifying pairs to be chosen.

A Cleveland team, Maurice Maschke and George W. Parratt won the all-American auction pair championship yesterday, scoring 3354 out of a possible 3360. They were awarded the Auction Bridge Magazine trophy for one year.

Top scores in the first preliminary round for the contract pair championship were made by S. F. Gerber and R. J. Henderson of Pittsburgh; Fred C. Thwaits and Robert E. Smith of Milwaukee; Commodore Infield Liggett and Irene Faulstain of New York; F. B. Speakman, Akron, O., and Irving Block, Buffalo, N. Y.

Crowd Blocks Street in Hopes of Seeing Greta Garbo

Atlantic City, N. J., July 5—Until ram came to their assistance, the Atlantic City police force had its difficulties for nearly 24 hours trying to keep traffic open in front of a hotel, where, it was rumored, Greta Garbo had obtained reservations for the week-end.

The crowd didn't ever know whether there was any truth to the rumor. It had 'heard' that Garbo was there, and that was enough.

The hotel denied Garbo was there, but still the crowd lingered until the rain washed their enthusiasm away.

Robert McCormick's Widow Dies in Paris

Chicago, July 5 (AP)—Mrs. Katharine Medill McCormick, 79, of the famous family of journalists and statesmen, and widow of the diplomat, Robert S. McCormick, died of a heart attack early today in Versailles, France.

Mrs. McCormick is survived by her son, Col. Robert R. McCormick, and her sister, Mrs. Robert W. Patterson; also, a grandson, John Medill McCormick, and two granddaughters, Katrina and Ruth Hanna McCormick, children of the late Senator Medill McCormick.

Curtis to Appeal Verdict Next Week

Trenton, N. J., July 5 (AP)—Counsel for John Hughes Curtis will apply for a writ of error some time this week to permit appeal from his conviction on a charge of aiding the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby.

Curtis was convicted last Saturday. Sentence will be imposed on July 11.

SIMPLEST FROCKS LEAD

Cotton Gowns Continue to Be Popular

By DOROTHY ROE

New York, July 5 (US)—It's easy to see all dressed up this season even if your budget has been mortally maimed by the depression.

For the smallest evening frocks as well as costumes for all hours of the day, are the simplest ones this year.

And you'll see New York's smartest debs floating around our rooftops these nights in dashing little evening gowns that probably cost somewhere between $15.50 and $25.

The crispest cooled things for a midsummer night's dance are the cotton fashions which continue to ride high on the heavens of popularity.

Pique, in both white and pastel tints, is a favorite for both town and country, with those smart young things who like as few frills about as possible.

Crisp organdies, in pastels or big spready prints, are seen all over the place.

And lawns and dotted swisses are not far behind.

A few gingham evening gowns have been seen but they're a little heavy after all, for nights when keeping cool is one's main object in life.

And among the most effective of these are the new raspberry tones, in solid colors particularly striking when worn with a tailored little manejacket of white linen or pique.

An evening wrap that is the newest thing off the boat, by the way, is a little jacket of white organdie, with surplice closing and puff sleeves. Crisp, cool and the last whisper from Paris.

CUPID ADOPTS A BUDGET, SAYS MISS FAIRFAX

Economy Is Affecting Marriage

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THE DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE in Washington, in its survey of national affairs, has not overlooked romance. The little blind god Cupid is feeling the effects of present economic conditions severely. He seems to have laid aside his bow and arrow temporarily and folded his wings for the time being. If one button shop will do for two, Cupid knows nothing about it.

Not only has the number of marriages fallen off steadily since the stock market crash of the autumn of 1929, but there are fewer babies born since the boom times, according to Dr. Timothy F. Murphy, head of the bureau of vital statistics. But, as the cheerful ones remind us, no cloud is without its silver lining, and if there are fewer marriages and fewer babies, there are also fewer divorces.

People are so busy these days making one dollar do the work of two that they do not have time to look for the crumpled leaves of matrimony. Hard times bring out sterling virtues. We have become like people making a short cut on a railroad trestle; we've got to watch our step and beat the train to a safe landing. The little irritating mannerisms of the man or woman trudging along beside us cease to irritate. We've got to get there before the train comes along and overwhelms.

Practically every state in the union, except Nevada, experienced a slump in divorces last year as compared with 1930 and 1929, the last of the "big money" years.

In Nevada, with its new six weeks' residence law, the divorce mills at Reno and elsewhere ground to pieces 5260 marriages in 1931, an increase of more than 100 per cent over 1930, and nearly 110 per cent over 1929.

RED IS FOR DANGER!'

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

"SO," CHIRRUPS ROSAMOND REDHEAD "so I am a menace! Up until now I have had a cheerful notion that the ruddy color of my locks was a subject of argument. Hope 'told me a flattering tale.' I knew that there were men in the world whose born weakness was red hair. I knew that artists appreciated my incarnadine head. Certain romantic writers have given their leading lady rubicund or russet crowns of glory. I knew there was some talk of the red head being significant. But always the blonde—the blonde—stood in my path. The accepted menace was golden Red heads were called 'carrot' or 'copper'—according to the state of mind of the speaker—and then put upon the shelf while the world argued about which was the Loreiei—BLONDE or BRUNETTE! BUT, when a body of men of America petition for protection by law from the rubified lady—she steps up to the head of the class of The Fair; siren of sirens, seductress of all Circes. That proves it."

What the resolution drawn up by these fearful Adams proclaimed to be the characteristics peculiar to the red-haired woman smacked strongly of the feelings of a man who had loved and lost one! And had chewed the cud of bitterness ever since I wonder did it worry the glorious-topped?

We have all known girls with the hair of glory Whether they be unusually hot-headed I do not know —they never proved it to me. The sweetest-tempered girl I ever knew had hair like polished copper with a glow of rose on top.

The most beautiful hair in the world—red hair can be. And one thing I do believe. Whatever else goes with it, there seems to me to be strength and hardihood. The very hair itself is vigorous and alive.

Daily True Story

Love and Finance

"ROMANCE is as beautiful as the most fragrant flower, but like that flower, unless carefully cultivated, Romance eventually fade, and wither, and die all together."

Margaret looked at Stephen in perplexity. "Now what," she asked herself, "made him come out with a remark like that?"

Hand in hand they wandered through the spacious garden of Stephen's home.

But would she take all that he offered her? She doubted it. He had too much money. He was too much prestige. He was too well known for her to look forward to a happy home with him. What she wanted was a man who offered his love instead of his money.

For the fifth time Stephen proposed to her.

She patted his hand. "And I'm crazy about you, Stephen dear. But I won't marry you. Let's not go into the same thing over again. You know why."

"Can I help it if my dad has money and social position?"

"No. But you can learn from your dad how to make your own, and if not that, how to enlarge, or take care of your father's fortune. At least, you would be doing some work. Like this all you do is go to parties, play polo and drink. I don't want that kind of a husband."

"I see. You don't want me. You want a caveman. Somebody who eats his meat raw and socks his woman with a club to show who's boss."

MARKET DROPS

For weeks she didn't see Stephen, and then one day, while reading an evening paper, an article caught her attention.

It is regrettable that Mr. Cornel Farrol, president and owner of the brokerage firm of Farrol & Co., should suddenly be stricken ill at a time when the market is gradually sinking. Of course Mr. Farrol's son, Stephen, will take the helm of the firm, but it is believed that young Stephen Farrol will hardly be able to direct the catastrophe that is threatening his father's firm, as well as Farrol, Sr., would prove to be able to do."

Gradually, and then with devastating propensity, the market sank lower and lower. Two weeks Wall Street was in a turmoil. Stephen neither ate nor slept. He spent whole days and nights studying the firm deficiencies and sound points. He cut and expanded. He bought and sold. He manipulated his firm's business with judgment and efficiency worthy of his father. He neither splurged, nor invested recklessly. He advised his customers truthfully and guided them with all the knowledge at his command. And it looked like the firm of Farrol & Co. was going to exist where others failed.

STEPHEN SUCCEEDS.

Margaret read of his achievement in the papers. Wall Street and the social register were surprised.

She felt elated. He was a man. She fondled the word "her man." And he had succeeded. She was proud of him. If only he asked her now to marry him...but he had gone away. The papers had stated that he had gone to the New port for a month to recuperate.

Three days after he had gone she received an invitation from Stephen's sister to visit them for the week-end, Natalia being a good friend of hers. Margaret accepted.

It was Sunday morning, two days after she had arrived at the palatial Farrol home. Margaret walked slowly through the garden. It was a beautiful day.

"Oh, beautiful flowers, you are wonderful. But if I only had Stephen here to share with him your fragrance." She wasn't conscious of speaking aloud.

"What would you do with him?"

"Stephen!"

He laughter as he took her in his arms. "What would you do with him?"

"Well, I'm waiting."

She kissed him. "But tell me, how did you know I was here? And why did you come back so soon?"

He smiled "Just a well engineered plot."

Synthetic Tan of Idle Girls

By ELSIE ROBINSON

OUTSIDE THE HOTEL room where I work, there is a swimming pool.

It is a very beautiful swimming pool. The water in it is so pure, so brilliant, that it is like a clear block of tourmalin. Across the surface of the water the light plays in a gleaming filigree, and shadows of leaves float like dark flowers; and at midnight, there on the peaceful waters, rocks the frail, pale crescent of the new moon.

Elsie Robinson

A dream pool! And as though they, too, were part of the dream, beautiful, nearly naked girls lie all around its rim. All day they lie there, dozens of them, their delicate bodies exposed to the sun. When they started, two weeks ago, their bodies were blue white, with faint green shadows, bleached sickly by the winter's artificial life. Now they glow like the rich flesh of ripe fruit—apricot, orange and peach. They are suntanned

They are a marvelous sight, these young women. They look as Eve must have looked, striding straight and golden through the flowery fields of Paradise. They seem tireless, capable of enduring any effort or strain, fitted to be splendid wives, heroic mothers.

Looking at these young females, you might expect any miracle of radiant health and power—

BUT YOUR EXPECTATIONS WOULD BE ALL COCK-EYED, STRANGE.

For these glorious gals are not primitive Eves, potential mothers of a super race. They are, I regret to say, just a bunch of lovely, lolling loafers, and their appearance of glowing health is simply a synthetic tan.

Chances are, if you gave any one of them an honest, two-fisted chore to perform, they'd pass out cold; and any gentleman who marries one of them expecting a regular partner is preparing the biggest surprise party of his life.

Not that I'm holding it against these youngsters, mind you. They are the product of their times, and they meet all the tests. Moreover, if you don't get unreasonable and demand a 100 per cent proof, bottled-in-bond, pre-war performance, they are merry and charming. But sometimes, between giggles and gush, you find yourself doing a lot of heavy thinking.

Synthetic tan!

YET ISN'T MUCH OF OUR HUMAN BEHAVIOR SYNTHETIC, IN THIS YEAR 1932?

We claim to be brave. We perform a lot of showy stunts. But how brave are we when it comes to enduring the common discomforts, the dragging monotony which was our forefathers' daily fare?

We claim to be clever. We exhibit marvelous inventions. We use miraculous conveniences and contrivances. But who does all this inventing and contriving? Is it not done by a few score men, with no effort at all on the part of the millions they serve? Do most of us, as individuals, exhibit as much ingenuity in our whole lives as grandpa and grandma did in one day, working with their clumsy contraptions? Is our cleverness not that of the monkey, clutching eagerly at any new jim-crack?

We claim to be wise. We reel off weighty quotations from daring brains. But how much thinking do we do for ourselves? How wise are we in weighing and judging the true values of life? Is our wisdom not that of the parrot, echoing stupidly and smart wise-crack?

Synthetic tan! How pretty it looks; how piffling it really is. And what deadful things it does to the human soul that substitutes its cheap and easy effectiveness for the brawn and bronze of honest, noble effort!

Water Exercise Helps Cure of Paralysis

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

MEDICAL science continually strives to prevent disease and to correct the deformities and handicaps resulting from disease. No better example of this can be shown than the persistent fight of science against infantile paralysis. Though there is still much to be learned, great efforts have been made to gain a more thorough understanding of this disease.

Dr. Copeland

Infantile paralysis is a dreaded disease that often leaves the afflicted person in a crippled and paralyzed condition. A few years ago little help could be given the disabled sufferers, but today science is gradually conquering the crippling and damaging results of infantile paralysis.

It is gratifying to read the amazing reports of the leading authorities on this subject. They claim that systematic exercise in warm water, as in swimming, and other gymnastics are found to be extremely beneficial to these sufferers.

Sufferers from infantile paralysis are overjoyed when they find that with little effort they are able to swim and walk in water. In addition to stimulating these weakened muscles, benefit is derived from the improved mental outlook, for often these afflicted individuals suffer great mental depression which aggravates the physical condition.

Many of my readers will wonder why swimming and other exercises in water benefit cases of infantile paralysis. The answer to this is an old principle of physics known as Archimedes' Law. This old and wise Greek discovered that there was a difference between the weight of a man's body on land and under water. This is the real basis for the cure of sufferers of infantile paralysis.

Persons unable to control the movements of their limbs on land find that they can do so in the water, for the water supports nearly all the body's weight and helps the weak muscles in their action.

Hats for Hotel Breakfast

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

A girl friend and I are going to spend our vacation at Atlantic City, stopping at one of the large hotels there. Will you tell me if we wear our hats when we go to the dining-room to breakfast, luncheon and dinner?

MARY.

You should wear your hats when you go to the dining-room to breakfast and luncheon. To dinner you will probably wear an afternoon frock or an informal dinner frock—something like chiffon, plain or flowered—and in this you do not wear hats.

Hints From the Convenient Beauty Box

BECAUSE of the sensitive glands of the breasts heavy massage for the purpose of reducing is hazardous, mustn't be done. The rubber brassiere will break down fat cells, but it is likely to make the tissues flabby unless a hardening astringent is used. The most efficacious application is alum water; dissolve one-half teaspoonful of alum in a basinful of cold water, apply with a large sponge.

THERE'S A FEELING that hot air blowing like blasts from a fiery furnace on to the finger wave isn't good for human wool. It isn't. Heat should be moderate even if the victim must spend another fifteen minutes getting her lovely undulation baked. Now, more than ever, the royal topcoat needs oil treatments the night before the weekly shampoo.

IT IS the good old freckle season. Speckled darlings are up against the same old difficulties. They can combat the rays of the sun by keeping complexion, neck and arms well creamed, by applying a lotion made by combining three ounces of witch hazel and three ounces of peroxide. Put on with cotton, and let dry.

WHEN SLIPPING on her frock a woman should take the opportunity to do stretching exercises, make play of it. Stretching keeps the backbone supple, pulls in the muscles of the tumtum, invigorates the chest cavity. Stand facing the wall and see how far you can reach. Up on the toes, stretch, down on the heels, stretch again, breathing deeply the while

THE VOICE OF BROADWAY

By LOUIS SOBOL

Prattle and Tattle!

The Irving (Norma Shearer) Thalbergs will bring the bassinet wn from the attic some time in ...ovember, but of greater interest July ...me is the letter arriving from ...gland yesterday in which a ...land, present at a little private ...ty attended by Eddie Windsor, Prince of Wales, reports that Wales confided that if his royal papa and the government are willing he will ...p aside as prospective heir to a throne in favor of his brother, a Duke of York, preferring to be...me a private gentleman of the realm. It isn't as fantastic as it sounds, and personally I can see why the Prince would like to dodge the job of British ruler. Which doesn't disturb the pulchitudinous peerless gal, Claudia Dell, who will elope with Eddie Sutton, her manager, next month. I like Atlanta's sense of humor. To herald the visit of Pola Negri, the city had a great sign constructed spelling this out in the electrics: "Welcome to Pola Negri, a great star." Paul Kritch for whom, until recently, Harrie Lake was the big romance, swears now has June Gale for his big heart storm. Silly way to put it—when you simply want to say a fellow's courting a girl. Incidentally, the situation between Buddy Rogers and Mary Brian seems to receive itself to this: They have a pact whereby whenever the two are in the same town together they go out with nobody else but each other. When they're in different ...wns they go out with whomever ...y please. It's romance of a sort. ...uppose. Pola Negri, incidentally, ...is deferred her reported marriage ...or 20 weeks to fulfill various engagements—and by that time there may be no marriage. Another Broadway twosome these days and nights—Irenial Harry Cannon and the pretty Ziegfeldian, Frieda Mierse.

Reginald Marsh, whose painting was bought recently by the Metropolitan Museum of Art, will be a pappy before the end of July. Seymour Felix, who never believed the subway signs, had all the teeth yanked the other day, and when he emerged from the ...gas whispered, "You sure you pulled the right one, Doc?" Hawley David George is over, June Knight has halted her $1000,000 breach of promise suit against Jimmy Dunn. "The affair is a thing of the past," she sighs. "We loved. We fell out of love—I wish him luck." Add romances: The Theodore doll bouncy, Leslie Mae, and Allen Lane, who came all the way from California to wed the lass. Bert Friedlob has deserted Wallis' Wall to enter the newspaper biz. Hiss ninny—mother-in-laws never learn. Miriam Battista, the "Hotcha" lass, has divorced her pouting appendage, and "Hey, Nonny, Nonny" closes Saturday to be revised and reopened later with Ted Healy as lead. Lou Holtz begs sending picture postals to Benny Baker, his stooge here, all during his tour of Europe, which prompted Baker to cable, "Send more cards from Paree. I'm selling them here at a handsome profit." Paul Whiteman's Ford is now the property of Fanny Brice. The Irene Prescott-Eddie Kilnoski (guitarist for Paul Tremaine) romance is cold.

Lucy Cotton Thomas, former owner of the Morning Telegraph, has turned inventor with a combination lipstick-mirror boodicky in which the mirror moves with the lips-puss. The new Lincoln union here has elected Ralph De Vilis president. Banks report a growing indication that the army of gold hoarders is increasing. The 30,000 women coat and suit makers acheduled to go out on strike, won't until after the Fourth of July, or possibly the 12th, Seattle Day. Lee Shubert is behind the move to persuade the movie moguls to release their stars lured from the legit stage, between pictures, so that Broadway producers may again be able to assemble worthwhile casts. Ed Frayne, the brilliant sports scribe, after 10 years of blindness in his left eye, is now recovering from a successful operation which has restored the sight in the eye. Add trend of the times. The Minskys, needing a mule for one of their blackouts, found that the rental was $60 a week. So they first the juvenile and hired the mule to keep the budget at par. The next super-super special will be based on the scenario written by Richard Washburn Childs, former ambassador to Italy, which will center about the activities of the Italian Fascisti Mussolini is the central figure, as might be expected, and D. W. Griffith will direct.

William H. Collins, who has been languishing in the hoosegow here (he's the fellow who, after 16 years of wo.king honestly and taking care of his family, has been apprehended as a fugitive from justice), now has a lawyer—David George—and yesterday assumed charge of the case without a fee and is now taking steps to release him pending habeas corpus. Ray Dunn, gossip colyumist of Brevitiles, isn't any more, having resigned to lead a respectable life. The Georgie Raft-Billie Dove romance, which flourished briskly for a few weeks, has faw down and gone boom. Irene Rose, former secretary to Arthur Hammerstein, who opened a popcorn stand, has closed it and is ready to become a secretary again. After three many years the Henry Street Settlement Visiting Nurse Service is to be absorbed by the wall and will go under unless financial aid is forthcoming. Staff nurses are being laid off and the office clinics are to be discontinued—unless! As a rival organization to the Boy Scouts, the Buck Jones Rangers Club of America has been formed with two million kids between the ages of 6 and 16 enrolled.

Carmen De Barnes, the school girl sweetheart, and Gaude Orion, movie director, are in The Throes as the saying goes. The Villa Richard over on the Jersey side is scheduled to change hands today and the big snicker to me is the report that Mildred and Maurice, those dancers who wear nothing ere and rawther less than 'arf o them, behind, are going to become Mister and Missus. Clap calluses imitts for Joe Lewis, who opened officially at La Casa Lewis last nits and for the Sea Breeze Club which gets under way again tonight for the season with a television terman emseeing. Fascinating reading is "The Match King," by Ellen Thorvaldson, and you needn't guess too hard who the leading character is, and, of course, Simon & Schuster's collection of Scotch gags, "More Scotch." Forgive me for my scots—my deep affection for Stanley Glyn's first novel in years, 'Love's Hour'—tame and dull for this feverish age, but a grand burner is Ted Clark and Desiys, El Garron wardbes, for their discrimination in selecting smart dittles and for Jim Miller with Barney Rapp's outfit scheduled to be our next singing sensation.

Julie Eagles, who claims to be the dir. of the late Jeanne, whose marriage to Jay Cherns was annulled recently, is now trying to step to the alter with Benny Russell, song writer. Here's a bit that comes my way: According to a certain banking official if, instead of issuing a check on which there is now a tax, you sign a receipt instructing the bank to release so much money from your account to the person designated, you escape the tax—but why bother to go to all that trouble? Ted Healy's sister, Marcie, is minus a full crown yesterday after a surgical knifing. The brief romance of Dopsy Comm. Isaac Goldberg of the Dept. of Correction, and Mary Peverberg is now ended—they were married Tuesday. Kalinka Batenstein will fly out to Hollywood Friday to pick up the threads of his romance with Irene Ahlberg (Wara). After all these months, Paul Whiteman and Ferde Grofe have kissed and made up and will be together again, and tomorrow in this space Pam Harris will conclude his colorful Down Memory Lane Reminiscences.

SKYSCRAPER — By Faith Baldwin

Lynn's Job Opposed by Tom

What Has Gone Before

Lynn Harding, young and pretty, is ambitious for a career in the Seacoast Bank and Trust Company. She loves Tom Shepard, secretary to one of the vice-presidents, but will not marry him, feeling they both must make their careers first. Then Lynn meets David Dwight, a prominent lawyer, through Sarah Dennis, her chief at the bank. Dwight is attracted to Lynn and invites her and Sarah to his apartment for dinner. Lynn's room-mate, Jennie Le Grande, a model, warns her that Dwight is dangerous. Dwight meets Jennie and Tom at Dwight's party. Tom does not enjoy the party and he has a quarrel with Lynn afterwards. They make up and she visits his apartment. Sarah tells Lynn that if she marries Tom she may lose her job. Lynn is promised a job with Dwight. . .

Now Read On—

TOM GLANCED at Lynn.

"Everything. I won't have you going out with him. Damnit, you're engaged to be married to me and I don't get any place more going out with other girls—and I don't go out with them, what's more. And I would n't get a kick out of smirking over a dinner table at a woman twice my age."

"Tom!"

"Well, I wouldn't," he said doggedly. "I don't want to be with anyone but you. I can't trot you around in a limousine and three penthouse parties and send you gardenias and all the rest of it. But you know that, right from the beginning. I won't have you going around with Dwight!" he said again. "He's too interested in you."

"He's not! Even as she said it she had misgivings. Absurd! Couldn't a man be decent to a girl, offer her friendship, without pretending a personal motive" "And I'm not interested in him"

"Then why do you make dates with him?"

TO GET A JOB

"Well, if you must know," she flung at him, "I want to get a job so that if he could help me get a job. So that I could work; so that we might be married. I think of him, you have a rotten mind!" she added childishly.

"Lynn, here, I'm. Tom rose now and walked over to her. "Look here, I didn't mean that. But it hurts me like the devil to see you so friendly with Dwight; and moreover, I don't think you should be. Aside from me, he hasn't the best reputation in the world. He couldn't be any woman's friend."

"Well, he can be. He's mine!" she cried. "He's offered me a job as his secretary."

"What?" Tom stood still, head lowered and thrust forward, his blue eyes with suspicion. "His secretary! That's a good one. He laughed without merriment. "That's swell. He's going to work out a secretary all these years, I suppose, and has just decided to take one with no secretarial experience, is that it?"

Lynn said, paler now, "You needn't waste the heavy sarcasm on me, Tom. Of course, he has a secretary—several of them, for all I know. This is different."

TYPE HIS NOTES

"I'll betcher my life it is!" Tom agreed darkly.

"It's to type his notes for a book he is doing, and other personal work," Lynn said, infuriated.

"Can't he get just done in the office?"

"He doesn't want it done in his office. He wants it done at home."

"That's practical of him," said Tom admiringly. "What are your working hours to be—ten p. m. to six a. m.?"

Suddenly Lynn was transformed into a flaming harridan. Years of training in social repression dropped from her; she was a child of the back yard fighting furiously with the neighbor's brat, sick with disappointment, beside herself with anger.

"You shut up, Tom Shepard! How dare you say such a thing to me?" she raged. "You get out of here. I never want to see you again!"

Anger broke her voice and set her whole body trembling. It had, however, a wholesome effect upon Tom. Anger such as hers argued a pristine innocence He advanced upon her and took her in his arms She fought him. He quelled her, let the marks of her nails on his astonished face. He dropped her quickly.

"You little devil!" was his natural response.

NURSED THE SCRATCH

He nursed the scratches, applying a grimy handkerchief. Lynn cast herself on the couch, reaction arising in. Sobs shook her. He heard her say, through the storm:

"Just because I was afraid of losing my job. I—I don't want you—and he was decent enough to give me one—so that we could be—"

But Tom's impulse toward reconciliation had passed. He said coolly:

"You needn't accept Dwight's offer in order to marry me. Because if you do, I won't marry you, see?"

She sat up on the couch. "Tom, do you mean that?"

"I mean it. I didn't want you to work after we got married. Then I gave in. You know why; or if you don't, you're dumber than I thought you were. I've said her love baldly. "You know why, right enough. But if you think I'm getting down on my knees on Dwight's charity you have another guess coming. .Not me!

"He would be bad enough to have you working in the bank; but I'd be there, at least. But to have you working for him, in his house, under his eyes, within reach of his hand You may think I'm crazy, perhaps I am—crazy about you, anyway—but I'm not as crazy as that, or too crazy, I don't care what you think!" he ended.

He put the handkerchief in his pocke!

She said, all the anger gone. "Oh, Tom, I'm so unhappy."

That softened him. He went over and dropped to his knees beside her and put his arms about her. "I'm sorry if you feel I did, sugar," he told her. You know I didn't mean it. I was sore, that's all."

LYNN IS SORRY

She touched the scratch with her fingers, put her lips to it gently "I'm sorry, too." She laughed shakily. "I didn't know I had such a temper. Why, if my own mother had seen me she'd have spanked me and put me to bed."

"I could do that," he told her confidently

"No, don't. But Tom, what shall we do? Oh," she told him hopelessly, "I didn't see any other way out. I was so happy, pounding and then Sarah knocked that house of cards to smithereens. And so I figured, if I can't marry him after all, and you agreed with me . . . And then I thought of Dwight. No, Jennie thought of him."

"She would," commented Tom grimly.

"And I went there; and he was so nice, so awfully nice; and I thought it was the way to keep on a futurr. Where's a future there?"

"None. He told me that, too But he said when I've picked up I could go back into the type of work I had been doing "

"I see. He expects you to work all your life? Well, I don't."

"But I want to."

They got back where they had started months before.

Tom sighed heavily, and kissed her. He said, after a moment

"There'll be a way out. You see! I'll make a killing, somehow. Rob the bank! Start with a hundred in Wall Street and run it up to a hundred grand—no, however, in this market. I'll help an aged gentleman across traffic and he'll leave me a million."

"Oh, Tom!"

She was laughing again. This was like Tom she knew best, boyish, absurd, young, darling.

"No, but seriously, I'll find a way. Rawlson was talking to me about tonight. He says there are lots of ways."

"What did he mean?"

"Never mind, now. He'll tell her alone; kissed her. "You'll tell Dwight. Thank you kindly, wealthy sir, I think I want my job."

"Yes. It doesn't make sense any more," she told him mournfully.

"You bet it doesn't. Hello, here's Jennie."

White's.

Hand Sewn Felts Moulded by Renee

are causing a torrent of talk among smart women! And no wonder . . . they're cut, draped and moulded while you wait, for $1.50 and up! Created in fine imported felts (you may also have any rough or novelty straw you wish), RENEE hats are moulded only after a careful study of your features and your type has been made. You may have your last year's hats cleverly remodeled at this smart shop for $1.50 and up. You'll find the RENEE Hat Shop at 8 Winter street, Suite 707.

Eugene Wave, $7!

After the holiday I know you've decided you simply must have a permanent wave. Get lovely Eugene Wave—this glorious Permanent is now only $7 at Lillian Cunningham's and this price includes shampoo and setting wave; also ringlet ends. She also has a marvelous special—Shampoo and Wave, $1! A Frederic Permanent is now only $6! Have the youthful coloring restored to your hair with Inecto Notox. If your hair has been disfigured by inferior tinting, consult her about correcting it. Twenty years' experience insures expert work! Lillian Cunningham is now at 139A Tremont St., over St. Clair's. Tel. Hancock 8468. Open evenings by appointment.

GO ON AWAY!

But—go away smartly! You're planning a week-end in the country or a trip to the seashore. New clothes—new scenes—new friends! Think how much smarter and more intriguing you'll appear when you arrive on the scene, carrying expensive-looking, distinctive luggage. No matter how many charming frocks you have in your bag—you'll still feel like a "country cousin" if you pick all your adorable shimmery things in any old bag. In Filene's New Travel Shop (Franklin floor) is a very stunning, convenient bag. Grand for week-ends—for suburbanites spending a night in town—and in the Pullman car while bulkier baggage goes by express and for innumerable other occasions. It's 18 inches long—Comes in Hand Boarded Tropical Cowhide—or fine, imported Pigskin—The Cowhide bag comes in black, brown and russet—the Pigskin in a lovely soft, rich tan. You'll like the convenient zipper opening with its own little lock and key. I've sketched it for you—but I can't really give you any idea how delightfully roomy it is. But what I can tell you is it is the most astounding value in a bag in the market—marked at only $4.98! Ordinarily this bag would sell at a much higher price—but this is the Opening Special of Filene's Travel Shop—on the street floor—just a step from the Gift Shop, Franklin and Hawley St. entrance

PAINFUL FEET

Leg Knee Back Pains

Whether You Take

If you have tried bandaging, baking, massaging, braces with orthopedic shoes, flexible arches, plaster casts etc. without success, go to the ORTHOMEC SYSTEM offices. Last trained specialists show you how this system will give you immediate relief and in time, permanent correction

Orthomec machines are the first noteworthy improvement in the treatment of arch, leg and back pains in 40 years. There is a registered foot specialist in charge and consultation is free. THE ORTHOMEC SYSTEM is at 140 Boylston St. Liberty 1399. Opposite Boston Common.

your sports seriously, or whether you're more often found in the Spectator groups, you'll want plenty of sport frocks this summer. Since the smartest of sports dresses are the simplest, they are jewels of convenience in packing the week-end bag and vacation luggage for they take up a minimum of space, and are not so apt to wrinkle as the elaborate costume White, of course, is a favorite color, for this summer season, particularly in sports clothes, and white is wonderfully flattering to wear. If you're lucky enough to have a rich golden tan Remember, Anne, to watch for my vacation letter next Monday

Ramble in Garden to Banish Evil Dreams

By WINIFRED BLACK

Well, for goodness sake, what is the matter with you, Mr. Blackbird?

It's a fine, handsome fellow you are, with your glossy black coat, your great shining golden eyes and the little round spots of reddish orange under your wings; and a fine gay life it is you lead, too, whistling around up there in the blue, and stopping to rest in the lilac bush or on the tall Scotch spruce by the garden gate!

I don't see why you live in the city at all, Mr. Blackbird. However did you come to town, anyhow? Did you lose your way on a windy night, and decide to make the best of a bad bargain?

You don't belong in a city garden along with the sparrows. You really don't, you know. And what was it you were making such a fuss about a few minutes ago, flying around and around the garden and saying "Check, check, check" in such a loud, disagreeable voice?

You wouldn't even stop and look at your reflection in the fish pond as you so often do, "Check, check, check," you screamed hoarsely, and then you went and sat on the rim of the balcony and fairly whooped "Check, check, check!"

Are you running for president of the Blackbirds, I wonder; and was that a speech you were making?

Tut, tut! You will never get voters that way. Speak softly, Mr. Blackbird, a big cat lives next door, and he has been known to break them pleasant promises. That's the way to get votes.

Or was your indignation purely personal? Had you and little Mrs Blackbird had a falling out? Did she want to line the nest with some sort of silken down, and did you think you knew better than she how it should be lined?

Or do you think she talks too much, and says "check" harshly when she ought to be listening to your glorious declaration of "Check, check, check?"

Maybe Mrs. Blackbird is a gadabout, and no housekeeper at all; or perhaps—dear me, that would be tragic—she is too much interested in another blackbird, not half so handsome or so masculine as you.

I saw another blackbird near the lilac tree this morning. Rather a neat, trim little fellow he was, something of a pirate type, if you ask me—easy ways and soft compliments.

Well now, brother blackbird, your wife is just a sweet little home body, you know; and you must not think harshly of her if she can't let her have her silly little head turned by gigolos.

Maybe that's what you were saying a few minutes ago

"Check, check, check!" How handy your voice was and how curious you were! Oh, well it's all over by now, as so many affairs we think so serious will soon be over.

The wind is swaying the purple cones of the lilac tree; the lemon verbena is in full and glorious feather, and along the wall of the garden the hollyhops and the Spanish roses are weaving a garland of perfumed beauty.

Never mind what it was that worried you, Mr. Blackbird. Forget all about it; do! Look at the roses and the heliotrope, and just remember them

Beatrice Fairfax Answers Letters of the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

He's Rude, But She Likes Him

I have been going with a boy friend three years, just as a pal. We were separated for nearly a year for no reason at all, then I heard he was "stepping" company with a girl. He used to call me up quite often, but never made an effort to secure a date.

He called me up one Friday and asked me to go out with him, which I did. He treated me as a friend should, then he made a date for Sunday, but he never showed up. He passed our place this Sunday evening with a girl, and how the mere sight of me he went by our house. Please tell me what I should do.

WORRIED.

Dear Worried: You must realize how rude this young man has been. He broke a date and breaking it without offering a shadow of an excuse. Very probably he doesn't know how rude he has been, and driving by with the girl and blowing the motor horn was just rubbing it in. If he calls have an engagement, either real or fictitious. Someone more worthwhile will come along soon.

Took Her Boy Friend

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I haven't had very much schooling, on account of illness. When I returned to school for the second semester, I found out that another girl had taken my boy friend and he was taking her out. He also seemed to like her very much. I tried hard to get him back again, but I guess it is impossible. The other girl is richer than I am and the boy seems to love her; but I still care lots and lots about him. Do you think my case is hopeless?

A FRIENDLESS GIRL.

Dear Girl: The world is just full of well-to-do, elderly, semi-elderly and even moderately young women who would be glad to give up all their possessions in exchange for your disappointment over the boy friend. Being young enough to be still in high school would be happiness enough for them. Don't lose your courage, make your capital of youth TELL.

An Understudy?—No, Indeed

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am seventeen, but I feel and look as if I am nineteen or twenty. I am engaged to a young gentleman of twenty-two. I say "gentleman" because he has always been such a gentleman. We love each other dearly and we want to marry. But I cannot (due to present circumstances) marry him until a few years pass. He will wait for me, but I can't see him more than once or twice a week. Do you think it is fair of me to hold him like this, or should I tell him to find another girl to be friendly with?

BROWN EYES

Dear Brown Eyes: I think it would be very foolish of you to suggest to your fiance to get himself another girl because your engagement is likely to be prolonged for a few years. If he accepts those conditions and is willing to wait—any many good men have waited—why not let well enough alone.

He Called Her Names

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

About a year ago I met as I thought, a charming man who from the beginning seemed to pay quite attention to me. In fact, I loved him. He also returned this feeling and paid me the greatest compliments, that of asking me to be his wife. Last evening we quarreled and broke our engagement, but it would be the easiest thing to renew if I wished it. My only trouble is his temper. He called me the lowest names, which I would forgive, as I know he did not mean them. We parted friends after I had forgiven although he didn't bother to apologize.

Dear E. R. M.: I think you're right to keep a fiance at a distance who called you low names and then didn't apologize after you had forgiven him till he denies that kind of behavior puts him beyond the pale. Suppose you married him and he continued to call you bad names, would have to put up with it. Don't like him back till he apologizes and you're sure he has reformed.

Treats Him as a Tiger

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am 19 years old and consider myself sensible, but I'm completely broken down and discouraged over this. I have a sweetheart who is 17 years old, and she loves me, but her mother is simply terrible in the way she keeps her away from me. She and defends her from me as if I were a tough tiger. She keeps the girl at home so completely that I very seldom see her. Shall I continue to prowl around, or shall I take some real chances and drive away with her.

TOM C.

Dear Tom C.: No, don't take chances and drive away with her, because 5 and 19 is entirely too young for such a decision. If you are really and truly in love—not just youthful fascination—you will wait. And my dear Tom, if at your age you're able to support a wife there days, you're a wonder. Patience, and more patience, is my best advice. And why don't you treat your love a "tough tiger"? You never told me enough

The Neighbors Talk

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Five years ago my husband deserted me and our two babies, and at present I don't know whether he is living or dead. My dear father took us all to his home and we are comfortable, but how my luxuries. We have a good cousin, who was an old admirer of mine, is very good to us all. He is well-to-do and has never married. Often he comes by for us all and takes us for a ride Once or twice he has taken us us out for the week-end. When he does this father always goes, too, but some of the neighbors gossip something terrible about this. Do you think it's any of their business?

JEANNETTE.

Dear Jeannette: Indeed, I don't thing it's any of their business if your cousin is generous enough to share his car with you and take you for week-end trips, with your friend as chaperone. They're just jealous, and I should pay no further attention to them.

RADIO REALLY OFFSIDE?

Gridiron Games May Get Air Sponsors

By N. F. T.

This recent "Stay in Your Own Backyard" edict issued by college football powers-that-be, in the direction of radio powers-that-are, seems to have taken on a somewhat altered aspect in many circles. Time for reflection invites closer viewing of commercial possibilities, bearing in mind the grand games' need for preserving golden gate standards.

Some of our better known sport writers have regarded said ruling as a ruling. They show a measure of unbiased enthusiasm over the promise of a certain well known announcer being silenced for good where football is concerned. Nevertheless, it all strikes this suddenly struck sentinel of yours as something entirely different. He is reminded of that old adage, an excerpt from which sets forth how "Men mumble, while money talks." Quite well we all know.

WHAT PRICE PEACE?

Let it not be startling should developments reveal a truce before autumn. Be not surprised further if you wonder whether a deal could not be made between Eastern universities and our major wireless systems. An arrangement such as now exists between Madison Sq Garden and the NBC, for example. Remember how those Garden gate guardians also frowned fiercely on fight descriptions not so very long ago? Now they permit NBC to select their choice scraps for airing—whereupon a price is paid and the microphone men allowed to obtain a sponsor if possible. They generally do.

One thing certain, there will always be a place on the air for Notre Dame. Just wait and see. It was the firm belief of the beloved late Knute Rockne, that radio stimulated interest, yes, and revenue, for the only real great amateur game we have. What's more, what Rockne believed, they still believe at Notre Dame. Those who argue any football conviction of his out there, do so at their own peril.

BANISH "BOOGY-MAN" FEAR

So perhaps if the network dollar sign looms large enough behind each goalpost this fall, broadcasting may not remain such a bugaboo after all. Having thus spouted some on a sport subject, since athletic scribes have been besieging radio ramparts, the "colyum" does an about face, back to write about sound sanctums. Maybe minding one's own chosen or assigned endeavor is better business anyhow.

CURRENT "MIKE" MEMOS

Indefinite postponement attends that "Bird and Vash" comeback, scheduled via CBS from New York last night. . . One Hub leader man's name is up on the Musicians Union bulletin board as expelled, due to not paying his band boys after certain work they did, with one or two more definitely reported as having an official bead on them for the same offense . . . Gus Van, studio melody man and RKO headline attraction in person this week, has a darktown dialect every bit the equal of either Amos or Andy. That's saying something, especially when eight people listening to him in the same room on Sunday (WEEI) afternoon, agree... More than a few listeners express a thought that Burns and Allen have lost their freshness and crisp comedy. Others wonder if even

POVERTY WAGE BRANDED FOE OF INDUSTRY

A drive against sweatshops of Fall River and New Bedford which pay starvation wages to women and girl workers has been started by Commissioner of Labor and Industries Edwin S. Smith.

The commissioner brands these industries, for the most part comparatively recent migrants, as "enemies of honest business."

"Continuance of poverty wages means degradation of living standards and unsound competition to established concerns in the state who are still endeavoring to pay a living wage," the commissioner asserted.

PUBLIC ASKED TO AID

Women's and other civic organizations as well as the better class of business men are asked to take a stand against these unwanted industries. In addition to arousing public indignation against them, the commissioner advised, the workers themselves are reminded that through effective organization they can force these employers to accept minimum wage standards.

In one shop making electrical equipment in New Bedford, the minimum wage commission found that 52.4 per cent of the women and girls employed were receiving less than $9 for one week's work. In a factory devoted to the making of men's shirts, 26 women and girls had an hourly rate of 10 cents or less. In the same shop, only 30 out of 218 employed got an hourly rate of 25 cents or better.

The commission learned also that in a group of three New Bedford factories under the muslin underwear decree, the percentages of workers earning less than 25 cents an hour were 89, 97.6 and 84.6.

For allowing these firms to settle in New Bedford, the commissioner blames the local Chamber of Commerce and the banks.

ENTIRE STATE AFFECTED

Every counsel of prudence and regard for the city's industrial future, he contended, should have prompted them in keeping these industries out.

"However, the combination of empty factory space and the prospect of some employment for the city's idle workers even at very low wages has apparently influenced the judgement of those who have to do with New Bedford's industrial development," he commented.

"It is better if necessary," he continued, "to take care of more unemployed out of public welfare funds than it is to encourage employment at wages so low that they tend to undermine the general level of wages, not only in the community where these shops locate, but in the state as a whole."

On the Air

NBC's star Donald Novis got his warbling start when his dad, on hearing his son sing in the bath tub one day, made the boy take vocal lessons.

Just think! If Donald didn't take a bath that day two million American maidens might be having nightmares instead of dreams of him.

Bathtub singing may have been the highwater mark for Don, but it's been the "all wet" sign for a million others.

Gene Tunney has signed with the NBC Artists' Service for a lecture tour. During his travels a mike will follow him around and bring his words to list'rs . . . The Billy Jones and Ernie Hare p'grams will be reduced to three times a wk instead of five starting July 17. Their relinquished time will be filled by Gene Austin, tenor . . . There's talk of having Baby Rose Marie, ten yr. old husky voiced singer, do steady radio work. Which would add a name to the very small list of female radio stars . . . Henry M. Neely, the Old Stager, has returned to radio ceremony as master of the NBC rollickers quartet p'grams . . . Bird and Vash, scheduled to return to CBS this wk., have been put off till the end of the month . . . CBS intends making the most possible of Bud Collyer, tenor and brother of Hollywood's June Collyer, who started a daily series this a. m. . . This is Jan Garber's last wk. at Totem Pole and WNAC-WAAB. Kentucky Serenading Johnny Hamp will be the next attraction . . . Wonder if anyone has noticed that Mrs. (Rise of the) Goldberg's voice sounds like Gracie Allen's.

Coming out of the ether: One never hears the term "radio bug" any more. Evidently that species is all sprayed out . . . Walter O'Keefe wasn't always the deft entertainer he is today. A few yrs. ago he appeared on a Worcester stage, and some enterprising critic wrote of him: "There are very few weak acts on the bill this wk. Walter O'Keefe has that dept. all to himself" . Endurance b'dcasts are the vogue. First, the Revere Dance Marathon, next the Democratic Convention b'dcasts and now an air description of the Six Day Bicycle Race in N. Y. will be CBSed Sat. Did someone ask how long the list'rs will endure them? . For musical instruments CBS's Maple City Four use a washboard, a tea kettle, four thimbles and a frying pan. Next thing y'know restaurants will feed you baked banjos, cooked cornets and fried flutes. Which would still be an improvement over some of the delicacies they now serve.

2 RADIO CHAINS IN PAY SLASH

New York, July 5 (AP)—Both national radio chains have reduced staffs and salaries.

The National Broadcasting Co on July 1 placed in effect a 10 per cent salary reduction. Several months ago the staff was reduced in an effort to make the pay cut unnecessary. At present 1246 names appear on the N. B. C. payroll.

The Columbia Broadcasting System recently reduced salaries 15 per cent, after dropping about 75 employes from a personnel of 600.

State to War on Medford Mosquitoes

Mayor John H. Burke of Medford has received word from the State reclamation board that the State is to expend a considerable sum of money in the Mystic river marshes in Medford in an effort to rid the locality of breeding spots for mosquitoes. At one time the city spent large sums caring for this work in the marshes but was abandoned the work for the past few years because other nearby communities failed to handle the situation in their cities.

Six Injured in Malden Collision

Half a dozen people, including two children, were injured yesterday at Franklin and Salem sts., Malden, when an auto and a truck were in collision.

The auto was being driven by Louis DeFeo of Tileston st., Everett. Pasquale Pesce of Tileston st. Michael Galanti of Tileston st., Leo DeFeo of Tileston st. and Carmen Schaino of 16 Hazel pk., all of Everett, who were riding in the car, were treated for slight injuries.

Blimp Ends Long Hop at Los Angeles

Los Angeles, July 5—With a brand new gas bag and a pair of new motors, the blimp Volunteer returned to Los Angeles after an 8000-mile voyage that included a visit to Akron, Ohio.

River Victim Found

The body of Joseph Benton, 19, of 692 Cambridge st., Cambridge, who was drowned Saturday in the Charles river, off Magazine Beach, was recovered with grappling irons today by Metropolitan Officers Albert Diamond and Frank Mahaney, about 300 feet down the river from the beach.

STIRRING FACTS TO IRK THE GLOOM-MONGERS

By B. C. FORBES

Doleful news is trotted out morning, noon and night, forenoon and afternoon.

Weaklings talk as if the country had never before known depression and never before triumphed over depression. Their ignorance concerning the past matches their despair concerning the future.

The plain, incontestable truth is that America is infinitely better equipped to rise this time than it ever was before. We are more blessed than in any earlier crisis, with every material resource—with capital, with savings, with gold, with banking facilities, with agricultural facilities, with transportation facilities, with manufacturing facilities, with mining facilities, with mercantile facilities, with power resources, with scientific skill, with chemical skill, with mechanical skill, with managerial skill, with trained workers, trained salesmen, trained advertisers.

Savings Bank Deposits Higher

Read these inspiring facts—and they are facts—presented editorially in Collier's:

America's mutual savings bank deposits are $1,233,000,000 higher than they were at the peak of the boom, three years ago.

Total bank savings today exceed $29,000,000,000, equal to more than $1,000 for every family in the land.

A group of 102 companies which had 5,539,036 stockholders at the end of the boom year had 7,675,143 stockholders at the beginning of this yeaer.

One company alone today has over 665,000 stockholders, a gain of more than 195,000 since the boom. This company (American Tel. and Tel.) has assets exceeding $3,200,000,000.

No other nation on the face of the earth can show such widespread ownership of money and stocks.

Our total stock of gold is $4,000,000,000. No other country ever possessed so much.

A recent offering of $450,000,000 of U. S. Treasury securities elicited subscriptions totaling $4,196,296,700—More than nine times the amount offered.

Last year $16,500,000,000 worth of new life insurance was written. Total insurance now carried is estimated at $109,000,000,000, or not far short of $1000 for every man, woman and child in the United States. Policies in force total 127,800,000.

Luxuries Distributed Generously

No fewer than 25,800,000 automobiles are owned by Americans—almost one for every family. This total is almost three times the number owned by all the rest of the world.

Americans possess far more telephones (19,500,000) than all other countries put together.

Fully 3,750,000 new domestic mechanical refrigerators have been bought, at an estimated expenditure approaching $2,000,000,000—mostly in the last three years.

America has more home owners than any other nation.

The theater of the masses, the movie, still attracts a weekly average attendance of 75,000,000.

The average working day a generation ago was ten to twelve hours. The standard now is eight hours, with the trend running towards a still shorter work-day. The work-week used to consist of six (even seven) days. Now it is five and one half days, with the five-day week coming into vogue.

If all of us who are still employed would only look up and buck up, things would quickly pick up. Muzzle gloom-mongers!

TODAY'S NEWS OF LEADERS

SO FAR the list has stood the test in crucial territory in satisfactory style. Unless news over the next few days is unduly disturbing continued support would be likely, but if decided break into uncharted price area were forced there would be no means of telling how much liquidation would be compelled.

Dire Predictions for June Are Unfulfilled

None of the dire happenings so widely forecast for June occurred during the month. On the contrary, there was a development in June which may well mark a momentous achievement for the United States.

When the history of the present world depression is written, the date when the United States established the impregnability of the dollar may be recorded as one of the most significant milestones toward the ensuing recovery.

Bad Changes for Dividends Fewer

Unfavorable dividend actions by corporations in the past week numbered 112 against 153 in the previous week, Standard Statistics Co. reports. There were 11 favorable changes, compared with 14 a week ago.

City Financing of Week to Be Small

New municipal financing scheduled for this week will amount to $4,949,573, the smallest total so far this year. None of the scheduled awards totals as much as $1,000,000.

Willys-Overland's Sales Are Larger

Toledo, O., July 5—Sales of Willys Overland sixes and eights and Willys-Knight cars for June increased 58.2 per cent over May business said President Miller of Willys Overland Co. Unfilled orders show a sizeable increase over a year ago.

COMMODITIES RISE SEEN AS SIGNIFICANT

By FRANK H. MELOON

Importance of the stiffening of commodity prices pointed out here and was followed by this statement from Gage P. Wright, editor of the Business Economic Digest:

Gage P. Wright

"The upturn of four well-known and widely quoted indices of wholesale commodity prices in the last week of June, after a continuous downward movement extending over many months, immediately became the chief subject of comment among international economists whose opinions are recorded weekly in the form of a weighted average by the Business Economic Digest."

The significance of this coincidental turning lies in the fact that the low point of a business depression usually coincides with the low point of commodity prices and that, over a period of 30 years, commodity prices have most often reached the nadir of their curve in the month of June.

Jute and cotton have been long-time rivals in the cotton trade. The last session of Associated Industries of Massachusetts saw resolutions adopted condemning the Post Office Department's action designed to throw its patronage to cotton, with injury to Ludlow workers. Now the local offices of the U. S. Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce tell us the Egyptian government is conducting a series of experiments in an effort to justify the use of cotton as a packing material to substitute for jute. Bags are being woven from ginning waste for use in the baling of raw cotton.

The British are not sitting back and waiting for business to come to them. Their conduct should afford inspiration for others. More than $100,000 worth of orders have been written and sold by a Scottish trade ship which visited Montreal in the interest of developing trade between Scotland and Canada. This is said to be the first expedition of its kind from Scotland to North America.

Railroads have always been powerful weapons of war, which is to be recalled in connection with armament reduction proposals. It wouldn't seem likely anyone would agree to reducing railroad mileage. This comment is brought forth by the announcement that Soviet Russia is to spend $1,500,000,000 this year in construction, twice the amount laid out in 1931, laying rails as a defense move.

Some Western Electric publicity is headlined "Commuter Trains Brains by Reading on Train." With the railroads, steam and traction seeking to win back lost passenger traffic, this offers a fetching suggestion. Some train and many electric car lines offer very poor illumination for those who wish to read. Lighting effects might well be studied from the standpoint of passenger convenience. In the case of metropolitan service they should be studied during rush hours particularly. Frequently, as lighting is arranged today, the seated passengers, too often in the minority, are unable to read with any measure of comfort, if at all.

STATE ST. Hears:

That as the share market swings into the second half of the year all eyes are glued on earnings reports. Little attention is directed toward important fundamentals. Not only is the extent of the decline overlooked, but increasing signs that liquidation is nearly completed mean little to the average trader. Too little emphasis is laid on the ending of gold withdrawals and the passing of inflationist threats.

Summer Outlook

As matters now stand it seems as though the approximate low of business and industry should be seen this summer. Washington, for all its faults, can be regarded as the best barometer of general conditions. Authorities there are less disturbed than in other sections.

The reason for such different views is traced to the peculiar way in which the various authorities weigh financial and business prospects. In the large money centers, notably New York, corporate earnings are foremost. In Washington more attention is paid to the scope of deflation.

Too much emphasis on corporate earnings makes the future a rather dolorous looking affair. Earnings are only the obvious result of prosperity and do not reflect the possibility of constructive turn. Trade and finance have come a long way and drastic treatment has cured many ills.

Boardroom Briefs

It is extremely unlikely that the worst of the future will come anywhere near approaching the worst of the past few years . . . Then, again, this country is on the verge of welcoming a new industry, which has nearly always signalled the turn in the past . . .

Beer, no matter what one's personal thoughts are, means a great new business. It means the equipping of great factories, of tremendous revenue for government and the employment of many men that can not be lared for even if revival comes within a year.

The copper tariff has had just the effect its opponents expected . . . Angry foreign producers are making every effort to force their governments to put up reciprocal barriers . . . Wheat's troubles are traced to heavy July deliveries . . . 6,000,000 bushels have been received to date.

Ticker Talk

While the heavy shipments to Chicago on July contracts may force a new low there is some hope it will be the final and lasting bottom . . . Investment trusts are still selling the rails . . . Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific and Central are now being disposed of.

About the only carrier shares the trusts are holding are Union Pacific and Atchison, and the latter is no longer a prime favorite . . . Earnings tell a tardy story, and the prospective buyer had best watch car loadings for the real buying clue.

But talk of buying the rails can safely be put over until late summer . . . The utility holding companies, whose place in any investment portfolio has long been questioned here, can be avoided . . . Prime operating company securities may have a hard time but will come through in the end.

M. E. B.

SPECTATOR Says:

The new week should bring a clarification of the domestic political situation plus the possibility of some indication of how the Lausanne conference will work out.

From these Wall Street will take its cue with the conviction growing of a good rally if developments are to its liking.

Bonds in Key Spot

Stocks may rise, or fall, but bonds still continue in the key spot, and their brisk advance at the close of the week was the bright spot in the picture.

The market is still very thin, which makes it as dangerous for the buyer as the short who has to cover.

Lausanne and Geneva

Though the Democratic political situation took up a large share of their thoughts, important interests are paying greater attention to what is going on at Lausanne and Geneva. They emphasize the point that a fundamental agreement on the other side may well mark the turning point to better times.

Significance also is attached to the improvement in foreign markets, especially in London, in the last week. This may well bring an overflow here.

Bids Received for Hospital Addition

Bids have been received for contract to build a superintendent's house at the Metropolitan State Hospital, Waltham, according to Brown's Letters, Inc., Advance Building Information. Lowest bid was submitted by Allan A. Gillis Construction Co. of Newton, whose price was $9600.

MORE SELLING IS ABSORBED IN WALL STREET

New York, July 5—The New York Stock Exchange was called on to absorb more selling today, but it was in moderate volume and prices rallied somewhat from the earlier lows in midafternoon trading.

The opening had seen a sharp dig with numerous leaders yielding 1 to 3 points before signs of support appeared.

NEW LOWS ARE SET

An adverse Wisconsin rate decision, ordering a reduction in many communities, brought liquidation of American Telephone, which was down to a new low, losing around 3 points. Union Pacific also sold at its bear market bottom, off over 2 points.

Buyers appeared inclined to keep to the sidelines. Auburn Auto sagged 4 points. Eastman Kodak was down more than 3. Drug converted an early gain of over a point into a like setback.

Recessions of around a point showed for Allied Chemical, du Pont, U. S. Steel, North American, American Tobacco "B" and American Can.

An increasing number of investors today sought out the sheltered safety of tax-exempt U. S. government bonds which under leadership of Liberty 3½s moved higher.

The Liberty 3½s went to a new high for the year. Good buying also appeared in other bonds of the Liberty group and in U. S. Treasury obligations. Quick oversubscription of the new offering of $16,000,000 federal intermediate credit bank's 2½ per cent collateral trust debentures attested the improved demand for tax-exempts.

GERMAN ISSUES

Recent developments at the international conference in Lausanne had direct effect of foreign government bonds. German 5½s and 7s raced up sharply, the 7s advancing over 4 points at one time, but these gains were partly lost.

Turnover on the Curb involved nominal amounts of a comparatively small number of stocks today. Resumption after the holiday found speculative apathy just as pronounced as it had been last week, and there was no disposition to extend Friday's rally which had obviously been inspired by short covering.

Oils were steady and dull, unaffected by evidence of continued statistical improvement in the industry. A financial news ticker reported that Humble had covered its full year's dividend in the first half. This company is retiring a bond issue on July 15.

Textile Outlook Fairly Optimistic

In its current review of business conditions in general, the Textile Organon, published by the Tubize Chatillon states:

"The outlook for this period, to date, is fairly optimistic, not so much as a result of the appearance of good factors, but more because of a lack of additional unfavorable news."

Stock Transfer Tax Up

Albany, N. Y., July 5—Stock transfer tax in June totaled $1,631,695, against $1,440,549 in May and $1,699,137 in June, 1931.

Money Management is Viewed as Needed

New York, July 5—In spite of political ballyhoo, the question which today most interests the American people is how to get out of the rut of business depression.

Another considered plan for applying the genius of management to this problem has been formulated by F. Cyril James, economist of the University of Pennsylvania, who has had banking experience in London and in Philadelphia. Mr. James' new book, embodying his ideas, is entitled "The Road to Revival."

In a nutshell, this is Mr. James' recommendation as the way out of the dilemma of privation amidst plenty:

"I. The immediate problem of terminating the business depression and of stopping the vicious circle of liquidation can best be solved by a policy of credit inflation designed to raise prices to a level similar to that of 1928, and so to liquefy the banking system. But in order to prevent such a policy from leading American business through another period of prosperity into a still worse depression it is necessary to make provision for the future development of business.

"II. The first requirement continued and stable business prosperity in the future is the scientific management of the monetary mechanism. To permit the attainment of this ideal, it would be necessary to co-ordinate the numerous financial institutions of America into an efficient banking system, and, since the international gold standard offers important advantages, it would be necessary to go one step further and to develop international co-operation in regard to the monetary policies of central banks.

"III. If we accept as the aim of economic activity the adjustment of the volume of production to the amount of consumer demand, it is necessary to develop a closer co-ordination of business activity within each industry by means of amalgamation or the creation of cartels. Such a policy would necessitate the amendment of the anti-trust laws and an expansion of the regulatory power of the Federal Trade Commission.

"IV. The functions of the federal government should be recognized to include that of guiding and co-ordinating the economic activity of the entire nation. The task would be rendered easier if the Federal Reserve Board were to assume responsibility for the supply of funds, and their distribution, while the activity of the Federal Trade Commission in supervising business enterprises should also prove helpful. It seems desirable, none-the-less, to create an economic advisory council to aid the federal government in the formulation of its economic policies.

"V. Finally, in the light of the developments suggested, it becomes necessary to provide for the gradual improvement of the general standard of living and to increase the security of the individual worker by a system of unemployment insurance and old age pensions. The progress of industrial rationalization also renders necessary a gradual, but progressive, redistribution of the aggregate national income in order to increase the share received by the wage earning and salaried groups."

Madison Sq. Net $130,725

New York, July 5 (AP)—Madison Square Garden Corporation today reported net income of $130,725 for the year ended May 31. This is equivalent to 42 cents a share on the capital stock and compares with net of $335,968, or $1.08 a share in the previous fiscal year. The figures do not include operations of Boston Madison Square Garden Corporation, which had net income of $27,296 for the period, contrasted with loss of $83,450 for the preceding year.

New Fuel Mixes Coal and Oil

Washington, July 5—Experiments in England are said to have proved the efficiency of a new fuel which combines powdered coal and oil, according to a report made public by the Commerce Department. The fuel has been tested over a six months' period. Forty tons of coal is included in every 100 tons of the new fuel. It is looked upon in England as a possible stimulus to the coal industry.

Gold Mines to Be Reopened

Washington, July 5—Reopening of the gold mines in the Tauern mountains of Austria, worked for a period in the Middle Ages, is planned for the near future, according to a report to the Commerce Department. It is estimated reopening of these properties will result, owing to present economic conditions, in a profit of about $2,000,000 annually.

MARKET VIEWS OF BROKERS

Elmer H. Bright & Co.—Sacrifices of pet theories of individual statesmen and people will have to be made in any effort for general economic benefit but honest and earnest efforts should discover some path out of the depression which hangs over the greater part of the civilized world. We believe that it can and will be found.

Livingston & Co.—The U. S. Steel preferred dividend meeting, on the 20th, is causing some worry. In any case recovery would be limited and it would seem that light accumulation for an autumn advance can be carried on without haste.

Clark, Childs & Keech—In spite of the low level of security prices, it seems likely that reactionary tendencies will predominate in the immediate future.

Shields & Co.—Adjournment (of Congress) is the most vital consideration, and until it is decided on only a trading policy is possible.

Finds Rails Still Buying Equipment

Railroad expenditures for supplies and equipment aggregated more than $141,000,000 during the first three months of the current year, according to Railway Age, which is of the opinion that this figure reflect the railroad's constant demand for materials and disproves prevalent notions that the carriers are "not buying."

Railway Age said:

"While this sum, which represents over $47,000,000 a month, not counting purchases of electric power and allied services, is below those spent in the corresponding periods of 1930 and 1931, its magnitude blasts previous notions that the railroads are 'not buying.'

"Considering the straitened circumstances of the railroads, resulting from a variety of causes, it also reflects their constant demand for materials."

Caprice Big Factor in Retail Trade

New York, July 5 (AP)—Caprice, not need, motivates about 25 per cent of the nation's retail purchases during periods of considerable economic activity, according to a study presented to the Taylor Society by William H. Lough, president of Trade-Ways, Inc.

In 1923 and 1929, two years of good business, ultimate consumers spent a quarter of their budget for goods not strictly necessary to their well-being.

SIGNIFICANCE OF FIGURES SHOWN.

Mr. Lough further discovered that the amount of goods in this "caprice area" increased from 17 per cent of all such consumers' goods before the war to 25 per cent after the war.

Significance of the figures, he said, is that the purchaser can effectively retard industry by not buying 25 per cent of the goods which industry produces. As soon as the individual becomes fearful of his economic security he takes exactly that action, limiting his purchases to essentials.

Mr. Lough estimated total value of retail purchases of consumers' goods in 1929 at $48,600,000,000. Thus the consuming public could theoretically stop spending about $12,000,000,000, and this presumably accounts in part for the slump that has followed that year.

URGES REGULATION OF INVESTMENT.

Dr. Harlow S. Person, managing director of the Taylor Society, points out an important implication of Mr. Lough's figures is that a considerable portion of our capital investment is based on insecure foundation, caprice.

There is no telling in what direction caprice will next take the consuming public, and managerial efforts to predict that direction must be largely guesses.

Dr. Person believes some kind of central regulation of investment will become necessary so industry will be prevented from over-capitalizing on sudden profits that have no promise of endurance.

London Closing Irregular

London, July 5 (AP)—Trading today was quieter and, after early strength, irregularity developed, due to profit taking, especially in gilt-edged securities and foreign bonds. Firmness in American shares disappeared after the lower Wall Street opening. Cable and wireless was firm on the preference dividend announcement. The closing was irregular.

Closing in Paris Is Buoyant

Paris, July 5 (AP)—After an irregular opening today, prices soared under the lead of rentes, the 2 per cent issue gaining two points. Bank shares, international issues and oils were firm. The bourse closed buoyant.

Prices on the Berlin Boerse continued firm and, despite some profit-taking sales, the closing was sustained.

$10,000,000 N. Y. Notes Offered

New York, July 5 (INS)—National City Company, and Chase Harris Forbes Corporation are today offering $10,000,000 city of New York 6 per cent corporate stock notes due 1933 to yield 5 per cent. The notes are exempt from all federal and New York State income taxes and are legal investment for savings banks and trust funds in New York State.

Real Silk Hosiery Sells

New York, July 5—Real Silk Hosiery Mills, Inc., has notified the New York Stock Exchange that it has disposed of all of its right, title and interest in and to the outstanding capital stock of Hartford Frocks, Inc. The transaction involves a present net debit of $62,056 to surplus account, as against which there may be a subsequent recovery of $20,000.

General Electric to Hire More

Pittsfield, July 5—Work on an advance order for the new oil burning furnace shortly to be placed on the market by the General Electric Company has been started at its works here. The job, which requires the construction of boilers and other parts will call back to work a large number of skilled employes who have been laid off for lack of work.

New Listings Are Sought

New York, July 5—Applications to list the following are pending before the stock exchange: New Jersey Power & Light Company, $3,820,000 additional first mortgage gold bonds. 4½% series, due October 1, 1960; Fashion Park Associates, Inc., voting trust certificates for shares of 7 per cent cumulative preferred.

Kidder, Peabody Adds Group

The following men have become associated with Kidder, Peabody & Co.; Francis W. Sever, Albert C. Waters, William J. Cooney, Philip D. Lenigan, John M. Magurn, Edward W. Morris, R. Henry Field. Mr. Field will be located at the Providence office.

Louisville Bonds Offered

New York, July 5 (INS)—A group of bankers headed by the Guaranty Company of New York today offered an issue of $1,000,000 city of Louisville, Ky., 4½ per cent bonds, due February 1, 1969, at a price to yield 4.40 per cent.

BOSTON STOCKS MOVE LOWER

Leading shares were worked moderately lower in dull dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange today. A slight rally brought the list above the lows for the day, but losses generally ruled from 1 to around 2 points. Edison Electric was down a major fraction.

American Telephone, after selling at its previous low for the year had a small rally. New England Telephone sagged to a new low for the year on a recession of nearly 2 points.

Rail shares were soft with fractional losses being shown for Atchison and Pennsylvania. Boston & Albany was at a new minimum on a decline of a major fraction.

Eastern Steamship second preferred was strong and advanced 2 points. United Fruit sold around a point above its previous closing level. First National Stores receded over a point. Losses of minor proportions were shown for Gillette, Shawmut Association and United Shoe. American & Continental Corporation was down a point.

Gem Razor Factory on Overtime Basis

The American Safety Razor Corporation, for over 30 years the largest manufacturers of single-edge blades in the world, are presently introducing the Gem double-edge blade for use in their new Gem Micromatic razor. The preparatory work and actual manufacturing of this new blade has resulted in increasing factory help 50 per cent above normal.

Purchases of steel, packaging material and other raw materials has meant increased activity among suppliers of this company. The plant has been running on an overtim basis for many months past with certain departments working up to 22 hours a day—6 days a week.

Another Increase in Food Prices

Second consecutive increase was registered by Bradstreet's Weekly Food Index, which is $1.63 for the week ended June 28. This is, however, still 24.2 per cent below the same week a year ago. The gain over the previous week ran contrary to the normal seasonal trend, which forecasts a slight decline at this time. Hence, Bradstreet's seasonally adjusted index of weekly food prices rose to 52.3 per cent of the 1928-30 average, compared with 51.8 last week and 69.1 last year.

There was indication of general steadiness in prices throughout the list of commodities.

United Light Net in Year $6,986,670

Chicago, July 5—United Light & Power Co. reports for year ended May 31, net of $6,986,670 after taxes, interest, depreciation, subsidiary preferred dividends, etc., equivalent after preferred dividends to 97 cents a share on 3,473,923 average number of combined class A and class B common shares outstanding during the period. New Activity for Shoe Trade Noted

Bradstreet's reports the shoe trade is disclosing renewed activity, manufacturers in New England opening their plants with the promise that by the middle of July they will be working on full time. Other small manufacturers in the same centers are reopening and showing signs of recovery, although operating on part time in most cases.

Prices Are Mixed in Cotton Market

New York, July 5—Cotton prices were mixed after an early advance in late dealings today. July ruled around 5.81, or 2 points net higher, while later deliveries held a point or two below Saturday's closing quotations.

LET US PAUSE TO WIPE AWAY A TEAR

Today we give in to requests from prominent members of the intelligentsia to print a condensed and slightly reconditioned version of "The Pilot's Story," or "Sold to the Mississippi Gambler." The original pilot's story, by W. D. Howells, is much too long, and too sad, as we have ruthlessly whittled it down. And, of course, provided a happy ending.

They came aboard at Cairo—and you would have thought she was white.

While he was weak and good-natured, but vicious when he got tight.

And before he thought what he was doing, he sold his dark bride for spot cash.

"Sold me? Sold me?" she shouted, "Tell me it cannot be so!"

"Louise," he replied, "I have sold you." And that was all that he said.

And then the pilot stood silent, his trembling hand on the wheel.

"The things that you see on a steamboat," he said, "make a two-fisted man's blood congeal.

"I am only a trusted employe, and have not the right to impose,

"Were it not for my job I'd have busted that bridegroom right on the nose.

"For I was the bartered bride's father, though the secret I did not unfold.

PARK AVENUE VOODOO IN CHAIN LETTERS REVEALED

By GILBERT SELDES

DURING THE PAST FEW WEEKS the writers of chain-letters have been particularly busy and they are either running out of names or think me peculiarly stupid. In any case they send their letters to me, running the risk of complete stoppage for there must be eight others as contemptuous as myself of this form of petty nuisance. If by any chance nine of us received and refused to answer such a letter the first time it was sent out, it would die at once. But if we missed the first time, nothing we could do would avail. I have taken the trouble to do some mathematics and have figured out that if a letter is sent to nine persons, and by each of them to nine others, and so on, by the time this has reached the 10th sending, some 387,000,000 copies would be in the mail and if each of the recipients did his or her duty, the next lot would be sent to more people than exist on the earth. That is the kind of stupidity into which chain letters may lead.

GILBERT SELDES

Intelligence! Huh!

The last (hopefully) I have received is very similar to an earlier one. It demands that copies be sent "to nine persons of the most intelligent among your friends to whom you wish happiness." (Imagine being thought intelligent by a chain-letter-writer and being wished happiness by anyone who would waste 18 cents in stamps.) This chain, like most of the other recent ones, was started by a general of the artillery in Flanders—and accounts for the fact that the armies in Flanders stuck in the mud for four years and were a pretty sad loss to their cause.

Bad Luck

Then follows the threat: "Do not break this chain; it might bring you bad luck." With proof. Mr. Cerest of Contot won a lottery because he continued the chain; Mr. Willen's house was destroyed on the eighth day after he did not. Where's Contot and who's Willen? Dirtiest dig of all: Mrs. Nix of Lisbon lost her sons three days after receiving the chain without forwarding copies. Nix en Mrs. Nix. In the last one the same catastrophies fell on quite different people. And Pola Negri owes her future fortune to having carried out these instructions. Are you telling me?

Names Signed

These letters differ from the chains sent out years ago in one respect: they are not anonymous. On the contrary, they are loaded with almost too many names. One which I threw away a little too hastily was upperclass and social register and all that sort of thing; don't you know. Out of 40 names, I checked 14 in the New York Social Register and half a dozen others were known to me by name alone as people of prominence in other cities. The one I have before me begins with the name Alfred Du Pont (but which Alfred Du Pont? and why not use Coolidge's name while you're about it?) and gets in a lot of semi-prominent people and finally runs to ground in the theater with actors and designers' names all getting free advertising.

Intellectual Boobery

I am not amazed. I once spent two years studying the boobishness of the intellectuals in America, the Park Ave. voodoolsts and the "civilized minority" which is the easiest prey to superstition, phoney art, and mass manias in the world. I came seriously to doubt whether the readers and writers of the American mercury were essentially more intelligent than people they despised; and nothing he has happened to persuade me that they are. They are quicker to snap at a new kind of boob-bait; and that is all.

In the Past

My special work lay in the past century, but I went back beyond that to one of the most horrible delusions ever suffered by the human race; the delusion of witchcraft. The boobs believed in witches, of course; but the witch-hunt was run by men of position and intelligence. One of their grandchildren, Nathaniel Hawthorne, wrote an epitaph for Matthew Maule, executed for witchcraft by Hawthorne's ancestor, and said:

"He was one of the martyrs to that terrible delusion which should teach us, among other morals, that the influential classes, and those who take upon themselves to be leaders of the people, are fully liable to all the passionate error that has ever characterized the maddest mob. Clergymen, judges, statesmen—the wisest, calmest, holiest of their day—stood in the inner circle about the gallows, loudest to applaud the work of blood, latest to confess themselves sensible of error."

So today editors, artists, financiers and statesmen receive (hess trivial, nagging, foul chain letter and shrug their shoulders and say they do not believe in them, but after all, why take a chance, what harm can it do—and then go out and make fun of the boob because the boobs believe that it's bad to sleep in the light of the moon.

Gossip About People You Know

IS IT HONDURAS NEXT?

Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Silverman hasn't had a vacation for three years, but is planning one now. He expects to take a boat trip. His friend, John Casey, city censor, who has just returned from a cruise to Honduras, is trying to sell "Sam" the idea he should go there.

LYONS BACK HOME

Friends of Asst. Corporation Counsel Joseph P. Lyons will be happy to know that "Joe" is convalescing at his home, following a prolonged illness.

STRONG FOR N. HAMPSHIRE

Joseph Mikolajewski, assistant city censor, is full of praise for the lake region of New Hampshire. He and his wife spent the week-end with relatives motoring through that section.

EVEN SILVERMAN SMILED

During a recent hearing on matters relating to the city of Boston those in attendance got a big laugh when one of the speakers referred to Corporation Counsel Silverman as "Solicitor General of Porto Rico." his quip resulted from the seating of Mayor Curley at the Chicago Democratic convention as a delegate from Porto Rico.

FIVE SEEKING TWO POSTS

Five candidates are already in the field for the two Republican nominations for representative in the Melrose-Stoneham district. Mrs. Mary Livermore Barrows, who has served two terms on Beacon Hill, and Lemuel Standish of Stoneham, the present representatives from the district, will both seek re-election. Clerk Edward J. Lord of the Boston Municipal court, a resident of Melrose and former Melrose alderman; President Walter W. Bruce of the Melrose aldermen and Joseph A. Milano, a member of the Melrose board of aldermen, are the other candidates.

Richman Finds Advertising Pays

"If you advertise it properly in the newspapers, the public will buy it," is the opinion of Nathan G. Richman, head of the Richman Brothers Co., commenting on a reduction just made in the price of the company's clothing.

Celibacy Now Costs Husband His Wife

Los Angeles, July 5 (INS)—Helen Owen said it wasn't so bad when her husband, Guy Owen, refused to work and permitted her to pick asparagus, because it enabled her to earn "pin money."

"But when he joined an occult sect and took a celibacy vow—that was too much!" sob told Superior Judge Leon Yankwich, who granted her a divorce.

Probe of Blaze in Medford Is Opened

State fire inspectors were called for investigation of a West Medford fire that caused $500 damage to an unoccupied house in Lincoln st. today.

Theb lase aroused a score of families in the neighborhood. The house is owned, according to police, by E. A. Lewis of Tremont st., Roxbury.

Winthrop Driver Held in Accident

Alleged to have run down two persons while driving away from the bonfire at old Saugus racetrack Sunday night, Robert G. Freeman of Revere st., Winthrop, was arrested by Saugus police and charged with driving while intoxicated and leaving the scene of an accident.

Pep Up Your Motor

SPECIAL $1
$2 trial offer

Little Giant will give your motor pep that will surprise you

It will decompose and eliminate through the exhaust, carbon from piston heads, rings, valves, spark plugs—the entire combustion chamber.

Little Giant releases sticky valves immediately. Cleans and fills pits like silver solder, making valves absolutely gas-tight and no grinding required. Piston rings being thoroughly cleaned, prevents oil pumping, saving crank case and pistons. Gives better combustion, a quicker pick-up, increased horse-power, and some real pep to your motor with decreased gas consumption and increased mileage.

Good also for motorcycles and motor boats. Guaranteed or money refunded.

Also guaranteed to absolutely not injure any part of the motor. Many of the leading automobile dealers and Fleet owners are now using this product.

$2.00 can—can be obtained by presenting or mailing copy of this advertisement with $1.00 to Iver Johnson Spt. Goods Inc., 135 Washington St., or Green & Sweet Co., 156 Brookline Ave., Boston.

15. A five day working week or a six hour working day to provide more jobs and better conditions for workers.

Taxpayers, Take Notice of These Two Pledges

Speaker Garner's recent demand for an immediate and drastic reduction in the expenditures for Government everywhere under the flag is echoed in the national platforms of both political parties.

The Republican plank urges "prompt and drastic reduction of public expenditure and resistance to every appropriation not demonstrably necessary to the performance of the essential functions of Government, national or local."

The Democratic plank pledges "an immediate and drastic reduction of Governmental expenditures" in order "to accomplish a saving of not less than 25 per cent in the cost of the Federal Government," and calls upon the several States "to achieve a proportionate result."

Regardless of the result in November, therefore, the next President and the next Congress of the United States are pledged before the country to relieve its taxpayers by bringing about a general and drastic reduction in the cost of government.

To make this pledge in a party platform is far easier than to fulfil it after a party enters power.

In fact, this pledge can only be fulfilled in the following three ways:

FIRST, by curtailing Federal activities to Federal purposes as set forth in the Federal Constitution.

SECOND, by reorganizing and reducing governmental agencies, Federal, State and local.

THIRD, by eliminating duplication and waste and purging government everywhere by the abolition of corrupt practices and the retirement of incompetent public servants.

In this national clean-up it is, of course, the bounden duty of the Federal Government to blaze the way.

Unless, however, STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENTS ARE FORCED BY OVERBURDENED TAXPAYERS TO FOLLOW WHERE THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT LEADS, expenditures for government will not be drastically reduced, and the overburdened taxpayer will not get the relief to which he is entitled.

In this country the cost of government has increased from three thousand millions of dollars in 1913 to FIFTEEN THOUSAND MILLIONS OF DOLLARS IN 1931.

This is an increase of more than four times per person, an increase totaling 500 per cent.

As a result, ONE DOLLAR OUT OF EVERY FIVE earned by an American today goes for the upkeep of two hundred and fifty thousand TAX-GATHERING and TAX-SPENDING AGENCIES.

And eighteen million American citizens now are dependent upon tax rolls for their support.

In view of this appalling increase in expenditures for government, Federal, State and local, it is fatuous to pretend that public expenditures can be drastically reduced and American taxpayers relieved until the activities of government have been curtailed and ITS EVERY AGENCY REORGANIZED AND PURGED.

More Drinking Than Ever

Says a Noted Auto Man

The steadily growing ranks of industrial and business leaders who condemn prohibition are augmented by John N. Willys, chairman of the board of the Willys-Overland Company.

Mr. Willys, speaking only of his experience in his own plants, says:

"Prohibition has had ample time to prove its value, and I am convinced that it is a failure.

"MY MEN DRINK MORE NOW THAN THEY DID WHEN THE EIGHTEENTH AMENDMENT WAS PASSED."

In 1920 big business for the most part favored prohibition in the belief that employes would do more work, and would increase markets for manufactured products by spending their wages for such articles instead of for drink.

Today, with hardly an exception, big business has learned that the opposite is the case.

The individual laborer does no more work than he did. He drinks as much, if not more. And the price of his drinks is so high that he has no greater margin for other expenses than previously.

Add to this the billion a year which the bootlegger gets, which the Government does not get, and which big business must make up in taxes.

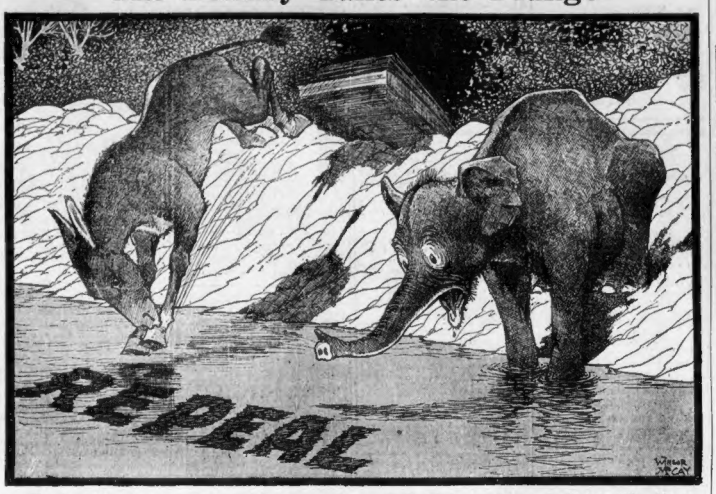
LISTEN, WORLD!—On Magazine Page Today

The Donkey Takes the Plunge



The Democrats have come out flat-footedly for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, taking the plunge into the Repeal Pond while the Elephant hesitates on the banks.

If the Elephant had been permitted to follow his own wishes in the matter, he too would be up to his neck in the waters of the REPEAL Pond.

But his Mahout at Washington said "MUSTN'T!"

"The Worst Is Yet to Come!"

Some FIFTY MILLION DOLLARS justly owing Uncle Sam thus became due.

Did anyone hear of the fifty million arriving at the United States Treasury, Washington? Yes, they did NOT.

The MORATORIUM was step number one in the European campaign leading to repudiation. The second step is EXTENSION of the moratorium, the third step is REVISION, then REDUCTION and finally CANCELLATION, if Europe can get away with it.

New York Day by Day -:- By O. O. McIntyre

Old-Time Beers

NEW YORK, July 5—August Janssen sends a menu from his original Hofbrau Haus on lower Broadway during its flourish of 25 years ago. Along with Luchow's on 14th st., it was famous for its hoppy, satisfying suds—a precision about temperature that smacked of the laboratory.

Each beer was drawn at the exact heat of the cellars in which it was brewed. The ba. had more than 30 kegs on tap constantly and, in the manner of Stauch's at Coney Island, a gong would boom to signalize to the laity each fresh tap, a custom from the Nurenberg Inn.

Among the beers listed were these, quoted verbatum from the menu: "Burger Brau Pilsen—light, bitter, slightly veiled. Highly recommended by physicians at Carlsbad for people suffering from obesity and digestive troubles. This is the lightest of all beers.

"Munchner Hofbrau from the brewery belonging to the King of Bavaria—dark, sweet, creamy. (How are you holding up?) Similar to the finest extract of malt, containing all nutritive qualities for run down constitution and nervous disorders. 'Der erste Kuss welch ein Genuss. Der erstae Zug nie lang genug.'

"Nurenberger Tucher Brau (brewery belonging to freiheer von Tucher in Nurenberg), called the Burgundy of all beers: very dark, creamy and full of character. Recommended for delicate people, especially those desiring to join the fad of increasing weight rapidly."

Imported beers, dispatched elegantly on highly varnished lorries drawn by wide-hipped dapple grays, were delivered at brownstone fronts in cases of one doze. quarts for $3.50 and domestic brews, per case of two dozen pints, at $1.50. The most expensive champagne listed was the classy Brut Imperial at $4 a quart. The cheapest was Clicquot at $2 a quart.

Rhine wines ranged from 75 cents a quart to the $2.50 special, favored by Anna Held. Clarets were from 60 cents to $2 a quart. Sauternes and Burgundies around $1 the quart and fine old Sherry at $1 a quart. Brandies were 15 cents a pony or 25 cents a drink.

All cocktails, save the Absinthe, were 15 cents and included the Old Fashioned, Martini, Vermouth, Rob Roy, Bronx, Zaza, Star and Shamrock. Fizzes, excepting those made of Sloe Gin, were 15 cents. The cordials plain were 20 cents, frapped 25 cents, and included: Benedictine, Mazarine, Chartreuse, Curaco, Maraschino, Champenoise, Grand Marnier, Apricot Brandy, Creme de Menthe, Creme de Vanille, Parfait d'Amour, Anisette, Danziger Goldwasser, Prunelle Brandy, Glika Kummel—you're welcome to the free ads., boys—and Absinthe drip. The Pousse Cafe was fashioned into its rainbow tint for 35 cents and Nat Goodwin used to toss one off in lieu of breakfast.

The original Hofbrau was a series of rooms, with an escutcheon bearing the name across the doorways. On heavy rafters quaint scrolls of German proverbs and funny, fat, unbelted Germans bursting themselves blowing enormous horns were frescoed for the faithful. Also panels picturing tipsy knights, standing storkwise on one leg, and trying to thread needles after fierce beer-drinking contests. I recall, too, one room in a timbered Jacobean shadowiness that was an exact replica of a place I visited in Germany—The Bratwurst Clockeleln—"The Little Bell of the Fried Sausage," a perky and famous little tavern clinging so perilously to the side of the Martins Kapelle.

Among worshipping customs at the Hofbrau were the beer markers, which could be secured from the oberkellner. Here they were free, but in Germany they are sold by peasant women, quaint knitted figures of celebrated German characters and fastened to one's stein to make sure of getting the right one back when refilled.

* * *

But it was the hearty Hofbrau dishes that touched off a Niagara drool. Run a moist eye over these: Wiener Rostbraten, Gansweissauer mit Bratkartoffeln, Paprika Wurste, Rinderbrust en Casserole, Knackwurst and Lubecker Saussischen—not one priced over 80 cents and each a filling meal.

On a long ago visit to Berlin, Karl Kitchen piloted me to Otto Barth's Pilsener palace where thermometers are stuck in the beer. If not the right temperature they are yanked out. But I couldn't wait and downed mine with the thermometer sticking up—like the spoon in the coffee. Ye olde dog at ye olde tricks!

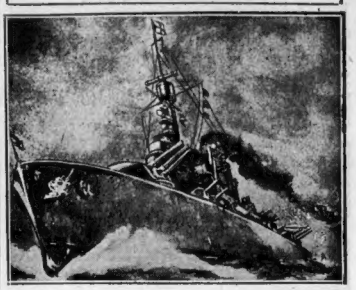
The 'Pocket' Battleship

Brains Versus Treaties



"SHE CAN SINK ANYTHING THAT CAN CATCH HER"

When the brutally foolish Versailles Treaty was written it was planned to make Germany FOREVER POWERLESS, poor and defenseless. But you cannot do that to a great nation.

Among other things the Versailles Treaty stipulated that Germany should never build a battleship above 10,000 tons.

Closely watched by France, Germany, in her ship building, lived up to the LETTER of the Versailles Treaty.

But above you see a battleship produced according to the treaty and, nevertheless, called by experts "THE MOST DANGEROUS CRAFT AFLOAT."

The Germans have brains, and necessity is the mother of invention.

Of this ship, called "The Deutschland," experts say: "She can sink anything that can CATCH her and escape anything that could SINK her."

In other words, any other ship, American, British or French, light and fast enough to overtake this pocket battleship, would have no chance whatever against her big long-range guns.

The small German ship would sink any ship afloat speedy enough to overhaul her.

The Germans, when the war ended, possessed a great fleet of old-fashioned, heavy battleships. These were taken to Scapa Flow, to become the property of the British.

That did not suit the plans of German sailors and officers on board. They, unknown to their conquerors, sank every one of the great battleships—"most treacherously," the British said; "patriotically," the Germans said.

The greyhound battleship of the Germans, in these days when big battleships are worthless against airplanes and submarines, may prove to be the most dangerous afloat.

$8.80 for National Defense

Let no one tell you that Congress is neglecting national defense.

Of course, it has scrapped a few battleships, whittled down the army and refused to provide money thus far for the citizens' training camps.

But on the main issue, praise be, it is still safe and sane.

It has just authorized an additional appropriation of $8.80 for the purchase of "horses for the cavalry, artillery and engineers."

How much or what portion of a horse $8.80 will buy is not specified, and who the lucky cavalryman, artilleryman or engineer is who will ride this partial Bucephalus has not yet been determined.

But the country will feel reassured by the action of its lawmakers in setting aside this handsome sum in a period of financial stringency to safeguard our hearths and homes.

It's one item that the taxpayer will not mind being saddled with.

By Edgar A. Guest

Just Folks

Cure for Incurables

"This," said the doctor, "you must do,
If health you would regain:
Lie down and sleep from 12 to 2.
And somnolent remain
And if, should little Janet cry,
Be deaf to every shout,
And let some neighbor passing by
Find what it's all about.
"Should you go by a man in need,
Pretend you do not see.
However sadly he may plead,
Unworried you must be.
'Tis necessary you must learn
To be as dumb as stone,
And cares not of your own concern
Leave utterly alone.
"Slow down the pace! Refuse the tasks
Which every morning brings.
And friendship oft, unwitting, asks,
Just give up doing things!
See nothing that disturbs your mind,
Hear nothing of men's woe.
In short, be dumb and deaf and blind
Wherever you may go."
I hear his nervous tension speech
And sadly nod my head,
But could I such indifference reach
I might as well be dead.
And so I've now made up my mind
My sufferings to endure,
Rather than be the stolid kind
That doctors quickly cure.
